CHICAGO BY 17,600 ELECTS THOMPSON; GOES 'WET' 2 TO 1

"DRYS" CAUGHT NAPPING

Their Vote 144,032 to 391,260 for the "Wets" on Unofficial Returns.

LABORITE GETS OVER 50,000

Williams Wins Democratic Mayoralty Nomination Over Preston in Baltimore.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—William Hale Thompson, Republican, will be Mayor of Chicago for another four years, his plurality in today's election being 17,600 on the basis of complete unofficial returns.

The vote was: Thompson, 237,888; Robert M. Sweitzer, (Dem.,) 240,288; Maclay Hoyne, (Ind. Dem.,) 110,898. John Fitzpatrick, the labor candidate, received more than 53,000 votes.

The total vote on the ousting of saloons on May 1 was:

No—Men, 266,529; women, 124,731; total, 391,260.

Yes—Men, 67,707; women, 76,325; total, 144,032.

When the first returns came in, it seemed likely that it would be a neck and neck race. For a time, with only a few precincts in, Sweitzer led by a margin as high as 800 votes. Then the Thompson tide set in. Every batch of new returns added hundreds to his lead.

It was evident early that Hoyne was not to be a factor. At labor headquarters it was declared to be significant that Fitzpatrick, the candidate of the new workingman's party, had polled more than 50,000 votes.

The names of John M. Collins, Socialist, and Adolph G. Carm, Socialist Laborite, were also on the tickets for the mayoralty.

Threat to Delay Returns.

Mayor Thompson put the leaders of other tickets in an attitude of protest today when he ordered that no returns on the election should be given out until released by his Chief of Police. The announced purpose of this move was to counteract any possible manipulation of votes by election officials. The Mayor's advisers said they were afraid that early returns would show him in the lead and that the ballots might be tampered with before they got to the City Hall.

This "fraud cry" resulted in vigorous objections made at the Mayor's office and that of Chief of Police Garrity. County Judge Scully, Roger Sullivan, Alfred Austrian, a representative of the Labor Party, and others protested. Chief Garrity conferred with the Mayor on the subject, and at 5 o'clock the Mayor changed his mind and said he would give out the returns as soon as possible.

"The election altogether was the cleanest and most satisfactory in the history of the Election Commission," said Chief Clerk James F. Sullivan. "It is remarkable that such was the case in view of the heated campaign and the predictions that clashes would take place in all sections of the city. Nearly 700,000 votes were cast, which is by far the greatest number in the history of the city."

At the office of the Chief of Police only one direct charge of fraud was made. This came from a family of five that tried to vote and found that five other persons had voted in their names. At Hoyne headquarters there were many complaints of fraud and intimidation.

Big Change From 1915 Vote.

CHICAGO, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Today's vote shows a big change from that of four years ago, when Thompson defeated Sweitzer by a plurality of more than 147,000. Much of the big vote which the Mayor received four years ago but lost today went to State's Attorney Hoyne, a Democrat, who ran as independent by petition.

Late tonight, after no concession of victory from the Sweitzer headquarters had been issued, it was said that Sweitzer adherents were investigating the action of the Mayor in ordering policemen to take the police returns to his office in the City Hall before the result was made known.

Mayor Thompson in a statement attributed his success to the confidence of the voters in the Republican Party.

The Mayor made his campaign on his record in office and on pleas for Republican Party support on the basis of national party lines.

His principal opponent, Sweitzer, and Hoyne, independent, both severely criticised the Mayor and referred to "Thompsonism" and its war record. The Mayor's reference to Chicago as "the sixth German city," his refusal to issue an invitation as Mayor to Marshal Joffre, and his promise of police protection to a gathering of members of the "People's Council of Democracy and Terms of Peace" were urged against the Mayor by his opponents.

Late returns showed that the Democrats had elected Henry Stuckart City Treasurer by 20,000 or more and James T. Igoe City Clerk by about 8,000. The Republicans elected Harry A. Lewis Judge of the Superior Court by about

Albert Flies to Paris to Urge Brussels as Seat of League

SENATORS DEFY ALBANY LEADERS

DAVENPORT LEADS RADICALS

Holding Back of Health Insurance and Bills Protecting Women Workers Causes Break.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Republican majority in the Senate will become a minority unless a revolt in the Republican ranks which has been smoldering for some time, but burst into flame at the Senate session today, is either quelled or averted through conciliatory measures.

Four Republican Senators were involved in the insurgent move at today's session. There are twenty-nine Republican members in the Upper House. Twenty-six votes, a majority of the entire membership, are required for the passage of bills or for any decisive action of importance, so a defection of four would leave the Republicans short one vote in the necessary working majority. Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida, erstwhile progressive candidate for Governor and regarded by many as the ablest man in the Senate, leaped into the fray today as leader of the revolt. The other insurgents were Senators George F. Thompson of Niagara, Ross Graves of Erie, and J. Samuel Fowler of Chautauqua. Senators Thompson and Graves have become known as aggressive fighters, possessed of telling ability in debate.

What happened today was not altogether unexpected. While there has been no open outbreak in either branch of the Legislature, recent conferences of Republican Senators held behind closed doors have been anything but peaceful. The storm that broke at today's Senate session is ascribed in part to the activities of a delegation of women, led by Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, well known at the Capitol through her successful fight for woman suffrage. The women have been contending for the enactment of a health insurance bill and a series of other measures for the protection of women in industries at the present session.

Today a delegation on which were Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs. Helen M. Leavitt and Miss Grace Phelps, had interviews with Speaker Sweet of the Assembly and President pro tem. J. Henry Walters of the Senate, which were said to have been anything but satisfactory to the women, who demanded that the measures in which they were interested should at least be reported from committee so that they could be debated and brought up for a vote on the floor of the Senate and Assembly. The women, representing the Women's Joint Legislative Conference and the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, after their talks with Speaker Sweet and Senate Leader Walters, announced that a mass meeting would be held in New York City at Cooper Union on Monday night under the auspices of the Women's Joint Conference and the State Federation of Labor to protest against "machine politics in the Legislature."

The flare-up in the Senate occurred over the Health Insurance bill, which was introduced by Senator Frederick M. Davenport, but fully a dozen other bills, decidedly controversial, are involved in the row.

Senator Graves is interested in a bill providing for water power development under State auspices, which has the backing of the Mayor's Conference but has made no headway in the Legislature, though it was introduced on the opening day of the session. Senator Fowler has a Municipal Ownership bill, also backed by the Mayor's Conference. This bill was one of the measures placed under ban of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee at its recent conference here. Senator Thompson is chiefly interested in public service reforms and in the Anti-Saloon League's Bone Dry Prohibition Enforcement bill, which also has been marked for slaughter.

All these factions are a unit in opposing what they regard as an attempt on the part of the leaders to prevent discussion and action in the open on bills in which they have a vital interest. They have served formal notice on the Senate that they will move to have the Senate rules set aside so as to permit action to have the measures wrested from the control of the standing committees where they have been pigeonholed. Lieutenant Governor Walker announced yesterday afternoon that he would rule on an insurgent appeal to set aside the present rules when the Senate begins work tomorrow.

Senator Davenport opened the fight with a demand for a full and free discussion on the floor of the Senate of his Health Insurance bill. He asked Senate Leader Walters what he was going to do to facilitate such a discussion.

"The Senator is premature in pressing

CHARGE AGENTS OF DRYS INSULT MANY TRAVELERS

Bitter Complaints Made of Invasion of Cars by Detectives in Virginia.

WOMEN'S ROOMS SEARCHED

North Carolina Mayor Protests Indignantly to Railroad Administration.

HINES SENDS A WARNING

Virginia Commissioner Is Notified to Curb Action of His Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Scores of complaints charging harsh and unwarranted search by prohibition agents of train passengers traveling through dry territory have been filed with the Railroad Administration. The correspondence on the subject covers a period of more than five months.

Allegations of cruel and insolent conduct on the part of State prohibition detectives are made from many parts of the country. Most of the correspondence, however, deals with instances said to have occurred in Virginia. Women traveling through that State are declared to have been searched as they lay in their Pullman berths at night. Every portion of the Pullman cars is said to have been investigated, even the ladies' dressing rooms.

In one instance a man is said to have been blackjacked by a prohibition agent while traveling through dry territory. J. Sidney Peters, the Virginia State Prohibition Commissioner, stoutly defends the conduct of his administration and denies that his agents are acting unjustly. He asserts that "hundreds of persons" would testify to the "carefulness, gentility, and discrimination" of the prohibition searchers. The Railroad Administration, through its counsel, John Barton Payne, as well as Governor Westmorland Davis of Virginia, has warned the Prohibition Commissioner that his men must act within legal authority and be tactful when dealing with women.

It is said in Washington by an authority familiar with Virginia politics that the position of Governor Davis is delicate, as he voted against prohibition, and fears that if he institutes an investigation of a case without the details being absolutely substantiated, the Prohibitionists might raise the cry that the Governor was endeavoring to break down the structure they have raised by law.

According to the correspondence which has poured into the Railroad Administration, the "dry" agents have been no respectors of persons. While they take the position that it is chiefly the professional "bootleggers" with whisky for ultimate sale that they are after, letters show that John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, and the late Pembroke Jones, the New York and Wilmington, N. C., capitalist, were both surprised in their Pullman compartments by anti-liquor detectives. Mr. Jones complained to the Railroad Administration. Mr. Williams is said to have told the detective that he had no legal authority, and to get out of the car.

North Carolina Mayor Indignant.

The latest instance of search in Virginia which has attracted marked attention, and was alluded to in Richmond dispatches yesterday, concerns a complaint from Parker Quince Moore, Mayor of Wilmington, N. C., that ladies from Wilmington were subjected to the most humiliating treatment while traveling through Virginia at night. A letter which Mayor Moore wrote to the Railroad Administration, reads:

City of Wilmington, N. C.,
March 6, 1919.

To Hon. W. D. Hines, Director General, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: I am inclosing a clipping which speaks for itself. One of our most prominent women was subjected to this treatment a few weeks ago. She was awakened in her berth, by thugs in the guise of officers, and with a searchlight and pistol in her face, the demand was made if she had any whisky.

Another lady of this city, the wife of a prominent official, returning home from the North, suffered the indignity of having her grip searched and her lingerie removed in a supposed search for whisky, and when the thugs, called officers, did not find any liquor, they proceeded to appropriate wearing apparel which pleased their fancy. The lady alluded to, upon opening her grip, found that every new purchase she had made North had been stolen.

These dastardly acts are perpetrated, I understand, between Washington and the North Carolina State line. There was a time when the good women of our city and nation felt secure while traveling upon a Pullman car, but the time is now here when they must have a protector while occupying a berth upon lines controlled by the great United States Government.

My State and city enforce the prohibition law, but we do not permit men—God save the mark—to violate the sanctity of the home or the sleeping quarters of the womanhood of the land. I respectfully call upon you, Sir, to direct that these cowardly assaults upon sleeping men and women passing through the State of Virginia be discontinued. There can be no objection to the enforcement of the

ENTENTE TROOPS MOVE ON HUNGARY?

Said to Have Landed at Constanza, and May Go Up Danube to Budapest.

REIGN OF TERROR IN CITY

Prague Hears Population, Facing Starvation, Hopes for Intervention by the Allies.

LONDON, April 1.—It is reported from Bucharest that Entente troops are being landed at Constanza, on the Black Sea coast, on their way to Hungary, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Central News today.

The expeditionary force of the Allies landed at Constanza, in Dobrudja, and whose destination is said to be Hungary, has disembarked at a town thirty-two miles east and a little south of the Danubian town of Cernavoda on the right bank of the river. A railway destroyed in November, 1916, by the retreating Rumanians, but probably since then re-established, connects Cernavoda with Constanza, or Kustenji, which is otherwise isolated.

From Cernavoda the troops, if destined for Hungary proper, can embark on river boats at Cernavoda and ascend the Danube, taking the path of the British monitors of a fortnight ago, up to Budapest, a distance of 450 miles.

If their mission be to cement Rumania's occupation of Transylvania their route would be across the Danube on the pontoon bridge, which has taken the place of the stone and steel structure destroyed in 1916, and is eleven miles long, leading to Fetesci on the left bank. Thence a railway running eighty-five miles due west reaches Bucharest, from which place two railway lines running north pierce the passes of the Transylvanian Alps.

Budapest Faces Starvation.

PRAGUE, March 30.—The Communists have set up a reign of terror in Budapest, according to M. Krn, a member of the Czechoslovak Mission to Budapest, who returned here today. The stocks of food in the Hungarian capital are sufficient for only ten days, and only 300 head of cattle are coming into the city daily, instead of the normal 3,500. Famine is feared, while the coal situation also is grave.

The population of Budapest, M. Krn adds, hopes for intervention by the Allies.

COPENHAGEN, April 1.—An order issued in Budapest by the new Hungarian Government provides that jewels and precious stones the value of which exceeds 2,000 crowns shall be surrendered without payment to the Communist Government.

PARIS, April 1.—Reports received from Budapest by the American peace delegation indicate that the new rulers of Hungary are giving assurances that they are anxious for peace on all fronts and that the new army they are creating is directed toward the maintenance of order, and not for purposes of aggression.

The new Hungarian officials are attempting to draw a distinction between Communism, which they say they are trying to practice, and Bolshevism. They declare they are not copying the Russian program, but are forming distinctly different policies.

PARIS, April 1.—The work of revising the covenant of the League of Nations has been completed by the Drafting Committee, and the Peace Conference Commission on the League of Nations, of which President Wilson is Chairman, will take the matter up this week, probably tomorrow or Thursday. It is even reasonable to suppose that the whole covenant as revised will be made public by the end of the week in the form in which it will go into the peace treaty.

Many changes have been made, but that does not mean at all that the original document has been torn to pieces or robbed of any essential part. The revision has been a work of addition rather than elimination, and it is safe to say that everybody who approved the covenant in its original form will be even better satisfied with the amended covenant, also that many of those who were dissatisfied with the original will find the revision adequate and entirely satisfactory.

Special features concerning the revised charter which may be safely predicted are that it contains a clause specifically restraining the League from dealing with the internal affairs of any State, and a clause providing for withdrawal from membership after due notice, probably two years.

The revision does not contain the clause requested by Japan concerning the equality of races.

As to the Monroe Doctrine, nobody is allowed to say at this moment whether the specific naming of that doctrine as a thing exempt is in the covenant or not, but there is full assurance that America has nothing to fear on that score.

A cabled memorandum from ex-President Taft on that and other points was submitted to the committee yesterday.

Elihu Root's proposals, contained in his letter to the Republican National Committee, have also been received here.

Italy Again Puts Forward Her Frontier Claim; Joint Peace With Germany and Austria Possible

PARIS, April 1, (Associated Press.)—Settlement of Italy's frontier question contemporaneously with that of France was insisted upon today by Premier Orlando at a conference with President Wilson just before the Council of Four convened to discuss the Italian frontier question.

The Italian Premier asked the President whether he did not think it advisable to have an informal exchange of views on the Italian problem, especially the Adriatic phase of it, before it was presented to the council. The President replied that he shared this view, but owing to pressure of work had been unable to study the Italian question personally. However, he promised to do so.

Premier Orlando's suggestion of a simultaneous settlement of the frontier questions involves a joint peace with Austria, a plan which is favored by the American delegation if it does not cause too much delay. In this connection, the American Boundaries Commission expects this week to conclude its report on all boundaries, including those of Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey.

FRANKFORT MOBS LOOT AND BURN

Courts Stormed, Police Station Fired, and Criminals Set Free.

STATE OF SIEGE AT MINES

Troops Advance to Protect Ruhr Workers from Terrorists —Critical at Essen.

LONDON, April 1.—Serious rioting took place yesterday at Frankfort-on-the Main, according to a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam. Crowds attacked the police station, released the prisoners, and set fire to the building, but order was eventually restored.

BERLIN, April 1, (via Copenhagen.)—Among the prisoners released from the police station in Frankfort by a mob on Monday were numerous criminals. During the evening shops were plundered, and there was shooting in various parts of the city.

According to advices received here, the new and old courts of justice were stormed and the records and furniture were thrown into the street and burned.

The riots started through the arrest of a woman, but the real cause, it is believed, was the shortage of food in Frankfort.

Regarding reports that disturbances of large proportions are likely to break out suddenly in Berlin, the Lokal-Anzeiger learns from a representative of the Government that any such movement will be suppressed with ruthless severity. A tendency among some bourgeois elements to lean toward the Spartacide movement, the newspaper adds, has been frequently observed in recent days.

The Government has decided to proclaim a state of siege in the Ruhr industrial district. Troops are advancing to that region to protect the plants and their workers from the terrorists.

Although the authorities said today that it was untrue that preponderating numbers of miners had joined the new Miners' Union, experts admitted that the situation was fairly serious. Throughout the Ruhr district the workmen are willing to work, but are powerless before the Spartacides and have joined in their demands for a 50 per cent. increase in wages and 300 marks bonus. The Bochum miners are striking because the mine owners refuse to pay them the same wages for a six-hour day as for a seven-and-one-half-hour day.

ESSEN, March 31, (Associated Press.)—Delegates from the revolutionary miners, representing 195 mines, have voted at a meeting here to begin a general strike on April 1 and not take up work again until their demands are fully complied with. The vote was 467 to 8.

The miners' demands embrace the immediate introduction of a six-hour day, including the time spent in entering and leaving the mines; a 25 per cent. increase in wages, recognition of the council system, the immediate release of political prisoners, the immediate creation of a revolutionary workmen's militia, and the immediate dissolution of the existing volunteer corps; the disarmament of the police in the mining districts and payment by the nation for the days during which the miners are on strike.

The miners sent a message to the governing council at Budapest containing brotherly greetings and the declaration that they were inspired by the victory of their Hungarian comrades over "the accursed class," adjuring them not to rest until they had overcome all their enemies. They further announced that they would fight shoulder to shoulder with their Hungarian and Russian brothers with all means in their power to compel the establishment of a Socialistic Soviet Government, in the conviction that they could break the yoke upon the proletariat of all countries.

The men adopted the title of "General Miners' Union." All their old organizations have been disbanded.

The decision of the revolutionary miners to strike spells almost certain stoppage of work, since they are in the strong majority in the Ruhr district, and have been trouble makers from the start. They were the first to demand the socialization of mines in Prussia.

A statement has been issued from official sources on the coal production. There was a reduction in January of 35 per cent. below the October figures, and a six-hour day, it is pointed out, would result in a further reduction. With such a diminution in the coal supply, Germany could only furnish sufficient coal for her own needs. Every householder would thus feel the effects of the shortage, and German competition in world trade would be damaged severely.

STUTTGART, April 1.—A bourgeois counterstrike has begun here as a reply to the general strike of workers. Most of the shops are closed, railroad and postal services are suspended, and gas works and electric power plants have been shut down.

SAY LLOYD GEORGE IS LENIENT TO FOES

POLAND TRUSTS WILSON

Some Diplomats Indulge in Talk of a Franco-German-Russian Alliance.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 31.—The fear of continental European nations with boundaries touching Germany, particularly France, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, has been from the start of the conference that peace would be made too easy for Germany and not safe enough for them. This fear not only still exists, but is becoming more acute every day. There has been one remarkable change, however, in the attitude of those States specially concerned. At first their dread was of the leniency of President Wilson toward Germany. Now it is the leniency of Lloyd George they fear, and that is putting it very mildly.

A bit of dialogue which occurred in the Council of Ten between Lloyd George and President Wilson was repeated to me today as evidence that President Wilson is not so determined on a "soft peace" for Germany as Lloyd George. It was on the day the Territorial Commission made its report and recommendations on the Polish boundary. One feature of this report was that the eastern boundary of the strip of land intended to give Poland access to the Baltic should be far enough east to include within the Polish territory the railroad line running straight from Warsaw to Danzig. This shortest line between the Polish capital and the proposed Polish port clips off the western tip of East Prussia, running through the towns of Soldau, Rosenberg, and Marienburg in that territory.

Lloyd George immediately protested against giving this bit of territory with its German population to Poland. When the British Premier finished his remarks President Wilson told him and the other members of the Big Ten that his "points" were never intended to be used as an argument against a country's right of natural development; that Poland must have such a right, which included a seaport with direct access to it.

Poland's Faith in Wilson.

From that moment Poland has been pinning all its faith on Wilson and France and distrusting Lloyd George. However, the question raised that day concerning the Polish boundary was not settled then, but was referred back to the Territorial Commission, where it is still under discussion.

The Czechoslovaks have a similar fear of Lloyd George. The western boundary of the Bohemian section of this new State, as recommended by the Territorial Commission, gives it as natural frontiers the Erzgebirge at the northwest, between Bohemia and Saxony, and the Böhmerwald Mountains at the southwest between Bohemia and Bavaria—in other words, the mountain range all along that part of the new State's boundary which is contiguous to Germany. But such a boundary would include a fringe of German-speaking people living east and south of those mountains. Lloyd George, protesting, would push the Czechoslovak boundary off the mountain crest down on the Bohemian plain, near Prague. So this new State and Poland have at least one thing in common—their feeling toward the British Premier.

Another remark of President Wilson on another occasion is relevant to this faith of the Eastern European States that Wilson wants them to be strong. For the hundredth time, Léon Bourgeois of France was making his appeal for a League military general staff with control of the armies of the member States, declaring that France as a

WILSON WARNS COLLEAGUES

Tells Them Time for Talk Is Over—Results Are Wanted.

MORE PROGRESS YESTERDAY

OLD SAAR SCHEME REVIVED

Latest Idea Is to Let France Control Valley Until Her Industries Are on Their Feet.

PARIS, April 1, (Associated Press.)—What is construed as a warning that the world could not long countenance further delay in the adjustment of peace was delivered to the allied Premiers and military representatives of the associated powers by President Wilson yesterday.

It is learned that: a late hour on Monday he arose during the conference, taking place in Premier Clemenceau's room at the French War Office, and solemnly assured the conferees of his belief that they would do all in their power to bring together the loose ends in the debate in an effort to unite on peace terms upon which a treaty might be presented to Germany.

It is understood that the President pointed out frankly the delays that have occurred in the work of peacemaking. He declared that the world was awaiting the conclusion of the task of the conferees and that it had a right to expect early results.

The President's appeal for an expedited effort followed a long session in which there had been more than the usual oratory. It came at the close of a day when financial experts had been called before the President and the Premiers. They had explained the different points of view that had arisen during the consideration of the question of reparation. Military experts likewise had been consulted at length regarding the disposition of the Saar Valley, the left bank of the Rhine, the problem of Danzig, and other questions in which strategic issues were involved.

President Wilson explained during his talk that he was willing to accept his share of responsibility for the Peace Conference delays. He was careful to point out that the slowness of the negotiations was not due to any single country or its representatives. He declared emphatically, however, that the time for talk was virtually finished and that now was the time to show results.

Greater Progress Made Yesterday.

PARIS, April 1.—The optimists connected with the Peace Conference are saying today that "things are looking better." Some of them go so far as to predict that definite progress toward peace will be made before the end of the week. The public has been fed on this sort of information for the past two months.

What lends some credence, however, to the hopeful reports that are current in certain circles is the knowledge that Wilson and Lloyd George have lost patience with the delays and are demanding action. At one of the sessions of the Council of Four yesterday Wilson is understood to have expressed vexation over the obstructions placed in the way of an agreement on cardinal points in the peace exchanges. He is credited with having declared in a positive manner that the world wanted facts and concrete results, and to have asserted that the patience of the world was being worn out. Clemenceau made a long response, which is said to have been in consonance with Wilson's expression of a desire for speed.

At any rate, it is reported today that in less than two hours yesterday the "big four" made greater progress than during the whole of the previous week. A member of one of the peace missions was asked what one thing had been accomplished by the plenipotentiaries toward settling the affairs of the world. He hesitated a long time and finally confessed that he could not recall anything.

Suggestions for Peace League Amendments Cabled to Paris by ex-President Taft

PARIS, April 1.—Oscar Straus, representing in Paris the League to Enforce Peace, cabled ex-President Taft for suggestions as to amendments to the League of Nations covenant essential to confirmation by the American Senate. Mr. Taft cabled the following, which was presented to the Drafting Committee.

"More specific reservation of Monroe Doctrine.

"Fix term of duration of League and limit of armament.

"Require expressly unanimity of action of Executive Council and body of delegates.

"Add to Article XV. a provision that, where the Executive Council or the body of delegates finds a difference to grow out of an exclusively domestic policy, it shall recommend no settlement.

"Reservation of Monroe Doctrine as follows: 'Any American State or States may protect the integrity of American territory and the independence of the Government whose territory it is, whether a member of the League or not, and may, in the interest of American peace, object to and prevent the further transfer of American territory or sovereignty to any European or non-American power.'

"By unanimity of the Executive Council, the American representative on it will secure a reasonable distribution of burdens for the United States in the enforcement of Articles X. and XVI."

that the representatives of the four powers were not far apart on the solution of the Saar Valley problem and were getting closer.

This is one of the most difficult points of the whole question of reparation, and in its turn reparation is the hardest of all the peace-making puzzles before the Conference. So far it has been a greater cause of delay than the fixing of boundaries. Incidentally, much of the blame for making it such a cause of delay is put on Lloyd George.

The solution which seems to be in sight for the Saar Valley now is the working out of some method by which France may have the coal product of that region, while the territory still belongs to Germany. This plan is not new, it is an old one, which was formerly rejected as impracticable, but has been taken up again after various other suggestions have been found even more difficult.

As to the solution of the whole problem of reparation the plan now is not to fix the exact amount which Germany must pay, but to make assurance of adequate reparation by the terms of the treaty and leave the working out of totals to the commission. The four powers seem in accord as to accepting these methods in principle, but are now struggling to devise a formula by which it can be applied.

No fear of Germany's evading her debt by this method is entertained by the Americans, because Germany is already committed to the obligation of making full reparation.

May Hold Saar Area Five Years.

PARIS, April 1, (Associated Press.)—It was stated authoritatively tonight after the meetings between President Wilson and the Premiers that the prospects for an accord were more hopeful.

Distinct progress was made at the morning and afternoon sessions, particularly regarding the Saar Valley.

The indications are that the French will get coal from the Saar Valley, which will be charged against their share in the reparations. There was some discussion of the advisability of leaving the eventual disposition of the Saar Valley to a plebiscite.

The frontier question, which is still the foremost subject before Premiers Lloyd George, Clemenceau, and Orlando and President Wilson, was presented from a new point of view today, which was thought to offer some prospect of agreement.

The first plan was to give France economic control of the Saar coal fields so as to offset damage to the coal mines of Northern France. France was not to have political control over the large German population in the Saar valley, which would remain united with Germany. This proved objectionable and was one of the chief causes of the Council of Four's inaction. The main objection was the divided control, by which France would be unable to operate the mines effectively, prevent strikes, and enforce order when the Germans were exercising political control.

A new plan, therefore, seeks to combine French economic and political authority for a temporary period until the productive capacity of the mines in Northern France is restored, industrial production revived, and the prostration due to the war ended. It is estimated that five years will be required to restore the mines to their normal condition, and this probably gives an idea of the length of the proposed joint control by France. The fact that the control would be temporary would overcome the objection to the plan as contemplating annexation similar to that of Alsace and Lorraine by Germany in 1870.

The proposal was first advanced as concerning the Saar region only, but it is regarded now as equally applicable to the left bank of the Rhine as a possible basis of agreement.

May Avoid Stating Reparation Total.

A new phase of the question of reparations is also being presented in the proposal to avoid stating in the treaty any specific total, and thus escape controversy over the largeness or smallness of the amount. It is said that this may be done by defining the character of the payments over a period of years, without precisely stating the total, and efforts are being made to find a formula which will express this idea.

It is understood that the plan is considered advantageous chiefly for friendly countries, where expectations have been aroused of a total indemnity much larger than is likely to be allowed.

The impression is gaining ground that a formula will be found covering reparation without naming a figure, the suggestion being made of a commission to determine the losses of the different countries.

Most of the day at the Council meeting was given over to the matter of the Rhine frontier and reparations, but the question of the responsibility of the former Emperor and others for the war was touched on for the first time.

The chief remaining details of the reparations questions involve the points whether French and British pensions will be included, and whether the specific amount demanded will be named in the treaty. Indications from one source are that the total will amount to between $20,000,000,000 and $25,000,000,000.

Marshal Foch attended the early session of the council before starting for Spa to meet the German plenipotentiary regarding the landing of Polish troops at Danzig.

Agreement on at least one point seems to have been reached in the discussions. According to the Temps, Germany is not to be permitted to keep garrisons, fortifications, or war factories on the left bank of the Rhine or along a strip of at least thirty miles on the right bank.

The Council of Foreign Ministers, at their meeting this afternoon, received the report of the Peace Conference Commission on Czechoslovak territorial claims and discussed the advisability of holding a plenary session of the conference for a discussion of the report on international labor legislation. The report was made by the commission designated by the full conference and, consequently, it will probably be received at a plenary session.

The Foreign Ministers also considered the question of holding business sessions at Versailles when the German delegates should arrive there. Because of the inadequate heating arrangements and its inconvenient location, there is some doubt whether Versailles would be satisfactory for a business session, although historical reasons make it imperative that the peace treaty be signed there.

Ministers Receive Committees' Reports.

The Aeronautical Commission of the Peace Conference held a meeting Monday to receive and consider reports from sub-committees concerning military, legal, commercial, and technical subjects. It was found that the sub-committees had not completed their work, but the commission approved the temporary reports submitted.

It was agreed to put before the Supreme Council the proposals to be finally submitted at the next meeting by the joint military and legal sub-committee. Good progress has been made in other directions and a substantial agreement has been reached on important points in connection with the future of commercial aviation.

The commission will hold its next meeting Tuesday, when it is expected the general principles and much of the detail of the Interallied Aerial Convention may be settled.

LONDON, April 1.—The preliminary peace treaty will not be submitted to the German delegates at Versailles, according to the latest information received here from French sources. The treaty, it is said, will be handed to the Germans at some town further from Paris, in accordance with the rule governing other conventions since the armistice.

Only the final session, at which signatures will be exchanged, it is declared, will be held at Versailles.

WHAT AUSTRALIA ASKS IN PEACE SETTLEMENT

Control of ex-German Colonies, Some Reimbursement, and Fiscal Freedom—Against Bolshevism.

MELBOURNE, April 1.—Prime Minister Hughes of Australia is striving for three things at the Peace Conference: control of the German colonies in the Pacific, reimbursement of Australia by Germany for some of the costs of the war, and the fiscal freedom of the Commonwealth, according to an address made last night by Acting Prime Minister Watt, before the Victorian Chamber of Manufacturers.

As to the League of Nations, Mr. Watt said that he would make no predictions as to its success, but he felt that the plan carried with it a gospel of full hope for the human race.

"Whether the experiment will work or not," said the Acting Prime Minister, "the Government must work for it for there is everything to gain and nothing to lose by the trial."

A word of comment was added by Mr. Watt on the recent Bolshevist movements in Australia. He said:

"But a League of Nations will not be enough for Australia. What we want is a league of the whole Australian nation to work unitedly for the welfare and safety of the Commonwealth. There is, unfortunately, arising in Australia, a spirit that bids fair to outdo the spirit of Bolshevism. Many thoughtless and unheeding people believe that this new spirit involves the doctrine of the reincarnation of man. But these people are going to one of the least educated countries of the world—Russia—to learn lessons of liberty.

"I do not believe that history will read the accounts of the outbreaks of Bolshevism in any country in the world as anything but an unforgivable crime. The Commonwealth Government will use all the power it has to preserve law and order and prevent the excesses of Bolshevism. If necessary, the Government will even resort to the deportation of undesirable elements. The Government looks for strength in the community to put down illicit exercise of force. I venture to think that the great heart of Australia will remain sound."

Developing his statement concerning the three aims of Prime Minister Hughes at Paris, Mr. Watt said:

"The future of the world for perhaps a century is being settled in Paris. The Prime Minister is there fighting with the full approval of the Australian people for three things.

"The future of the German colonies in the Western Pacific, in the interests both of the safety of the Commonwealth and the well-being of the inhabitants of the possessions, demands that Australia should control them. I believe that the struggle that Prime Minister Hughes has carried on since last November will work in favor of Australia. I think he will be granted mandatory control of the colonies, possession of which means everything to the security of future generations of this country.

"The Prime Minister is also advocating Australia's legitimate claims against the broken German Empire and people for reimbursement of some of the costs of the war. If these claims are not advanced strenuously and successfully, two or three generations in Australia will have to bear the blighting effect of a huge burden of taxation.

"Mr. Hughes is also fighting for the fiscal freedom of this part of the British Empire. Speaking without the slightest hesitation for a unanimous cabinet, I can say that whatever be the basis of peace, Australia cannot surrender its fiscal rights but must control its own destinies in this matter. It must have the right as an intelligent and progressive democracy to determine under what conditions and standards of comfort its people shall live."

In a further development of his point concerning the fiscal freedom of the commonwealth, Mr. Watt said:

"The Federal parliament will meet as early as the deliberations of the Peace Conference will permit and deal with the question of the commonwealth tariff. Australia requires to be made more replete in respect to necessary industries, primary and secondary, than it has been in the past."

FOCH STARTS FOR SPA.

Will Discuss with Erzberger Landing of Polish Troops at Danzig.

PARIS, April 1.—Marshal Foch left Paris tonight for Spa to meet Mathias Erzberger to discuss with him the allied demand that Polish troops be permitted to use the port of Danzig. The Marshal has received full powers to negotiate with the German representative. He will be in constant communication with the Council of Four.

The Interallied Shipping Commission has completed preparations to transport the Polish troops to Danzig.

The Germans are concentrating large forces in Eastern Prussia under command of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to the Paris edition of The New York Herald. The German forces are being gathered in Graudenz and Thorn in order to defend the railway line from Danzig to Posen.

BERLIN, March 31, (Associated Press.)—The German Armistice Commission held a meeting here today for final discussion of export questions in relation to the importing of food. Mathias Erzberger, the President of the commission, presided.

The meeting took up the last two allied notes concerning the embargo list, the partial elimination of the blacklist and the question of exports of all kinds, especially those of wood, sugar, paper and coal.

In the forenoon the President had a conference with Josephus W. Daniels, the Secretary of the Navy, before the latter's departure for Italy.

FRENCH PRESS AGAIN BECOMES ASSERTIVE

PREMIER'S HOLD STRONGER

Backing of Radical Socialists Encourages Clemenceau's Course on Terms.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 1.—There has been a marked change in the tone of the French press in the last few days, culminating today in a note of firmness and optimism which is in striking contrast to the anxiety and peasimism last week.

"France Maintains Her Claims," runs a headline in the Journal, and the Echo de Paris has: "Our Alliance and the Left Bank of the Rhine," with a subhead, "General Solution Appears."

In another column there is the caption, "We Must Have the Saar," followed by an interview had by Marcel Hutin with a "highly competent person" who plumps solidly for annexation on the grounds, firstly, that the Saar coal is absolutely necessary to France because her own mines have been ruined by the Germans, and as Germany cannot pay for the damage in cash it is only right that she should pay in kind; and, secondly, that any "transactional solution" giving France the exploitation of the coal fields without annexation would be the shortest and surest route to future trouble with Germany. M. Hutin adds:

"Just then I saw an extremely well informed diplomat and told him what we were discussing. With a joyful face he cried, 'Don't worry; the negotiations are going well. The problem of Saar is almost settled. And as for the Rhine frontier question Foch was heard today and made a powerful expose of the question.'"

The Figaro states that the Council of Four is now at the very heart of the biggest problems. Without expecting the whole affair to be settled immediately, it adds, the French can put full trust in Clemenceau's unbreakable defense of France's interest. He has the whole country behind him and will not weaken.

The writer uses the argument that the satisfaction of French claims regarding the Rhine frontier and the Saar Valley would be too great a humiliation for Germany by the reminder that the loss of her colonies and fleet were humiliations equally great. He implies that she has no right to oppose similar measures for France's indemnification and security.

As in the Echo and the Journal the tone of the article is very different from the somewhat peevish pessimism of last week.

The truth is the general situation has been influenced by two factors. The first was the triumph of the Government, which was obtained without the need of Clemenceau's personal intervention in the night debate of Saturday. The final vote rallied the whole House to the Government banner with the exception of the Socialists who have throughout the present administration made a point of personal hostility to the Premier.

A great impression was created by the brief announcement of the Radical Socialist chief, Rene Renoult, that his group would support the Government with full confidence. In the circumstances this was equivalent to a declaration that the Radical Socialists approved and supported the Premier's advocacy of France's claims in the Peace Conference. It strengthened the latter's hand enormously, because the Radical Socialists, whom Americans might call advanced liberals and who must not be confounded with the Socialists, are the most powerful party in the Chamber, with 150 members.

When they were elected in the Spring of 1914 Caillaux was the party's undisputed master and their platform was pacific and opposed to the three years' service law, which Barthou had forced through at the previous session. That they are now solidly behind Clemenceau is declared to be unmistakable evidence that he stands for the country and that the claims he is advancing represent France's wishes.

The second factor in the situation is that Lloyd George's opposition to the French claims has greatly weakened. In British circles it is whispered that the Premier has been considerably upset by the recent British press attitude, which shows sympathy with the French claims.

HITCHCOCK CERTAIN COVENANT WILL WIN

Predicts Amendments of Draft That Will Insure Acceptance by the Senate.

ONLY PARIS CAN MAKE THEM

Kenyon, Back in Capital, Says Iowans Want Defense of Our Integrity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared in a speech tonight before the Commercial Club here his confidence that the League covenant would go before the Senate so amended as to fulfill the expectations of the American people, and that it would be accepted by the Senate.

Mr. Hitchcock, who spoke in reply to a recent speech by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, maintained that the opposition had faded away into mere criticism of the various features of the League, with no concerted force of attack, and that the bulk of Americans were not in sympathy with the assaults made upon it.

Unless the amendments contemplated were made at Paris, Mr. Hitchcock said, the opportunity to include them would probably be gone, as the covenant could not be amended once it had been decided upon by the Peace Conference without greatly delaying the entire program of the treaty of peace. So, he said, no matter in what form the covenant reached the Senate, it would undoubtedly be accepted.

Mr. Hitchcock spoke of the entire nation as being "practically unanimous" for some sort of a League of Nations even before the armistice was signed so as to prevent a repetition of a world war. This sentiment, he said, prevailed when President Wilson, in January, 1918, advocated a League as one of the fourteen proposals upon which America would make peace with Germany.

"No sooner, however, had the nations of the world sent their delegates to Paris to commence consideration of the subject of a League of Nations than opposition developed," Mr. Hitchcock said. "One of the curious features of this opposition is its variety and inconsistency. A few oppose the League on principle, and declare they are opposed to having the United States enter into any international agreement with the other nations of the world and bind itself in any manner to co-operation with them. So far as I know, only three members of the Senate take this position, and apparently they have not a very large following.

"The rest of the country has learned the lesson that, whenever the world is shaken by a great war, the United States is necessarily involved. We have learned that, however much we may ourselves desire to avoid war, we are likely to have it forced upon us, as it was two years ago. Having learned this, we know that if wars are to remain upon the program of the world we must prepare for them, and that is precisely what the people of the United States seek to avoid.

Calls the League a Compromise.

"We have every possible form of objection raised by those who say they favor a league, but not this particular League," the Senator declared. "From this great variety of criticism and opposition we can gather that this particular League is a compromise—which, indeed, it is—between the nations of the world entering into it.

"There will be opposition in Japan because Japan has not had success in getting recognition of race equality or a provision against race discrimination. There will be opposition in France, because France has not succeeded in having the League Constitution provide for a standing army and a big navy, and because it does not even provide for a military staff, as France has demanded.

"There will be opposition in a number of countries because the colonies taken from Germany do not become prizes of war and become wards of the League under the trusteeship of certain nations. There will undoubtedly be opposition in Germany because Germany is not at first to be admitted to the League, but only allowed to come in after probation.

"All this opposition testifies that the League is an international creation and represents a compromise between different nations bent upon the same idea of preventing war."

Senator Hitchcock said he might forecast some of the amendments which would be made to satisfy public opinion.

"I assume that one objection will be removed by the insertion," he said, "of a definite provision reserving to any nation the power to withdraw from the League on giving reasonable notice.

"I assume another objection will be removed by a provision specifically reserving to each individual nation the control over its domestic affairs, including, of course, immigration.

"I presume that another criticism will be answered by inserting a few words making it clear that the recommendation for the reduction of armament made by the Executive Council does not go into effect until each nation has, through its constituted authorities, adopted it.

"Another objection I think will be removed by making it clear that no decision of the Executive Council, nor of the League, binding on any nation, will be made except by unanimous vote."

Senator Lenroot, who has just returned from a stumping tour of Wisconsin against the League covenant, said that sentiment in his State, while favoring some form of league to prevent world war, was opposed, three to one, to the League as proposed by the Paris delegates.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who has also returned from a speaking trip in the Middle West, said that sentiment in his State was the same as in Wisconsin.

"The people of Iowa want to be sure the Monroe Doctrine is preserved and they feel that this is not assured in the present draft of the League of Nations," he said. "They want specific clauses that will preserve the integrity, the independence of the United States."

MANY ADDITIONS TO DRAFT

does not relinquish its traditional attitude toward purely American questions is apparently regarded with considerable favor in American official circles. The delegates are also well impressed by the proposed amendment providing for the revision of the convention within not less than five years or more than ten years.

The suggestion for the signature of the covenant by the United States with reservations designed to insure the safety of the Monroe Doctrine and safeguard American immigration laws, it was pointed out, involves no new procedure, as the reservations would be somewhat similar to those with which the Algeciras treaty was signed.

Mr. Root's proposed amendments were in the hands of the American peace delegation for several days before they were published in the United States. They had been carefully considered by the delegates, who expressed their appreciation of this definite and constructive criticism.

neighbor of Germany would not be safe without such a military safeguard.

"But, M. Bourgeois," said President Wilson, "France will not be alone. Germany will have other neighbors. There will be, for example, Poland and Czechoslovakia, which we must make strong."

French Criticism of Lloyd George.

This fear of Lloyd George is particularly keen in France. He is now getting all the privately spoken criticism of the French statemen and accusations from the French press that were formerly directed against Wilson. This despite the fact that France is not at all sure that Wilson does not agree in every particular with Lloyd George so far as the Rhine boundary is concerned. Those who express French opinion are precise as to the day and hour and moment of which they speak, taking always into consideration the fact that what is true today may be false tomorrow.

For example, this morning a member of the French Foreign Office said to me:

"On Friday, three days ago, Lloyd George expressed his willingness to give France the coal output of the Saar Valley, but not the territory itself. That would be economically an impossible combination. Also, three days ago he was not willing to take the territory on the west bank of the Rhine away from Germany to make it an independent State, but said he would consent to some form of guarantee to France that the territory should never be used against us as the starting point of an invasion, or any other military operations. No such guarantees would be adequate if the west bank were still politically a part of Germany. But that was three days ago. We hope Lloyd George will improve."

When asked if President Wilson did not feel the same way as Lloyd George on the whole Rhine question, the French statesman said he did not know. But, as a matter of fact, nearly every expression of American opinion that has been made public in Paris is against France on this question.

Much of what you hear in Paris about this peace-making is false or ridiculous on the face of it. Much more is axgrinding propaganda that was interesting four months ago, when it first began to flood the town. But when the same opinion or bit of speculation comes from two sources which not only are not working together, but are fighting each other, it may be interesting enough to cable, even if it does seem so sensational as to be unbelievable.

Threat of France-German Alliance.

For illustration, in connection with this same widespread feeling about Lloyd George's attitude and its possible bearing on the future history of Europe and the world, an Eastern European diplomat declared that if Lloyd George succeeded in giving Germany the sort of peace that would make her stronger than other Continental countries, the reaction would eventually be against England herself, and that France would be driven for self-protection into a humiliating alliance with Germany and Russia. This man took it for granted that the German-Russian combination was now an assured thing, no matter what the Peace Conference might do.

With some hesitation, for fear that he might be resentful, I asked a French diplomat what he thought of such a speculation.

"It is a reasonable one," he replied. "Lloyd George is afraid of his people at home and afraid of Germany commercially in the future. He hopes to placate both by an easy peace for the enemy. France is also afraid of Germany, but thinks the only way to make that fear groundless is to make it impossible for her to dominate us in future either by trade, industry, or war. Lloyd George seems to think the opposite course is better and safer. He is showing poor statesmanship, not only from the French but the British point of view. The truth, which he does not seem to realize, is that Germany hates England much more than she hates France. England is her real rival.

"Whatever the cause of his mistakes may be, if Lloyd George forces a peace not adequate, France will eventually be forced into the humiliating alliance with Germany and Russia. Nothing would please Germany more. Nothing would be more loathsome to France; but in no other direction could we find protection with our 40,000,000 population against Germany with her 80,000,000 in control of Russia. Under such conditions the other Continental States would not count."

It did not occur either to this Frenchman or the Easterner to refer to the League of Nations as a possible protection against the things they dreaded.

BRITISH INDEMNITY CLAIMS.

Lloyd George Said to be Alone in Extreme Demands.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 1.—I cabled a fortnight ago respecting Lloyd George's insistence upon heavy reparation for Great Britain and his demand that the amount should be fixed in the treaty terms. This is still the immediate sticking point in the peace proceedings. There are other questions of far greater magnitude, particularly the guarantees of security for France, but much of the responsibility for the present delay rests on Lloyd George.

He is said to be practically alone in the British delegation in pressing the reparation claim to such extremes. He is making it a personal matter, and his position is the outgrowth of his campaign promises in the Parliamentary elections.

Our cordial relations with the British are unaffected, but Americans are surprised at the tenacity with which the great Premier holds to this comparatively petty point in the face of recent grave developments. They are getting an inside view of English politics that is far from edifying.

WON'T ACT IN LEA CASE.

Baker Leaves Pershing to Deal with Attempted Kidnapping.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The War Department is contemplating no action against Colonel Luke Lea, of the 114th Field Artillery, or the members of the party which he led to the castle where the former German Kaiser is living in Holland, for the purpose of kidnapping him as a Christmas present for President Wilson. From the attitude of high officials of the department today it is apparent that, as matters now stand, they do not feel that anything should be done about the matter. In all probability Colonel Lea will be out of the military service of the United States within a week, and it will then be impossible to reach him through War Department channels, even if such a wish existed.

Secretary Baker, when asked about the matter, said he was contemplating no action, and assumed that any action necessary to be taken had been already taken by the military authorities in France. He said there were official reports in the War Department dealing with the matter, but he did not care to make them public, as they related to personal matters.

The War Department, it was ascertained from another source, has received various reports on the incident. Some of them mentioned American officers by name, others dealing with the escapade anonymously. Some of these reports came from Holland, some came through State Department channels, which gave summaries of stories printed in Holland dealing with the case, and some through military intelligence channels. While all these reports showed that a party of American officers went to the castle, and one of them said they sent their cards to the former Kaiser, none of them showed the purpose of the trip.

WILL ARREST AMERICANS.

Spohr and Wife Accused of Pro-German Treason in Palestine.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary Baker has approved a request of the British military authorities in Turkey that they be permitted to arrest on charges of treason James Spohr, a naturalized American citizen, and his wife, declared officially to have been "closely associated with the head of the German spy system in Palestine and among British Indian subjects."

The plan is to have the couple brought to the United States for trial. Because the United States and Turkey have not been at war the arrests could not be made by the American military authorities, but the Judge Advocate General's office held that the British Military Commission, "under the common law of military occupation," could carry out its plan of taking Spohr and his wife into custody and turning them over to the United States.

Spohr, said to be of German origin, has been employed as a professor at the Saiadin Ayoub University in Jerusalem. His wife is of Scotch birth, but, according to the charges, is known to have lived at German Headquarters. Both are accused of having engaged in violent anti-British and anti-American propaganda, principally through speech-making and distribution of inflammatory literature.

INDORSERS OF LEAGUE PLAN

List of 204 Organizations Sent to President Wilson.

The League to Enforce Peace has sent to President Wilson, in Paris, a list of 204 organizations in the various States indorsing the establishment of a League of Nations. The list, it was said, was of those organizations whose messages were received in the first three weeks of March and represented only a small portion of those which have approved of the League.

Here is the letter:

His Excellency, the President of the United States, Place de la Concorde, Paris, France.

Dear Mr. President: The League to Enforce Peace sends you herewith a list of 204 organizations from which we have received, during the first three weeks of March, copies of resolutions indorsing the establishment of a League of Nations.

The significance of this list lies not in its size—we have reason to believe that these 204 organizations are only a small portion of all that have adopted such resolutions during this period—but in its variety and wide geographical distribution. It represents twenty-six States and almost every kind of group in which our people are associated.

None of these resolutions calls for changes in the Paris covenant. A large proportion of them specifically favor the Paris plan. The rest support the general principles of a League.

Similar resolutions are reaching this office every day in increasing numbers. More than 400 have been received since the publication of the Paris covenant. They come from national, State, and local organizations and include such important groups as the National Grange, the American Economic Association, the Farmers National Council, the Farmers Educational Co-operative Union of America, the American Society of Equity, and others of equal size and influence. Yours very respectfully,

LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE,
WILLIAM H. SHORT, Secretary.

The New York State organizations listed are: Women's Club of New Rochelle; Walton Chapter, D. A. R.; Meeting of Members of Calvary Baptist Church, Norwich; Congregation of Talmud Torah, Elmira; Board of Trustees of High Street Temple, Elmira; First Methodist Church of Elmira, Big Flats Grange No. 1106, Marathon Grange No. 455, Marathon; Westfield Grange No. 109, Westfield; Women's Civic League of Hudson Falls, Community Lectureship of Central Church of Disciples of New York, and the Park Church Women's Guild of Elmira.

PLAN ROOSEVELT EXHIBIT.

Colonel's MSS. and Game Trophies to be on View at Columbia.

Plans for the Roosevelt Memorial Exhibition to be held during May and June in Avery Hall, Columbia University, were announced last night by Professor W. A. Braun, who is directing the exhibition. The literary branch of the exhibition which will consist of literature relating the life of Colonel Roosevelt, including manuscripts of his own books and speeches will be under the direction of Joseph P. Bishop, Colonel Roosevelt's biographer, it was said.

Another section of the exhibition, which will contain trophies of Colonel Roosevelt's "big game" expeditions in Africa, South America, and the West, will be arranged by Carl Akeley, a big game hunter, who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on his trip to Africa. The decorations for the exhibition rooms will be designed by William A. Bering, Professor of Architecture at Columbia University. Herman Hagedorn, one of Colonel Roosevelt's biographers, will write a souvenir booklet of the exhibition. Professor Braun requested all persons who had any articles relating to Colonel Roosevelt which they would lend to the exhibition to communicate with him at once at Columbia University.

REBUFFS SOCIALIST IDEAS ON LEAGUE

Cecil Demurs on Hastening the Entrance of Germany and Russia.

NOT FOR MANDATE DELAY

He Says Only Stable Governments Can Be Admitted to New Organization.

PARIS, April 1.—Lord Robert Cecil, the British authority on a League of Nations, today met a committee from the International Socialist Conference recently held in Berne and received various amendments which the members of the committee desired to be included in the covenant.

The committee was composed of Arthur Henderson, G. H. Stuart Bunning and J. Ramsey Macdonald for Great Britain; Jean Longuet and Pierre Renaudel for France; Hjalmar Branting for Sweden, and Camille Huysmans for Belgium. The committee claimed to speak for the Socialists of twenty-six countries represented at the Berne congress.

Among the principal amendments that the Socialists proposed was the introduction of a provision facilitating the entry into the League as soon as possible of Germany and Russia, which they believed to be essential to disarmament and the prevention of the spread of anarchy. To this Lord Robert replied that it was impossible to admit States without stable Governments.

The committee proposed the supervision of disarmament, to which Lord Robert replied by giving the reasons which had led the League of Nations Commission to reject a proposal for the continuous international inspection of armaments.

Proposals were also presented respecting the method of choosing delegates to the League, the committee expressing the belief that nomination by the Governments would not be representative. They said they preferred the elective system. Lord Robert explained that this question was for the various States to decide themselves.

Regarding war, the committee thought that it should be abolished, except where the League itself made war to enforce its mandates. Lord Robert agreed in principle, but thought that the world had not yet attained the development to make it practicable and possible.

Other points presented were the belief that mandates should be defined in detail before territory was handed over to a mandatory Government and that no mandates should be given until all nations had been admitted to the League. In reply, Lord Robert said he believed that all mandates would be defined in special treaties before the mandatory power undertook its functions of Government, but he dwelt upon the necessity for the appointment of mandates in many cases as soon as possible.

The committee expressed a desire that the League undertake the distribution of raw materials in order to prevent economic inequality, and finally voiced the hope that peace would be concluded speedily.

The Executive Committee of the Berne Conference and the committee charged with carrying out the resolutions adopted at the conference, at a meeting here today, decided to appoint a permanent committee to meet at Amsterdam on April 28 to examine questions left unsettled by the Executive Committee. At the meeting in Amsterdam, it was agreed, a call should be issued for another Socialist congress to be held in Switzerland in August. The principal question to be discussed will be the revival of the Socialist Internationale.

MINERS TO SEE WILSON.

Will Confer in Paris on Increasing Our Coal Sales Abroad.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Frank J. Hayes, President of the United Mine Workers of America, will sail for France within a few days to confer with President Wilson, who will be asked to use his influence to increase the consumption abroad of American coal.

The opening of new fields for American coal, in the opinion of the miners' officials, is necessary to prevent any further unemployment in the industry. Many mines are now said to be working part time, due to overproduction, which may become so extensive as to result in further curtailment of mining.

GERMANY GETS FIRST FOOD SUPPLY

Allied Relief Shipment, Including Lard, Bacon, and Flour, Leaves Rotterdam.

SECRETARY BRAUN HOPEFUL

Says Negotiations Next Will Be for Exports from His Country, Including Dyestuffs.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 1.—The first shipment of foodstuffs, including lard, bacon, and flour, left Rotterdam for Germany today, in accordance with the agreement reached at Spa on Feb. 8.

In this agreement it was arranged that direct negotiations should take place at Rotterdam between the German delegates and the delegates of the associated powers, and the Germans named Rabbow, who had been leader of the Commercial Committee at The Hague during the war, to assist their representatives. The American, English, and French delegates were assisted by numerous experts and merchants, including Walter Brown, head of the American Commission for Relief at Rotterdam, and the agreements made in Brussels were dealt with in detail.

Yesterday State Secretary Braun arrived at The Hague with the German commission. He said that the negotiations went off very smoothly and the German delegates were optimistic regarding a final settlement. He said also that arrangements were discussed for keeping the supplies of foodstuffs out of the hands of Spartacides and for speedy distribution among the people.

In the Brussels agreement, Herr Braun said, considerable progress had been made, compared with former negotiations, because for the first time the feeding of Germany until the new harvest was taken into consideration.

"The quantities of foodstuffs we are allowed to import are only 70 per cent. of those which the doctors decided were necessary," he added, "but if we really receive these monthly quantities we will manage."

Herr Braun said that lack of fodder for cattle caused great difficulties, but that Mr. Hoover had explained that the cargo space was insufficient to carry foodstuff and fodder, and "so we must be content."

Herr Braun spoke decidedly more hopefully of the general situation in Germany than most of his countrymen are accustomed to do, stating his belief that in half a year the German economic machine would again be in action.

"We are negotiating at Rotterdam about the delivery of separate shipments which were promised us in Brussels," he said. "Today we negotiated for about 50,000 tons. I hope that about 20,000 tons will be shipped next week."

Are you satisfied with the negotiations?" asked THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

"Oh, yes," he replied.

"Are you satisfied with the foodstuffs?"

"We are very well satisfied with the first shipments. Samples of condensed milk and bacon which I myself tried are very good."

"Will you be able to increase rations immediately with the monthly shipment agreed on?"

"If we obtain monthly quantities of 370,000 tons we can raise the ration immediately, and then it is hoped that Germany will become quieter and that labor, mining, and industries will be recommenced."

"How long will it be before the increase in foodstuffs is felt by the whole population?"

"That is a difficult question. I think it will be six weeks before the whole nation feels the improvement. We must first feed the most distressed districts—the big towns and industrial centres. The first shipments will go to Berlin, Hamburg, Dresden, and Leipsic."

"Do you think these first shipments will have an influence on Bolshevism?"

"Most certainly I hope that it will have a quieting effect."

"Do you consider the danger of Bolshevism imminent?"

"Bolshevism is now on the German frontiers and the danger of contagion is great for a people so anxious about its future. It must also be considered that the moral resistance of the German people has been weakened by the privations which they endured during the war. This is not only a layman's view, but also that of our first medical authorities, who also promise results from better feeding."

Herr Braun said he would leave tomorrow, but return later, when the decisions of the financial conference taking place in Paris were made known.

"These decisions," he went on, "will be of importance for the import of foodstuffs, because they will settle our means of payment. The sums which we have sent up to the present are 125,000,000 marks in gold to Rotterdam and 11,000,000 marks deposited in Brussels and they are together about sufficient for one month's foodstuffs. For further payments German shipping and foreign bonds and shares in Germany, which have been called in will be used also and allied payments for potash, wood, and other articles will be used as credits for foodstuffs. Negotiations will soon take place regarding exports from Germany, especially dyestuffs for America and England."

"What are you sending to America?"

"We have submitted a long list of exportable articles, but we do not yet know exactly what America desires."

Herr Braun stated his opinion that there was little danger of Austria becoming affected by Bolshevism, and he did not believe a large Bolshevist army could come from the east, he said. He believed the German people would soon recover from this sickness, but added that the Germans would be a poor nation and must learn economy and work hard.

WATTERSON WANTS TO QUIT

Offers Resignation to The Courier-Journal—League the Cause.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 1.—The Louisville Courier-Journal tonight announced that Henry Watterson, the editor of the paper since 1868, and editor emeritus since last August, had requested that he be retired. Mr. Watterson recently passed his seventy-ninth birthday.

The newspaper said the editor's action was partly due to his variance with The Courier-Journal officials on the proposed League of Nations, he being against the Paris proposals, while the officials favored them.

JAPAN WARNS CHINA ON SECRET AGREEMENT

Threat to Hold Peking Financially Responsible Causes Postponement of Disclosures.

PEKING, March 27, (Associated Press.)—The Japanese Minister here has warned the Chinese Government that if the premature disclosure of secret documents by China causes loss to Japanese financial and commercial interests, Japan will hold China responsible for such loss.

As the result, the Chinese Government has further postponed the contemplated publication of secret agreements between China and Japan.

American and British agreements with China, which were not regarded as secret, were published officially this week.

Since their arrival in Paris the Chinese delegates to the Peace Conference have been urging the publication of all the secret agreements between China and Japan. The attitude of Japan has been one of opposition, although it was reported in a Reuter dispatch received in London on Feb. 12 from Tokio that Baron Makino, head of the Japanese delegation in Paris, had been instructed to disclose all unpublished treaties.

Diplomatic information which reached Washington early in February indicated that Japan had virtually threatened war if China made public the secret treaties and failed to carry out an arrangement to make Japan the successor of Germany in rights, property, and concessions in China.

On March 16 treaties between China and Japan respecting railroad concessions in Manchuria and Northeastern China were published simultaneously in Peking and Tokio.

HAYS SUPPORTS MANN OPPONENTS

Promises His Help in Move to Reorganize Republican Steering Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The same influences which were prominent in defeating Representative James R. Mann for Speaker, it is declared, favor enlargement of the House Steering Committee to include representatives of labor, the progressive element and the Middle Western Republicans. This means that Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, believe that the party would be strengthened if the Steering Committee, which decides on legislation and House procedure, were increased and liberalized.

This program, which is an echo of the Gillett-Mann contest, today received the approval of Mr. Hays who, at a conference following a dinner given by Representative Nicholas Longworth last night, discussed every phase of the subject and the effect that a committee controlled by Mann would have upon sentiment in the country. It is understood that Mr. Hays promised his support for a reorganization of the Steering Committee. He does not commit himself to the individuals suggested by the reorganizers.

Mr. Hays, who has been touring the country, in his talk with the Republicans last night referred to the fact that the "Republicans are on trial," and that success at the last election did not "justify a return to old-time methods." The opinion was also expressed by the Chairman of the Republican National Committee that the Republicans must devote themselves to constructive legislation and avoid the natural inclination of too many Congressmen for playing "cheap partisan politics." The Republican leaders are opposed to opening the floodgates to investigations of the conduct of the war, and the only investigations that will be countenanced by the responsible Republican leaders in the House will be those necessary in order to effect reforms.

After the conference that Mr. Hays had last night, which was attended by Speaker-elect Gillett, it was announced by Mr. Longworth before he left Washington today that he expected to renew his demand in the Republican caucus for an enlargement of the Steering Committee to nine. This caucus, he said, would be held a week before the special session. He was confident that the Republicans would agree to a larger committee.

The impression prevails that the Mann forces will make no objection to the move. Representative Reavis of Nebraska intends to offer a substitute for the resolution which will be offered in the caucus by Representative Johnson of South Dakota. Mr. Johnson's resolution calls for a committee of nine instead of five, and names the four additional members for the Steering Committee. Mr. Reavis's amendment will call for a committee of nine and will leave the naming of the additional four to the Committee on Committees.

One of Mr. Mann's friends said tonight that he would not oppose increasing the size of the Steering Committee if the caucus favors it, and that the interests of labor and the progressives would be consulted in such a move.

Mr. Mann will be the master of the legislative situation, and as such intends to get through in the special session an amendment granting women suffrage. He will make this his one supreme legislative effort, and there are some Republicans who now predict that Mr. Mann will be able to remove objections raised to him in the recent contest and be elected Speaker of the House two years hence.

POGROMS ON POLISH BORDER

Many Jews Said to Have Been Wounded—Shops and Homes Looted

LONDON, April 1.—New anti-Jewish outbreaks have occurred at Kalish, on the former border between Poland and Germany, and at Busk and Wielum, according to information received by the Zionist organization here. A large number of Jews are said to have been wounded, while Jewish shops and homes were plundered and damaged.

Citizens, militia, and soldiers, the reports say, were indifferent or took part in the rioting against the Jews.

ALLIES AGAIN DEFEAT REDS IN THE NORTH

Bolsheviki Are Mowed Down by Their Own Machine Guns as They Retreat.

FOUR FRENCHMEN REPEL 80

Hold a Blockhouse Against Repeated Attacks—Train Bombed by Allied Airplane.

ARCHANGEL, March 31, (Associated Press.)—Bolshevist troops, after a heavy bombardment Sunday of the allied positions on the railway front and southy of Odozerskaia, attacked, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The attack was repulsed completely by the allied fire.

The retiring Bolsheviki were met by their own machine-gun fire, while the allied artillery dispersed various groups of the enemy.

An allied airplane discovered six trains three miles south of the front line and attacked one of them with bombs. A locomotive and a stretch of the track were destroyed.

A little garrison of four French soldiers in an outlying blockhouse guarding one of the allied flanks near the front line yesterday repeatedly repulsed attacks by eighty Bolshevist infantrymen who had slipped through the woods and attempted a surprise.

The weather was mild and sunshiny, and an enemy observation balloon was up almost all day spotting the effects of shells. An enemy airplane dropped a bomb on a village north of Odozerskaia, but no damage resulted.

The allied positions along the front line are strong, with blockhouses guarding the flanks and snow trenches built up with log barricades, while there are ample dugouts to shelter all the allied forces. The troops holding this front include considerable numbers of American, French, British, and new Russian troops. The allied artillery here is probably equal to that of the enemy's.

West of Odozerskaia, the allied artillery is still shelling Bolshoia Ozera, and a number of explosions occurred in that village on Sunday.

BURLESON RESENTS CRITICISM AS UNFAIR

Much of That Launched Against Him Had No Just Foundation, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Emphatic answer to the critics of the Post Office Department under his administration was made today by Postmaster General Burleson before a conference of representatives of business organizations and the Postal Service. He invited criticism, he said, but many criticisms made were "specious" and unfounded.

With the exception of the taking over of the wire systems, the Postmaster General reviewed nearly all the changes in practice instituted during his administration. He asserted that of all the postal establishments of belligerent countries "America's, and hers alone, is the one that did not break down to a certain extent."

"We organized an efficient postal service in France," he declared.

Alluding to the enforcement of the Espionage act, he said:

"To exclude from the mails treasonable and seditious matter it became necessary for Postmasters to read not only the English papers, but to acquaint themselves with the contents of newspapers regardless of whether they were printed in Hungarian, Polish, Italian, French, Yiddish, or what not. That was the most undesirable task ever imposed upon the postal establishment. But we got away with it! Notwithstanding the Postmaster General was denounced from one end of the country to the other as an autocrat, a tyrant, and a person who was constantly practicing arbitrary acts, we enforced that law with moderation, with justice, and with fairness."

Readjustment of parcel post and space basis for mail were reviewed by the Postmaster General. Alluding to the latter change in practice, he said:

"Immediately the sluice gates of criticism and denunciation, not to use stronger terms, were opened and directed against the head of the Postal Department, as being a man lacking in vision and business qualifications. That seems to be the chord upon which they delight to play, that I am lacking in business qualifications. So successful were they in resisting what the department was contending for that they strangled the great appropriation bill3 for the postal establishment that year, and for the first time in its history the department was operated under a continuing resolution."

Abandonment of the pneumatic tubes and the increase in second-class mail rates were defended by Mr. Burleson. Of the second-class rate, he said:

"It is just and fair, and I stand for it, and it will not be repealed because of any action on my part, regardless of how widespread the criticism may be or how denunciatory its terms."

SCHOOLS BANISH KAISER'S PICTURE

Prussian Minister of Education Also Forbids the Display of Ex-Crown Prince's Likeness.

BERLIN OFFICIALS PROTEST

Announcement Made That Children Shall Not Be Subjected to Political Propaganda.

BERLIN, March 31, (Associated Press.)—All the Prussian district and provincial Government school authorities have been notified by Herr Haenisch, the Minister of Religion and Education, that pictures of former Emperor William and the former Crown Prince may no longer be hung in the schoolroom.

The order originated from an incident in an East Prussian school, where the teacher put the former Emperor's picture in an attic after the revolution, but was ordered by the authorities to hang it up again, whereupon he entered a protest. The Minister, in reply, said it was not permitted to restore such pictures.

In his order, Herr Haenisch said that the Government did not intend to be iconoclastic, but must insist that the schools not be used, directly or indirectly, for propaganda against new State regulation. Such propaganda, he added, was contained in the display of pictures and busts of the former Emperor and the former Crown Prince. He said that the new Government from the beginning had repudiated the practice of persecuting officials and teachers for their political beliefs, and that he would proceed against every case of political harassment coming to his attention.

The Socialist Vorwärts greets the order warmly, and suggests that it be extended so that likenesses of the former Emperor be removed everywhere, especially where no special difficulties are involved. The paper says it is a good sign that teachers now have the right of direct complaint to the Minister, and that countless teachers will again breathe more freely.

The School Directors of Berlin are up in arms against Minister Haenisch over the incident.

KAISER IN A SCHOOL BOOK.

His Portrait Found "Inserted" by Montana School Authorities.

HELENA, Mont., April 1.—Finding of a halftone picture of William Hohenzollern, formerly the German Emperor, in a copy of "The Easy Road to Reading," a textbook used in some Montana schools, has started an investigation by State authorities. While only one copy of the book has been received here from Fort Benton, where a school teacher discovered the picture, State authorities understand that the full consignment of books sent to that town contained the portrait.

The picture, printed on heavy paper, was "inserted" in the book and not printed with the text. Nor was reference to it made in the text.

The theory here is that the pictures were placed in the books in the mailing room of the house publishing the textbook or at some point in the channels of distribution. State officials blame German propagandists and not the publishers.

$5,000 OF NEW BONDS ARE TO BE TAX EXEMPT

Not $50,000 Worth, as a Telegraphic Error Made It Appear —Ready Market for Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Considerable attention has been attracted by the announcement made last night that the War Finance Corporation will offer, beginning tomorrow morning, $200,000,000 worth of 5 per cent. bonds. It is now expected that the bonds will be disposed of without trouble. The proceeds will not be formally segregated for any definite purpose, but it was confirmed officially today that a large amount probably would be needed to finance foreign trade.

Among the important tax exemption provisions made is one exempting the interest on $5,000 worth of bonds held by any person from all income taxes, surtaxes, excess profits taxes, and war profits taxes. In THE TIMES this morning an error in telegraph transmission made the amount, the interest on which would be exempted from such taxes, appear to be $50,000. The official announcement was that "the interest on $5,000 worth of them [the bonds] owned by any person will be entirely exempt from all income taxes, surtaxes, excess profits or war profits taxes."

In discussing the issues today, Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance Corporation, stated that the proceeds were to be used for general purposes of the corporation. Large amounts of money, for instance, he said, are being used for advances to the railroads. Other large sums are being used under the authorization of the Government bonds in the market, and it is also expected that considerable amounts may be needed to finance foreign trade, although no such advances have yet been made.

AMERICANS IN RUSSIA DECORATED BY BRITAIN

Four Officers and Eighteen Men of Northern Force Honored for Gallantry in Action.

ARCHANGEL, March 30, (Associated Press.)—Four officers and eighteen men of the American forces in Northern Russia have been decorated by the British Government for gallantry in action in the campaign about Shenkursk in January, and in the fighting about Kadish.

Military Crosses were awarded to Second Lieutenants H. D. McPhail of Petoskey, Mich.; C. B. Ryan of Detroit, J. A. Commons of Madison, Wis., all of the 339th Infantry, and B. A. Burns of Edgewater, N. J., of the 310th Engineers.

Distinguished Conduct Medals were given to Sergeants F. W. Wolfe of Detroit, G. M. Walker of Rockford, Tenn., and A. V. Tibbals of Beaverton, Mich.

Military Medals were awarded to Sergeant E. J. Herman of Boyne City, Mich.; Sergeant J. A. Nees of Detroit, Sergeant E. P. Trombley of Detroit, Sergeant L. Bartels of Holland, Mich.; Corporal H. T. Danielson of Detroit, Corporal J. Franczac of Edwardsville, Penn.; Corporal F. W. Wilke of New Baltimore, Mich.; Corporal J. Steyskal of Detroit, Corporal J. S. Manderfield of Hancock, Mich.; Mechanic A. J. Hern of Milwaukee, Private E. E. Hellman of Chicago, and Bugler C. J. Compas of Medina, N. Y.

Meritorious Service Medals were given to Sergeant L. S. Schneider of Tecumseh, Mich.; Sergeant V. B. Roger of Plainview, Texas, and Sergeant F. W. Yates of Highland Park, Mich.

Lieutenant McPhail, under a heavy rifle, artillery, and machine-gun fire, organized at Ust Padenga a rescue party which voluntarily went forward between the lines and rescued wounded men who were lying in an open field and unable to move. Lieutenant Burns, although an officer of the engineer force, took command of an infantry platoon, combined its remnants with his own detachment, and bravely fought a rearguard action along the road from Ust Padenga. Sergeants Tibbals and Herman and Corporal Manderfield, also of the engineers, were decorated for their gallantry under similar circumstances.

Lieutenants Ryan and Commons, with fifteen men, stuck to their posts, although all the others had retreated, and, fighting stubbornly, saved the situation during an allied attack on Kadish. Sergeant Ness took command of a platoon during the fighting about Shenkorsk, although wounded, and continued in charge.

At Ust Padenga Sergeant Trombley advanced between the lines under fire time after time and rescued wounded comrades. Later he was himself wounded, but continued his duties. Corporals Danielson and Franczac, at Ust Padenga, after their machine-gun post was demolished by enemy shellfire, took their gun into the open and continued to fire upon the advancing enemy infantry. Franczac's hand was blown off, but he continued at his post until exhausted. Danielson also stuck stubbornly until assistance arrived. Mechanic Horn, at Ust Padenga, went back and forth between the lines, carrying munitions to a post which had been cut off, and afterward volunteered and reached wounded comrades. He continued this work until overcome by shell shock.

Bugler Compas, during the retreat to Shenkursk, carried messages under fire to a forward position, and afterward, when the commanding officer was wounded, removed him from danger. Compas then went back again to the forward position to deliver the commander's final orders.

During the fighting at Kadish Corporal Wilke volunteered for duty in a machine-gun post in an open position. From this position he silenced two enemy guns and, forced the Bolsheviki to evacuate Kadish. He then volunteered and crossed an open field under fire, and went into Kadish. Corporal Bartels rescued wounded comrades under fire at Kadish. Private Hellman and Corporal Steyskal coolly stood up, firing Lewis guns from their shoulders in the face of a heavy fire at Kadish.

Sergeant Wolfe throughout the fighting about Kadish displayed the greatest initiative and gallantry as a platoon commander and scout, and Sergeant Walker is cited for initiative and bravery in the same fighting.

Sergeants Schneider, Roger, and Yates, all of the engineers, were decorated for valuable services throughout the campaign along the Dvina.

HUMBERT HEARS CHARGES.

French Senator Shows No Emotion at Reading of Indictment.

PARIS, April 1, (Havas.)—The indictment of Senator Charles Humbert was still being read today at the trial of the Senator and three alleged accomplices on the charge of having had commerce with the enemy.

Portions of the indictment read today concern the participation of Humbert and Captain Ladoux in the dealings which resulted in the purchase of the Journal by Humbert. The facts adduced by the Government tended to show that Humbert evinced a lack of scruples in the negotiations for the newspaper. He is accused of having received "millions of francs."

Humbert displayed no emotion during the reading of the indictment.

BARE SOVIET PLOT TO SEIZE ARSENAL

ANARCHIST LEADER SEIZED

William Wyciss Said to Be an Agent of Trotzky in the District.

PITTSBURGH, April 1.—A plot to seize the Government arsenal here for the purpose of using the munitions stored there to destroy manufacturing plants and other buildings of Pittsburgh was disclosed today by the Department of Justice, following the arrest of William Wyciss, aged 38, of Wilkinsburg.

Wyciss is charged with violating Section 6 of the United States Criminal law in promoting a seditious conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States. He was committed to jail to await a hearing before a United States Commissioner.

Wyciss was trapped by a Government agent who succeeded in joining the Soviet and the Union of Russian Workingmen here, of which the prisoner was a leader. According to Government agents, Wyciss is a Russian anarchist, a Bolshevist leader, and an agent of Trotzky in this district.

The Government's informant against Wyciss was S. Pulaski, a Russian, who is a Department of Justice agent of Detroit, Mich., and who was brought here with the expressed purpose of investigating a conspiracy of which the authorities had evidence. Pulaski gained the confidence of Wyciss, and the latter, it is said, told him details of the plot.

The arrest of Wycisa followed the apprehension yesterday in the Pittsburgh district of ten alleged Russian anarchists. In connection with the latter arrests, the Department of Justice let it be known today that in the room of one of the prisoners, Alex. Antanoff, they found an entire set of plans of one of the largest industrial plants in the district. The drawing, it is said, showed a system of wires attached to bombs and leading to all parts of the big plant.

TO PUNISH TERRORISM.

Michigan House Passes Bill Against Criminal Syndicalism.

LANSING, Mich., April 1.—The lower house of the State Legislature, in committee of the whole, early this morning approved passage of legislation which would make criminal syndicalism a felony, punishable by maximum fine of $5,000 and imprisonment of not more than ten years.

Criminal syndicalism is defined in the bill as advocacy of crime, sabotage, violence, or "other terrorism" to accomplish political or industrial ends.

Y. M. C. A. PLAY AT COBLENZ.

Stock Company Makes a Great Hit in "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, April 1.—The most ambitious entertainment effort of the Young Men's Christian Association bore fruit last night, when the Third Army stock company presented "Seven Keys to Baldpate" at the Coblenzer Festhall. It was enthusiastically received by the 3,000 officers and men who crowded the auditorium.

The stock company is under the personal direction of Dorothy Donnelly, who deserves great credit for her strenuous work in recruiting the personnel and conducting several weeks' rehearsal. It was Miss Donnelly's idea to vary the vaudeville entertainment which forms almost all Y. M. C. A. programs, and the Third Army stock company is the result. The company is composed of Y. M. C. A. workers and professional soldier talent from the Army of Occupation. Lieutenant Harrington Reynolds of the Tank Corps staged "Baldpate." Before the Coblenz opening the play had a trial at Neunasr (?) down the river.

The cast was as follows: Elijah Quinby, Helen Scott of the Y. M. C. A.; William Hallowell Magee, novelist, Sergeant Scott G. Coyne; Mary Norton, a newspaper reporter, Mignon McGibeney of the Y. M. C. A.; Mrs. Rhodes, Clara Ginn of the Y. M. C. A.; Peter, Hermit of Baldpate, Sergeant Arden E. Page; Mary Thornhill, blackmailer, Helen Scott; Lou Max, the Mayor's Man Friday, Private Herbert Belmore Davis; Jim Cargan, crooked Mayor of Reuton, Eugene McGovern; Thomas Hayden, President of the R. & R. Railroad, Private George Skaff; Jiggs Kennedy, Chief of Police of Asquewan Falls, Sergeant Norman Ives; policeman, Sam Pasmanick of the Knights of Columbus; Mayor of Baldpate, Private Voiz.

Lieutenant Bushby B. Enos is business manager of the company; Sergeant Page, stage manager; Privates J. R. Daniels and John Brownie, scenic artists; Sergeant John D. Beckwith, carpenter; Corporal George Batcheler, electrician, and Sam Pasmanick, property man. It takes four trucks to move the show.

CHICAGO BY 17,600 ELECTS THOMPSON

6,000 and George B. Holmes Municipal Judge by nearly 20,000.

A labor party was in the field here for the first time, with John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, as Mayoralty candidate. Fitzpatrick polled more than 50,000 out of a labor union membership of 240,000 and issued a statement that "the labor party has established itself."

Collins, Socialist, polled nearly as many votes as the Socialist candidate received four years ago. Adolph Carms, Socialist Laborite, received fewer than 2,000 votes.

Among the propositions appearing on the "little ballot" accompanying the Mayoralty ballot in today's election was one reading "Shall Chicago become anti-saloon territory?" This was not allowed on the ballot at the preceding election and the "drys" brought suit against the election officials which resulted in a decision of the Supreme Court several weeks ago that the proposition should be submitted to the voters.

In view of the adoption of the prohibition amendment to the Constitution the "drys" decided to make no campaign for the adoption of the local proposition. The "wets," however, conducted a vigorous campaign against it, with the slogan, "Let Congress hear your protest."

MILWAUKEE SOCIALISTS LOSE.

Every Candidate on Their Ticket Overwhelmed at Polls.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, April 1.—Milwaukee today, with the issue squarely drawn between the Good Government League and the Socialist Party, and with the issue on the restoration of German in the public schools, promised by the Socialists, defeated every candidate on the Socialist ticket. This applied to judicial candidates, for who men alone could vote, and to the candidates for school directors as well, for whom the women could vote.

Five School Directors were elected, and the Socialist five were all beaten by the biggest majorities ever scored here since the Socialists became a party. One precinct was 10 to 1 against the Socialists.

Leading in the fight were women voters, who stood in line late tonight waiting for a chance to vote after the usual closing hour, for all in line at closing time were allowed to vote.

MAYOR PRESTON LOSES IN BALTIMORE

Beaten by 4,000 in Democratic Primaries—Dry Candidates Run Behind.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 1.—James H. Preston, for eight years Mayor of Baltimore, was defeated for renomination in the Democratic primaries today by George Weems Williams by a majority of over 4,000. Preston was supported by the city machine.

The liquor question played an important part in the vote. The Anti-Prohibition League of Maryland had asked every candidate for nomination to declare himself publicly as to how he stood on prohibition and whether he would use his influence toward a repeal of the national amendment.

Mayor Preston declared for the wets. But his running mates, J. Barry Mahool for President of the Second Branch City Council, and James F. Thrift for Controller refused to declare themselves and were classed as dry. They ran far behind Preston, Mahool falling short over 2,500 and Thrift more than 3,000 of the 20,000 votes given to Preston.

Williams's running mates are Howard Bryant for Second Branch President, and Joseph Smith for Controller. Every dry candidate for the Council was defeated.

William F. Broening is the Republican nominee for Mayor. His party is united on his candidacy. The city election will be held May 6.

ST. LOUIS 20,000 REPUBLICAN.

Aloe Re-elected President of the Board of Aldermen.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 1.—In an Aldermanic election today the Republicans scored a complete victory, with pluralities of 20,000 to 25,000.

Louis P. Aloe, Republican, was re-elected President of the Board of Aldermen over Flint Garrison, editor of The Drygoods Man, a trade publication; Julius Haller, Independent Republican, and William Brandt, Socialist.

Garrison made his campaign on a fight against the increased street car fare, which last year was raised from 5 to 6 cents. Haller and Brandt made poor showings, as both received less than 6,000 votes.

The total vote was approximately 80,000, which was 20,000 less than had been predicted by political leaders.

Your Speech to the Wool Club

Suppose you are asked to make an address to the Tide-Water Association or to the Annual Banquet of the Lapidary Employers' Board.

It is a matter of great moment; you write and rewrite your remarks and rehearse all the details. It may even entail a new dress coat and the finishing touches of a professional coach.

And yet at most, you will actually talk to no more than two thousand people directly and perhaps three times that number through reprints in the trade press.

Are you equally careful of your speech to millions in the advertising columns?

Do you employ the best brains without stint to prepare your messages?

These messages of yours do not go to hundreds at a banquet-table; they go to millions in the homes, and when your chance comes to speak to a whole nation, if it be only for two minutes, you ought to have the best speech-maker in the nation as your mentor.

GLASS PREDICTS SUCCESS OF LOAN

Rejects Suggestion by Calder That President Convene Congress to Bolster Bonds.

SEES INDUSTRY REVIVING

Believes Post-Armistice Depression Is Ending and Bond Market Will Pick Up.

FINANCIAL STATUS STRONG

Secretary Deprecates Pessimistic Talk and Asks Senator to Help Support Loan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Facts and figures to prove that the nation's finances are sound, and that conditions generally are such that business may look forward with assurance to a period of prosperity which will drive Liberty bonds well above par before the date of maturity, are presented in a letter written by Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, under date of March 31, to Senator William M. Calder of New York, which was made public by the Treasury Department tonight.

The letter was written in reply to one in which Senator Calder expressed pessimism in regard to the Victory Loan, which will be offered on April 21, and asked Mr. Glass to urge upon President Wilson the necessity of calling a special session of Congress to pass legislation for the protection of holders of Liberty bonds.

Mr. Glass holds that such a step is not essential and that bondholders have nothing to fear. He adds a word of praise for the action of Congress in passing the Victory Loan legislation, despite the fact that other important measures failed, and makes the statement that all doubt has now been dissipated as to the ability of the nation to raise the funds necessary for the operation of the railroads and to meet obligations.

In his analysis of the situation Secretary Glass points out that the national debt is less than $25,000,000,000, and says that when all war debts are met it should not exceed $30,000,000,000, against which are held foreign obligations of about $10,000,000,000. Today, he says, there is no insufficiency of credit for the needs of any useful enterprise and business already is forging ahead. As to national expenditures, he asserts that, while they reached a maximum of $2,000,000,000 a month shortly after the armistice, they would, after the war bills had been paid, shrink quickly to not more than $2,000,000,000 a year.

As an indication of the nation's ability to meet any crisis, Mr. Glass says one of the regularly bi-weekly offerings of Treasury certificates of indebtedness carrying 4½ per cent. interest was omitted because the sales had proceeded recently in such large amounts.

Hopeful Then, Hopeless Now.

"I do not share your present fear for the Victory Liberty Loan," says Secretary Glass in his letter to Senator Calder, "nor do I understand what unfavorable developments have taken place since you addressed the Senate upon the first of March apparently in support of (certainly not in opposition to) the Victory Liberty Loan bill to lead you to the view you now express.

"On March 1, in your speech in the Senate, you said, 'I do not share the hopelessness expressed by some Senators. We have had deposited in the banks and other financial institutions of the United States during the last four years sums totaling over $5,000,000,000 more than those institutions contained previous to that time. Then, too, the wealth of this country totals in the neighborhood of $235,000,000,000. So I see no reason why we should not feel certain of the future, provided Congress legislates intelligently and does everything in its power to keep down the costs of Government.'

"I do not share the hopelessness now expressed by you nor your present desire to increase the costs to the Government by increasing its interest charges. The Victory Liberty Loan bill becomes law after very full and adequate consideration by the Congress. • • • The enactment of the bill was received with relief and gratification by the country at large and by the members of the great Liberty Loan organization. They evinced no lack of confidence in the Treasury's ability to solve the problems intrusted to it by the Congress; nor have I any fear of the Treasury's ability to solve those problems, given as I am assured it will have, the patriotic support of the great Liberty Loan organization and of a united and victorious people.

"To act in accordance with your suggestion and ask the President to call the Congress in special session to enact some additional legislation in aid of the Victory Liberty Loan would imply a distrust which I do not feel of the action already taken by the Congress and approved by the President, for there have been no adverse developments since that action was taken. • • • I take a very optimistic view of the prospect for the Victory Liberty Loan and of the future of this country.

Hopeful of Early Improvement.

"It is perhaps not unnatural that we Americans, like all the other peoples of the world, should have had to go through a period of depression and discontent, even of bitterness, after the winning of the great war. But this was only the natural reaction from the intense physical and spiritual effort which the war called forth, from the overstimulation of all our energies and activities. The cessation of hostilities followed hard upon a bitter political fight and came just before the approach of Winter, a time when the resumption of normal peace activities was most difficult.

"The Winter has passed and we have every expectation of the early conclusion of peace. Already commerce and industry begin to show signs of the renewed life which must follow the removal of the restraints and interference which war made necessary. The problems which arose from the failure of the Congress to enact legislation for relief of the railroads and other important legislation presented a very serious situation and one of great embarrassment to the Government, but means will be found to carry them along until the time when Congress shall be called in special session.

"The discontinuance of Government interference with the foreign exchanges, made possible by the cessation of hostilities, has demonstrated the true position of dollar exchange, which not only is at a premium in relation to the currencies of all of the European countries which were engaged in the war, but has now approached par or actually reached a premium with respect to the currencies of European neutrals.

"Our reserve, the greatest in amount in the world, the greatest in relation to circulation and deposit in any of the countries which were engaged in the war was, on March 28, 1919, 51.9 per cent. of the combined Federal Reserve note and deposit liabilities of the Federal Reserve Banks. This compares most favorably with a combined reserve of 40.8 per cent. on Nov. 8, 1918, just before the armistice, particularly in view of the fact that since that date the Government's expenditures, for the most part growing out of the war, have approximated $8,000,000,000, the greater part of which has necessarily been provided by the sale of Treasury certificates of indebtedness to the banking institutions of the country. • • •

Position of Liberty Bonds.

"I know of no one who does not believe that the Liberty bonds of the outstanding issues will sell well above par long before their maturity. The Congress has provided in the Victory Liberty Loan act a sinking fund which is calculated to retire all the bonds and notes of the Liberty loans in less than twenty-five years. The liquidation which has taken place in Liberty bonds since the armistice is, in my judgment, and, I believe, in that of most thoughtful financiers, traceable to other causes than the interest rate and terms of the bonds. Foremost of these causes is the fact that many patriotic Americans, individuals and companies, subscribe for bonds in a spirit of patriotic fervor induced by the war in excess of their ability to hold.

"The 'oversold' condition of the market for Liberty bonds thus created was accentuated by the reaction following the armistice, which made many feel they were released from the duty of holding their bonds in aid of the Government's credit; by the desire to realize losses before the end of the year and thus reduce taxes; by the changed financial position of many bondholders growing out of the termination of hostilities, and, worst of all, by the wicked devices of bond sharps and swindlers who took advantage of the inexperience of many small investors in Liberty bonds, whom the Treasury was, failing the necessary legislation, powerless to protect.

"Another element in depreciating the market value of Liberty bonds has, no doubt, been the pessimistic utterances of many people who, like yourself, have seen only the dark side of the picture and who have exaggerated both publicly and privately the difficulty of floating the Victory Liberty Loan. This pessimism has, I think, already been more than discounted in the market price of existing issues. I have not allowed myself to be disconcerted by these pessimistic utterances, because I know that similar opinions were expressed to Secretary McAdoo before each of the four Liberty Loans offered during the period of active warfare, although during that period those who held such views were for the most part considerate enough to express them to the Treasury privately and avoid public utterances which would have added to its burdens.

Sanguine of Bond Market.

"I believe that all these adverse influences have spent their force. I am sanguine to believe that the market for Liberty bonds has seen its worst and that the market position of the bonds will improve as true understanding of the immense strength of the financial position of the United States becomes disseminated and as the Victory Liberty Loan campaign proceeds.

"Approximately $1,000,000,000 of income and profits taxes were paid into the Treasury during the period of two or three weeks before and after March 15, without financial disturbance, thanks to the provision which had been made in advance by the sale of Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing March 15 and to the effective co-operation of the Federal Reserve Banks, and this notwithstanding that the activities of the subcommittee on money of the Liberty Loan Committee had come to an end about two months before.

"In writing you thus fully in answer to your letter I have proceeded upon the assumption that it was written with the intention of aiding in solving the financial problems before us. I now ask that you give to the Treasury of the United States, upon which, subject to the approval of the President and to the limitations imposed by the acts of Congress, rests the responsibility for determining the terms of the Victory Liberty Loan, that patriotic support and confidence without which no financial program of such magnitude can be successful. The welfare of all our people is at stake. I ask you to join to make this last great popular loan the success it can and should be, not for the honor and glory of the Secretary of the Treasury or of this Administration, but for the welfare and greater good of the whole American people and as a lasting monument of our appreciation of those heroic men who went out from among us to suffer and, some of them, to die, for all of us in France."

AFRICAN KING "BONE DRY."

Ruler of Bechuanaland Tells Subjects They Can't Work if They Drink

LONDON, March 24, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—While some of the London press never miss an opportunity to poke fun at the United States for adopting the prohibition amendment, the newspapers today were called upon to chronicle the fact that within the empire there was a native king who not only indorsed the prohibitory principle, but insisted that his people should agree with him.

King Khama, ruler of Bechuanaland, South Africa, was informed that a Government commission had recommended the sale of light wines and beers to the natives. He immediately declared that if the plan was carried out he would forbid his subjects from working in the gold mines. The industrial situation, already rendered almost intolerable by the loss of thousands of native workers through the ravages of influenza, would thus become alarming, for those who know King Khama realize that he would not hesitate to carry out his threat. The temperance party, led by the King, is strong in South Africa, where the King is known as a strong temperance monarch. Also they know him in England, where he has often appeared on temperance platforms.

The decision of the commission to allow the blacks to buy intoxicants was due to the fact that white men employed in the mines would buy intoxicants, and the prohibition against the blacks had given rise to a large illicit trade in drink.

prohibition laws upon the soil of Virginia, or the enforcement of any law affecting the State, but when officers create a more serious breach to carry out laws of less importance, by disregarding the fact that women have disrobed and retired for the night and flash their lights into the berth and under the cover, ostensibly in search of liquor, it is time to call a halt.

The American people expect and demand some protection, particularly to their women, while passing through the State of Virginia, and we are now looking to you as commander in chief of the railroads to direct that these midnight assaults upon sleeping patrons of the Pullman service, in the name of the law, be stopped.

Thanking you in advance for your attention to this grave matter and with assurance of my high esteem, I am, yours truly, P. Q. MOORE.

Upon receipt of this letter Director General Hines turned it over to Judge Payne, who wrote to Governor Davis, inclosing the Moore letter and the newspaper clipping:

"Nothing is doing so much to injure the good name of Virginia as the conduct of the prohibition officers," wrote Judge Payne. "There has been pointed out to you the serious loss which the Railroad Administration is caused to suffer by such acts."

Urges Prevention of "Outrages."

To Prohibition Commissioner Peters Judge Payne wrote:

"We have so many complaints of this character that the situation is distressing in the extreme. Unfortunately, the names of your officers are not given. You have stated to me and to others representing the Railroad Administration that no such acts occur. I am sure that Mayor Moore will give you the names of the ladies affected and will place you in a position to verify the accuracy of his statements."

The counsel for the Railroad Administration also asked Mr. Peters to take "prompt and vigorous" action to "prevent a repetition of these outrages."

The situation in Virginia became so acute through the complaints against the tactics of the prohibition officers that the Railroad Administration selected a special representative in the person of Murrell Lee Buckner of Louisville, Ky., to go to Virginia and visit the Governor and Commissioner Peters. The Prohibition Commissioner then intimated that there was connivance on the part of certain train employes against enforcing the prohibition movement.

Eventually, Mr. Peters wrote to the Railroad Administration, saying that his office had been "misrepresented" from the start. In the future, he wrote, "we may expect some irritation here and there" from persons who were breaking or attempting to break the law.

"Prohibition is a social revolution and inevitably provokes criticism," wrote the Virginia Commissioner.

He maintained that complaints would almost always be found groundless, so far as just criticism of his department was concerned.

On one occasion Mr. Peters told Mr. Buckner, according to the records, that the bootleggers were beginning to use Pullman cars instead of the ordinary day coaches. Upon one personal search of a Pullman, Mr. Peters said, the Prohibition Commissioner found that bootleggers had bought an entire Pullman section and had loaded enough suit cases of liquor into the upper berth to fill two wagons.

The differences between the prohibitionists and the anti-prohibitionists in Virginia have recently been accentuated to the breaking point by the shooting by prohibition constabulary of two alleged bootleggers on the Valley of Virginia Pike, near Winchester. That community became so inflamed that mobs gathered and there were fears of lynching. The dry agents are now under military guard at Woodstock, Va.

HOLD 1.4% DRINKS TO BE INTOXICATING

Army Makes Its Own Rule as to Alcohol—May Serve Discharged Soldiers in Uniform.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—So far as the army is concerned, any beverage containing 1.4 per cent. of alcohol will be considered "intoxicating." This decision of the Judge Advocate General was approved today by Secretary Baker.

Official ruling was made in answer to requests from camp organization commanders for an interpretation of Section 12 of the Selective Service act governing the prohibition of alcoholic liquors on or near military camps. Vendors of dozens of brands of near-beers, so-called health beverages, and other drinks alleged to be nonintoxicating, are said to have taken advantage of the fact that no definite line was drawn as to alcohol content, to dispose of their wares not only to establishments within military reservations but even to the camp exchanges.

The decision that 1.4 per cent. of alcohol would be considered the dead line by the military authorities is understood to have been based on an opinion by the army medical experts that this would intoxicate the average healthy soldier if sufficient quantity of the beverage were imbibed.

Under Food Administration regulations, one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol made a beverage officially intoxicating. This standard has been adopted in many States, although in some as much as 2 per cent. is allowed. The question of what is an intoxicating beverage is pending in the courts as a result of the decision of brewers in New York and elsewhere to make beer containing 2% per cent. alcohol.

Sale of intoxicating liquors to discharged soldiers, away from reservations or military dry zones, even if they are in uniform, is not unlawful the department holds in a separate opinion of the Judge Advocate General, approved by Secretary Baker.

"To come within the prohibition of the law," the statement said, "the person in uniform must be a member of the military forces, and a discharged soldier is not a member."

TAFT "BROKE" IN DETROIT.

Walks Mile and a Half to City Hall to Get Mayor's Help.

DETROIT, Mich., April 1.—Former President Taft, who will speak at Kalamazoo tonight on the League of Nations, arrived in Detroit this forenoon—"broke." He walked the mile and a half to the City Hall where Mayor Couzens cashed a check for him.

"I just ran out of change," he explained to newspapermen, "and I knew the Mayor had lots of it."

The former President will go from Kalamazoo to Lansing, where he is expected to speak before the State Legislature tomorrow.

Young Men of America!

IF the average young man desires to be successful, he must submit to the conditions which Success imposes. These primarily are Honesty, Industry and Economy, the practice of which is a cardinal necessity in the formation of Character.

Most of our young men are shaping their lives along this line, but, because of lack of experience, they overlook the great advantage that will accrue to them from forming early in their lives as a depositor a banking association of the highest character.

Our experience of eighty-nine years has convincingly taught us that kindness and consideration shown clean-living, honorable and ambitious young men is a splendid asset for them and for us. Just as the acorn of today is the oak of tomorrow, so do our young men rapidly attain the management of the world's affairs.

We extend young men a cordial invitation to establish banking relations with us—to grow to know us and to give us an opportunity to know them, in order that mutual helpfulness may ensue.

77TH PARADE IN SIX DAYS AFTER RETURN

Advance Party Holds Conferences to Arrange Reception for "Argonne Conquerors."

DIVISION SLOGAN EXPLAINED

More Details About Surrender Note to "Lost Battalion"—Aid Asked in Obtaining Jobs.

After a conference with Major Gen. D. C. Shanks, debarkation officer of the port, Lieut. Col. Douglas Compbell, in charge of the army's plans for the homecoming of the 77th Division, announced yesterday that the parade would be held within six days after the last unit had arrived in New York. General Shanks promised to co-operate in every way in expediting the debarkation of the 31,000 men in the division.

The advance party, sent by Major Gen. Alexander to co-operate with the Mayor's Committee and other local organizations in arranging a rousing reception for the division, held conferences yesterday with the Mayor's Committee and with representatives of the Jewish Welfare League and the Y. M. C. A. Tentative plans were discussed.

Because of a general misunderstanding the slogan, "The only conquerors of the Argonne Forest," which has been unofficially adopted by the division, members of the advance party yesterday issued a statement explaining that although twenty-one American divisions took part in the Argonne offensive, only one—the 77th Division—attacked completely the Argonne Forest proper.

In Line Until Armistice.

"The push by the 77th Division through the Argone Forest regained twenty-two kilometers for France, and therefore the New Yorkers drove right on to the gates of Sedan—thirty-seven ane one-half kilometers," the statement said. "Of all the American divisions that started off from the 'jumping-off' trenches on Sept. 26, the 77th was the only one of the original attacking divisions still in the line at the signing of the armistice. Thus, while many American outfits fought in the Argonne country generally, only one—the 77th—completely penetrated the forest, regarded by French tacticians as the strongest point of German defense on the whole extent of the front from the North Sea to Switzerland."

The statement referred to a remark made recently by Lieut. Col. Frederick Palmer, that if any one had suggested throwing troops into an attack in the Argonne Forest in 1917, that person would have been dismissed as mad. Napoleon had taken his army around the Argonne, deeming a frontal attack on it impossible, and even General Pershing had referred to the forest in a report to Secretary of War Baker as "generally considered impregnable."

"New York's Own will not have its due until New Yorkers realize that their boys broke through the German's really 'impregnable defenses,'" the statement said.

Further details of the meeting at Coblenz of Colonel C. O. Sherrill, former Division Chief of Staff, and Lieutenant Heinrich Prinz, the German army officer who wrote the "Surrender in the name of humanity note" to Lieut. Col. Whittlesey of the "Lost Battalion," were made public yesterday.

In a letter written to a friend in this country, Colonel Sherrill told of having witnessed at Coblenz the farewell review of the 76th Division of the German army which had faced the 77th Division in the Argonne. Although the German division had been badly beaten at Grand Pré and suffered heavy casualties the men paraded as conquering heroes, a fact which Colonel Sherrill said amused him greatly, inasmuch as he had been with the victorious 77th Division.

Hopes to Meet Colonel Whittlesey.

Concerning the meeting with Lieutenant Prinz and a second German officer, Colonel Sherrill wrote that Lieutenant Prinz told of his having lived for many years in Seattle, Wash., where he said he had a lucrative business. He expressed a desire to return to the United States and resume his business here. Lieutenant Prinz also said that he hoped to express personally to Colonel Whittlesey his regard for the latter's bravery and the bravery of the members of the "Lost Battalion."

"I am a great admirer of the 77th Division," Lieutenant Prinz said, according to Colonel Sherrill. "The Germans felt it absolute suicide for the American detachment to persist in its defense, and for that reason I sent the message requesting surrender."

Lieutenant Prinz declared that his men were astounded by the coolness of the Americans in view of the precariousness of their position. He said this attitude on the part of the Americans was one of the most distressing things encountered by his troops. They could not understand, he said, how any one could remain so apparently calm when facing what seemed to them certain death.

Major S. Fullerton Weaver, in charge of the employment agency of the 77th Division Association, yesterday sent out the following letter to each of the seven war welfare organizations asking their co-operation in obtaining "local jobs for local men."

New York, March 1, 1919.

Dear Sirs: Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant Secretary of War, Committee of Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, United States Employment Service, New York State Reconstruction Committee, Chamber of Commerce of New York, the Merchants' Association of New York, Building Trades Employers' Association of New York, and many other organizations have come out strongly in favor of the slogan, "Local jobs for local men," and "New York jobs for New York soldiers."

The 77th Division Employment Bureau is making an energetic canvass of employers in Greater New York to secure their backing of the division's slogan, "New York jobs for New York soldiers," and to have them give preference in employment in every instance to local men.

We understand that your organization concurs in the view that local men should be given preference in employment, and we wish to inquire what steps the employment bureau of your organization is taking to carry out this policy. You can readily appreciate that, as a part of the employment service as approved by the Government, it is but proper that your organization further the Government's policy of giving local jobs to local men, and some method be adopted by your employment bureau in co-operation with the approved Government agencies to give preference to local men, thereby discouraging outsiders from remaining in New York, so that they will return to their home towns. Unless the authorized and approved Government employment agencies carry out in practice the policy universally approved by the Government and civilian organizations, it will be impossible to secure the great majority of local jobs for local men.

As the Division Association is vitally interested in the matter, we are taking the liberty of making the above inquiry as to your procedure in connection with the matter. As you may know, the 77th Division Employment Bureau is working as a branch of the United States Employment Service, and is bending every effort toward securing positions for our returning soldiers, and so far we have met with the heartiest co-operation on all sides. The question is so broad that we are not only considering it from the point of view of our own division, but also feel that all citizens of Greater New York who entered the Government service are entitled to the first consideration in securing positions on their return to civilian life.

We are inclosing a copy of a circular letter sent to many members of our Home Auxiliary Association, which may prove of interest to you, and also gives in further detail the scope of our work. Yours very truly,

F. FULLERTON WEAVER,
Major Infantry, U. S. A.

Plans for Jewish Welcome.

A second conference to form a permanent organization to welcome the Jewish members of the 77th Division was held last night in the building of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, at 229 East Broadway. A committee to be known as the Welcome Committee for the Jewish Boys Returning from the War was formed with John L. Bernstein as President. The other officers elected were: Vice Presidents, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle, Congressman Isaac Siegel, Judge Aaron J. Levy, Samuel Dorf, Harry Fischel, the Rev. H. Masilansky, Judge Leon Sanders, Meyer London, Mrs. Samuel Mason, Mrs. Henrietta Girdansky, and Samuel S. Koenig; Treasurer, Joseph S. Marcus, and Secretary, J. I. Freedman.

Mr. Marcus started a monument fund with a subscription of $1,000. Plans were discussed for entertaining the east side heroes in a suitable manner. Plans were also mapped out for the erection of a memorial to the boys who had fallen in battle. The Honorary Reception Committee elected included Jacob H. Schiff, Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court, Nathan Straus, Supreme Court Justice Irving Lehman, Felix M. Warburg, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Abram I. Elkus, Louis Marshall, and Judge Louis D. Gibbs of the Bronx.

A meeting of Boyce's Tigers will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the old City College, Twenty-third Street and Lexington Avenue, for the purpose of naming a Reception Committee for the boys of the 77th Division. General Leonard Wood has promised to come from Chicago to talk at the meeting.

RAINBOW STARTS APRIL 5.

Plans for Homecoming Announced —Will Parade Alone in Washington.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

COBLENZ, April 1.—Detailed plans were made known here today for sending the Rainbow Division home. According to the final schedule, the entrainment of the 42d will begin on Saturday, April 5, and will be completed on the following Friday, April 11. This means that the last of the Rainbow units should be in Brest on April 14. It is announced that the average stay at Brest will be less than fourteen days, which means that the entire division should be on the water on April 18, and on American soil several days before May 1.

Twenty-three trains of thirty cars each, leaving at the rate of four trains a day, will be sufficient to carry all the units of the Rainbow Division, minus the artillery, transport, and similar equipment.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary Baker announced today that he had been forced to abandon hopes that he had entertained that a Victory parade of three distinctive fighting divisions might be arranged to take place in Washington. The divisions he had hoped to assemble, he said, were the 1st, representative of the old regular army and the first to land in France; the 2d, which includes the Marine Brigade, and the 42d, or "Rainbow," the National Guard unit.

The Secretary said experience had shown that it would be impossible to get the three divisions home at anything like the same time, and he had been forced to limit the review to the 42d Division alone. Plans for a divisional parade of that organization, it is understood, are now being worked out. Whether even this will be practicable has not yet been decided.

SAYS 27TH MEN NEED JOBS.

Dr. Kirchwey Declares Soldiers Are Not Cared For.

George W. Kirchwey, director of the United States Employment Service in this city, issued a statement yesterday declaring that, although "employers are all agreed that places should be found for every New York man returning from service overseas, reports from the various bureaus show clearly that they are still begging for jobs." He asserted that "before they can all be employed there must be a concerted drive backed by the moral support of the entire community."

Men of the 27th Division who were hailed with such delight last week, and said to be all accounted for in civilian positions," continued Dr. Krchwey, "are still having great difficulty in obtaining satisfactory places, even though they seem to be entirely reasonable in their estimates of their own value. The 27th Division is not being well cared for. The entire problem of the 77th Division is still before us, and it will be a very serious problem."

Director Kirchwey said that he wished to find jobs for at least 767 unemployed soldiers of the 27th Division before Friday night, when they are to arrive here from Camp Upton. The occupations of the men are classified as follows:

Farmers, 116; building and construction, 98; chemical and paint workers, 4; clay, glass, and stone workers, 2; clerical, professional, and technical, 139; clothing and textiles, 7; common labor, 49; domestic and personal service, 2; food, beverages, and tobacco, 9; hotel and restaurant, 3; leather, rubber, and allied products, 8; metals and machinery, 96; paper and printing, 7; shipbuilding, 17; transportation and public utilities, 69; wholesale and retail trade, 76; woodworking and furniture, 5; miscellaneous, 19.

Employers who wish to hire any of these men are urged to report to the Employment Bureau of the 27th Division, on the fourth floor of the Hall of Records, telephone Worth 1647.

SENATORS DEFY ALBANY LEADERS

this question," said the Senate leader. "I have never done anything to prevent a full and free discussion of any measure since I have been in my present position in the Senate."

Then Senator Graves got the floor.

"There is a revolt in the Senate, especially on the Republican side against the tyranny of the rules that have been inflicted on the Senate," he said. "The time is rapidly approaching when this body will liberate itself from such bondage. There has been a deliberate plan to check the progress of certain legislation. There are six important welfare bills before us, five of these being for the protection of women in industries. The end of the session is drawing near, and we find ourselves in a position where there is grave danger that we will not be able to reach them before the final gavel falls. The happy solution and the manly thing to do would be to permit us to bring them out in the daylight where they can be debated and voted upon. Why not fix a day when all these bills can be taken up and disposed of? That is the only method by which you can establish a good feeling among those of us who are now in a state of discontent."

Senator Sage, Senator Walters, and Minority Leader James A. Foley of the Senate, after the session, spent an hour in conference with Lieut. Gov. Walker. It was at the end of this conference that the Lieutenant Governor announced that he would render a decision on the interpretation of the Senate rules tomorrow.

THE SENSES

Did you ever stop to consider that a really delightful meal pleases four of the five senses—sight, smell, touch and taste?

At CHILDS every dish is made first of all nourishing, and then delightfully pleasing to the senses—that is the standard.

Take a plate of griddle cakes, for example—wholesome and nourishing, beyond a doubt.

Their rich, brown coloring pleases the sense of sight; their savory aroma, the sense of smell; their steaming hotness, the sense of touch; and their delicious flavor, the sense of taste.

Truly a glorious revelry of the senses!

SEEK INDEPENDENCE FOR SOUTH AFRICANS

QUOTE PRESIDENT WILSON

Hope to be Allowed Self-Determination and Realization of National Aspirations.

On their way to England and France to lay before the British Government and the Peace Conference the claims of the National Party of South Africa for self-determination and complete independence, a delegation headed by General J. B. M. Hertzog and consisting of nine members arrived here yesterday from Cape Town on board the Dutch steamship Bawean.

The delegation carries with it resolutions declaring for national independence adopted by congresses of the "National Free Party" of Cape Colony, Orange Free State, Transvaal, and Natal. In addition, it has similar resolutions adopted by a joint congress of the four States held at Bloemfontein on Jan. 17 last, in which President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George are quoted on peace and "national aspirations."

Passage direct to England had been booked for the delegation on the British steamship Durham Castle, sailing on Feb. 15, but at the last moment, according to a statement issued here by the delegation, "the firemen and crew of the ship, instigated thereto by the enemies of the independence movement," refused to work the ship if the commission should be carried. An offer of passage on the British warship Minerva then was accepted, but the acceptance was withdrawn later "on it appearing to the deputation that their presence on board would be unwelcome."

Their next alternative was the Bawean, sailing for New York. They said yesterday that no arrangements had been made for continuing their voyage from this country, but they added that they would go on the first available steamship.

A statement issued by the delegation upon its arrival here said:

"The great war which for the last few years has overwhelmed European civilization, has brought to the foreground the eternal principles of right and justice which should govern international relations, and which, through the irresponsible action of great and powerful nations, have in the past so often been violated.

"The clear utterances of President Wilson and of Mr. Lloyd George regarding the right of all nations, great and small alike, to restitution of injured rights and to self determination, have convinced Dutch-speaking South Americans that their case deserves earnest consideration and that they have an equal right with all other nations to the practical application of the principles so clearly enunciated.

"Accordingly it was felt to be a duty which they owed to their individual existence as a nation, to their past history and to their future, to urge the justice of their cause before the British Government and the Peace Conference and not allow this unique opportunity to pass without stating their case."

IRISH ENVOYS BOARD SHIP.

Peace Conference Pleaders Ready to Sail When the Touraine Gets Coal.

The French liner Touraine, which was to have sailed yesterday at noon for Havre with nearly 1,000 passengers, was delayed for lack of fuel and will not get away until today. About 150 members of Irish societies, carrying flags of the "Irish Republic," went to the pier at the foot of West Fifteenth Street to speed the three delegates from Irish societies who are going to appeal to the Peace Conference. They are Edward F. Dunne, Frank P. Walsh, and Michael J. Ryan.

The crowd waited all through the forenoon, and when 2:30 came with no sign of the delegates the banner bearers and musicians and their friends dispersed for luncheon. Later ex-Governor Dunne arrived at the pier and spent an hour with John Devoy of the Gaelic American.

Among the passengers on the Touraine are the Countess Spottiswood Makin and Count J. de Geoffre de Chavinac of the French War Mission.

Captain and Mate Held Without Bail

Captain Adolph C. Pedersen and his sons, Adolph and Leonard, second and first mate of the barkentine Puako, charged with murder and maltreatment of the crew of the ship on the high seas, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Knox. Bail was refused in the case of the Captain and his son Adolph, but in the case of Leonard, who is charged with a lesser crime than murder, bail was fixed at $5,000.

BROOKLYN OFFICER CITED.

Lieut. Scanlon Told Men to Go On After He Was Mortally Wounded.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Commander in Chief, in the name of the President, has awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to the following named officers and soldiers for the acts of extraordinary heroism described after their names:

First Lieut. Robert Merel, French Mission attached 91st Division. For extraordinary heroism in action near Spittael Bosschen and Audenarde, Belgium, Oct. 31-Nov. 1. Armed with an automatic rifle, he went forward alone and killed the gunner of an enemy machine gun whose fire had been holding up the advancing line. Home address M. A. Merel, father, A St. Baudelle, Par Magenne, France.

Second Lieut. Marcus R. Scanlon, deceased, 106th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Ronssoy on Sept. 27. Gathering about forty men from various units in a forward trench, he organized them into an attacking party and led them forward under heavy machine-gun fire, repulsing an enemy counterattack. While in the performance of this exploit he was mortally wounded, but attempting to push forward with his men, he called out: "Go on fighting! Never mind what happens to me!" Next of kin, Mrs. John L. Scanlon, mother, 347 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Corporal Henry Peter Lynch, Co. E, 106th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Ronssoy on Sept. 29. Having been trapped in a shell hole with nine other men fifty yards in front of the line, he crawled back to his company's position through heavy machine-gun fire and reported their predicament. He then organized a bombing party, led it against the hostile machine gun, and put it out of action, thereby enabling his men to return safely to our line. CALIFORNIA TROOPS GET BIG WELCOME

Delegation of Westerners Goes Down the Bay to Greet 1,642 of Wild West Division.

ARRIVE ON KENTUCKIAN

Leviathan, with 13,200 Soldiers, Is Due to Reach Hoboken About Noon Today.

The only transport to arrive yesterday from France was the Kentuckian, with nearly 2,000 troops, chiefly from California and other Western States. They were given a hearty welcome by Mayor James T. Rolph of San Francisco, with a delegation of Californians, and members of the Society of California, who went down the day on the steamboat Correction, equipped with megaphones, through which they shouted messages to their friends on the transport. There was also a big crowd waiting for them outside Pier 7, Bush Stores, Brooklyn.

Among the troops on the Kentuckian were the headquarters, machine-gun, and medical detachments, and the 1st Battalion of the 363d Infantry, which was the first draft contingent taken from San Francisco and nearby towns. The total number of officers and men from the 91st Division, which was nicknamed the "Wild West," was 180 officers and 1,462 enlisted men, under Colonel Harry L. Cavanaugh, a regular army officer, who was at one time the Captain of the 10th Cavalry. He has the D. S. C. and the Croix de Guerre.

The Colonel said that out of his battalion two had won the Congressional Medal of Honor. He added that only four of these medals had been awarded in the entire division. Sergeant Charles H. West of San Francisco, Company D, is the winner of one of the medals, and Sergeant Philip C. Katz, 71 Parker Avenue, San Francisco, of Company C is the other. Colonel Cavanaugh said that he had never seen a better lot of fighters than the 363d Infantry.

"I don't know whether men grow differently in California, but I do know one thing," asserted the Colonel, "I never saw a lot of men who could take more punishment than these men have done. They stood their ground under the most trying conditions, and never said die. In eight days' fighting the 363d Infantry lost more than 60 per cent. in casualties, 300 officers and men being killed, died of wounds, and missing, and 1,400 wounded."

The drafted men went to Camp Lewis in September, 1917, and went over to France in June, 1918. After more training they went to St. Mihiel and later to the Argonne, where the regiment was in the thick of the hard fighting from Sept. 26 to 29.

There was also on the Kentuckian a detachment from the 182d Infantry composed of three officers and twenty men, with whom was Brig. Gen. Vernon A. Caldwell, a regular army officer who was decorated with the Belgian War Cross, and a number of casuals.

According to messages received by radio at the Naval Bureau in Hoboken yesterday afternoon the transport Leviathan, with 13,200 troops, will reach Hoboken about noon today. The transports Orizaba and Henderson are also due today. The supply ship Culgoa, with 104 casuals on board, which has been since March 5 coming from Brest, will reach Sandy Hook today. The Culgoa was delayed by the breaking down of the main air pumps in her engine room.

The Italian Consul General in New York said yesterday he had received a cable message from Rome that the 332d Infantry, composed mainly of men from Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, was now on its way home on the steamships Canopic and Duca d'Aosta, which are due about April 15. Another detachment of American troops will come on the Italian steamship Dante Alighieri, the Consul General said.

Bulk of Sacramento Store Owner's Estate Goes to His Family.

The will of David Lubin, Sacramento department store owner and philanthropist, who took up his residence in New York some years ago and had aided in the development of agriculture in Italy, where he was sent to the International Institute of Agriculture as the delegate from the United States, disposes of an estate of more than $600,000.

Mr. Lubin gives the bulk of his estate to his wife, Florence Lubin, and children, Dorothy, Grace, Theodore, Ruth, and Eva Lubin, but he leaves $1,000 to the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati, $1,000 to start a pension fund for the employes of Weinstock, Lubin & Co., and $1,000 to start "a national academy of music for the negro people as suggested in Page 43 of my book, 'Let There Be Light.'" He gave an annuity of $100 a month to his brother and $60 a month to his secretary, Olivia R. Agresta of Rome.

WHY GERMANS SHOT LOW.

Private Patz Tells Reason Given Him by a Captured Sergeant.

The reason German soldiers shot low, usually below the hips, in the Argonne Forest drive, is explained by Private Joseph W. Patz, a member of the 306th Infantry Regiment of the 77th Division, who had spoken to a captured German sergeant after the battle.

The German told Private Patz that by shooting at a man below the waist there would be less danger of his being killed and would therefore necessitate the appearance of two stretcher bearers for each wounded man. In this way there would be three to shoot at instead of one. If the three were injured, the ranks of the enemy would then be decreased by so many more fighters.

Justice Pryor's Estate Small.

The will of former Supreme Court Justice Roger A. Pryor, who died on March 14 at 3 West Sixty-ninth Street, disposes of an estate estimated at $20,000 in real estate and $2,000 in personal property. Bequests of personal effects are made to the children and the silver service left to Judge Pryor by friends in Virginia goes to the Confederate Literary Society of Richmond. The residuary estate is divided equally among the daughters, Mrs. Henry C. Rice, Mrs. Frank T. Walker, Mrs. A. Page, and Mrs. William Dodge.

Medical Care for Police.

Hereafter members of the Police Department will have at their service specialists in the practice of medicine and dentistry. It was announced yesterday that Dr. Harry A. Cohen of 19 Hanover Place, Brooklyn, an eye specialist, would be in attendance in the Chief Surgeon's office at Police Headquarters on Mondays and Fridays. Dr. Gustave F. Boehme, 220 Audubon Avenue, has been appointed honorary neurologist and Dr. Leo F. Geiberich of 49 East Eighty-sixth Street, a specialist in oral and dental surgery, will also care for the men.

"John, I Could Never Go Back to the Old Way of Figuring"

"Our Dalton has saved us many, many times its cost by helping us know our business. Remember how we used to stay down nights, going over sales and stock, checking bills and doing a lot of detail figuring worth about 5¢ an hour of any man's time.

"Now, we can have a total of sales by the time the door is closed. We can figure interest and check an invoice because this machine multiplies as easily as it adds. Now, with Income Taxes and Excess Profits to figure, our Dalton is a real investment."

Have a Demonstration

The Dalton is the simplest, fastest adding-multiplying machine for retailer, wholesaler, manufacturer or one-man office. Only 10-keys—one for each numeral. Any one can use it immediately. No special operator required. Multiplies as easily as it adds. Adds, subtracts, multiplies and divides.

The Dalton is used by 80,000 firms. U. S. Government has over 4,000; U. S. Steel Corporation 300; American Radiator Co. 75. A proven reliable product. We'll gladly bring a Dalton to your office upon request. No obligation on your part at all.

"Tom, we ought to install the Dictograph, because—

"That demonstration the Dictograph man has just given us has made me realize that hours of precious time that should be converted into productive effort are wasted every day by all of us—from myself down.

"We might as well be honest with ourselves, and admit that there is considerable lost motion in our organization; and I, for one, am convinced that we need the—

Dictograph

System of Interior Telephones

You, too, should let us demonstrate the Dictograph, and show you what it will do for you—how it will simplify and expedite the work of every executive and employe in your organization—how it will enable each to do more work, better work, quicker work; and yet permit each man to remain at his own desk or within his own department.

No wasted steps—
No misspent energy—
No needless errors

The Dictograph is the last word in Interior Telephone Systems—do not confuse it with the correspondence dictating machines. It is in daily use by over 50,000 leading executives—in every line of business, large and small—who pronounce it 100% efficient, because it brings order, system, quiet, accuracy and—results.

It can be used where only 2 or 3 stations are necessary and is sufficiently elastic to meet the requirements of the largest organizations, using 10, 20, 30, 40—up to 100 or more stations, depending upon the inter-communication requirements.

With the Dictograph you can communicate instantly with any employe by simply throwing a key—you can give orders to one or more employes at the same time—confer simultaneously with any number of your employes without requiring them to leave their desks—dictate letters—talk to callers—in fact, think clearer and more consecutively and, therefore, accomplish more in less time and with less effort.

May we give you an actual working, talking, 5-minute demonstration—today?

Let us show you—on your own desk—in your own office, bank, plant or factory—how the famous loud-speaking Master Station gives the executive the "right of way"—how the voice is heard as perfectly as if the party talking were in the same room sitting at your desk—how you can hold conferences, dictate letters, receive reports, give orders, talk to callers—all without effort and without leaving your desk, while at the same time, your entire organization is afforded complete, direct and efficient inter-office and inter-department communication.

Poor tired feet -

POUNDING nail-studded leather heels on hard pavements all day robs you of energy you need. Every step is a shock not only to your feet, but also to your entire system. Every shock consumes your energy and produces fatigue. It adds just that much more to the strain of your daily life.

You can protect yourself from these useless shocks. You can cushion your feet against these daily jolts and jars. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out. They relieve the jolts and jars that make a burden of walking.

It is not just the rubber that gives O'Sullivan's Heels their springiness and wearing qualities.

Rubber, as you know, can be made hard and brittle as in fountain pens, or soft and crumbly as in pencil erasers. To secure the resiliency and durability of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are "compounded" with the best toughening agents known. The "compound" is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

By this special process the greatest resiliency is combined with the utmost durability.

It is this special process that has, since the making of the first rubber heel, established O'Sullivan's Heels as the standard of rubber heel quality.

O'Sullivan's Heels are guaranteed to wear twice as long as ordinary rubber heels; and will outlast three pairs of leather heels.

Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

O'Sullivan's Heels are furnished in black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Specify O'Sullivan's Heels, and be sure that you get O'Sullivan's — avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

Half in jest, he advertised for a wife .....

Deadly in earnest, she responded

THE flip of a coin decided it. Mary Warren was to go. It was that or starvation—or worse. Besides, he had called himself "chivalrous" and "well-to-do"—his letters read well.

And out in Montana, the "rancher," living in poverty and squalor, finds that a practical joke had led to a painfully serious situation. But it was too late to hedge. She was coming. And Twin Forks Valley wouldn't stand for any nonsense!

No, she doesn't change her plans. She sees it through. She marries him, under the most unusual circumstances. That is what makes her experience (—and his—) so intensely real. It is that incident, and the amazing situations which develop, that make it almost a duty for every man and woman to own and to read Emerson Hough's great book

The SAGEBRUSHER by Emerson Hough

Take home "The Sagebrusher" tonight. Read it—give it to any man or woman. It will hold you and thrill you as no book, no play, no movie has ever done. For there is more to it than the problem of this husband and wife, so hopelessly mismated, yet so generously considerate of each other. There is the West, with its great, beautiful hills and plains. There is the struggle of a handful of Americans to preserve and protect the life blood of the nation from the sneaking depredations of filthy Bolsheviks. There are fights and chases, thrills and romance, humor and sentiment. And through it all, the courage and faith of Mary Warren, the touching bewilderment and gallantry of Sim Gage, the strength and resourcefulness of Major Barnes, make these people seem living, breathing human beings, so skillfully has the famous author interpreted every emotion and every passion that they felt.

"The Sagebrusher" is for sale at all booksellers and department stores and at first-class stationers. Four full-page illustrations and colored jacket. $1.50 per copy. Read it tonight.

CARLISLE

An Amazing Tire with Carcass Constructed of Continuous Strands of Sturdy Rope; Breaking Resistance of a Single Strand, 235 Pounds

THE CARLISLE TIRE has arrived. It is a rope tire. The strands are extra heavy and astonishingly strong. Better still, they are continuous—unbroken, uncut.

Each strand is insulated and separated from its neighbors, each strand is under perfectly uniform tension, each strand is tested for high tensile strength, each strand is individually inspected to detect the slightest imperfection.

Imagine the strength of such a tire! The breaking resistance of the Carlisle casing is more than 2000 pounds per square inch.

Carlisle Tires are cool at 60 miles an hour, for their construction eliminates that old bogey, internal friction.

Blowouts are unknown with Carlisle Tires. Tread separation is unknown. Sand blisters unknown. All the usual run of tire troubles are almost wiped off the boards.

No ordinary tire machines could build a Carlisle. Special machines have been invented. They are marvels of efficiency, faster than the old tire-building machines and far less apt to make mistakes.

Even the curing of Carlisle Tires is done differently. The finished tire is one homogeneous mass of rope and rubber.

"Carlisle Cord Tires from A to Z," a unique booklet, is just off the press.

Proclamation Signed by President Wilson in Paris Lifts All Restrictions.

Stock Yards Will Remain Under the Control of the Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The meat packing industry, which has been under Federal license since October, 1917, was released today from Food Administration control by a proclamation signed by President Wilson in Paris.

Under the proclamation "all persons, firms, corporations, or associations engaged in importing, manufacturing, including packing, storing, or distributing fresh, canned, or cured beef, pork, mutton, or lard" are released from license by the Food Administration.

Stockyards, which were placed under license under another proclamation, signed in September, 1918, and are administered by the Agricultural Department, remain under the control of that department. Regulations under these licenses have no concern with prices, and only have to do with physical phases of the industry. Food Administration officials explained that the administration had never exercised any control over the yards.

The President's action regarding the packers, officials said, releases the industry from supervision of every kind exercised by the Food Administration, including restrictions upon margins of profit. These profits, it was said, were limited to 9 per cent., on total annual business, and about 2 per cent. on the turn-over on meats.

It was pointed out, however, that the mandatory features of the Lever act, under which the industry was controlled, prohibiting unfair practices, hoarding and profiteering, remain in force, but under the authority of Federal courts. Prosecutions for violations of the act, it was said, will be made by United States District Attorneys, through regular proceedure.

While the only information concerning the proclamation was transmitted to the Food Administration in a brief cablegram from Herbert Hoover, giving no details, nor the text, officials here said that the action probably was taken as the result of the recent discontinuance of the allied Provisions Exports Commission and of allocation of meat purchases for allied account.

The only control over food commodities left to the Food Administration is in cottonseed and cottonseed products, sugar, and wheat and its products, which come under the supervision of the Food Administration's grain corporation in New York. The enforcement division of the administration will be maintained for the purpose of imposing penalties should any become necessary while these commodities remain under license.

The withdrawal of profit margins on lard, officials said probably will not apply to lard substitutes made from cottonseed or its products, but only to lard compounds made from animal fats.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Packer representatives here, upon receipt of the news of release from governmental control said they wished to read the text of the new order before discussing its effect. Several said that the effect probably would be negligible. Whether live-stock prices advanced, one packing house representative thought, depended on the foreign market, and he said he did not know what effect, if any, the release might have on the export market. Another pointed out that as the packers last year made a smaller profit than the Food Administration permitted, in his opinion, to have much effect, removal of this limitation was not likely.

REFUSE COSTIGAN INQUIRY.

Aldermen Decide Not to Ask Enright for Demotion Explanation.

Alderman Falconer, Republican, made another attempt yesterday to hale Police Commissioner Enright before the board and have him explain his demotion of Inspector Costigan. This time the Alderman coupled with his request the names of former Inspectors Tierney and Morris, who have been reduced in the last few days. The matter came before the board in the form of a resolution which asked that the Commissioner be directed to appear before the board and furnish full information on the following questions:

"In view of the excellent record made by Inspector Costigan as head of the vice squad, both in his own and other inspection districts, and in view of his high reputaton for honesty and courage, well known to the public and the police force, what, in detail, were your reasons for demoting him to a Captaincy?

"Give full information to the board as to Inspector Costigan's record for arrests, both as Inspector and as head of the vice squad, and also as to the records of all other Inspectors.

"What, in detail, are your reasons for demoting Inspector Tierney of Brooklyn? Give full information to the board as to Inspector Tierney's record for arrests.

"What, in detail, were your reasons for demoting Inspector Morris to a Captaincy? Give full information to the board as to Inspector Morris's record for arrests."

On motion of Alderman Kenneally, Democrat, the resolution was tabled.

ARREST A. D. CHAMBERLAIN.

Broker Charged with Grand Larceny, as Well as Taking Sons.

Acting on information from his wife, who charged that he had taken their two sons on the day of the 27th Division parade and failed to return them, detectives yesterday found Arthur B. Chamberlain, who described himself as an oil and stock broker, at the Stratford House, an apartment hotel in East Thirty-second Street, and arrested him, not on his wife's charge, but on a bench warrent alleging grand larceny. The warrant was issued on Oct. 31 last, after Chamberlain had been indicted on complaint of Mrs. Edna T. Rice of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Rice told the Grand Jury she had met Chamberlain at the Waldorf in August, and had been so impressed with him as a business man that she turned over to him ten shares of the City Service Corporation of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Chamberlain has been separated from her husband for three years. She said she had received legal custody of their two children. On the day of the parade, she charged, he took them to see the soldiers and did not return them.

Champ Clark's Son Is Promoted.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — Former Speaker Clark received a cablegram today from his son, Bennett Clark, former Parliamentarian of the House, now with the army in France, announcing his promotion from Lieutenant Colonel to Colonel. Colonel Clark expects to return to the United States within a few weeks.

Install Bishop Gibbons at Albany.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Right Rev. Edmund F. Gibbons, recently consecrated Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Albany, was installed today. Solemn ceremonies, attended by prominent clergy from all parts of the State, marked the installation. Among the participants was Archbishop Hayes of New York.

THREE CONCERTS FILL DAY.

Elias Breeskin, Harry Cumpson, and Manna-Zucca Heard.

Elias Breeskin, a violinist of New York's own, gave his long-postponed recital in Carnegie Hall last evening before a big, friendly house. He is a player of vigorous style, shown in Bach's first sonata for violin alone, and, with Josef Adler, in Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole." There were other numbers by Friedman, Bach, Friedberg, Auer, Kreisler, and Godowsky.

Harry Cumpson, just discharged from the army, made a successful first appearance as pianist yesterday in Aeolian Hall, where his serious numbers ranged from Beethoven's sonata ("quasi una fantasia") to Franck's prelude, chorale, and fugue. He also gave Tschaikovsky's piano variations and lighter pieces by Gliere, Rachmaninoff, and Moszkowski.

Mana Zucca was assisted by eight artists in a program of her own compositions last evening at Aeolian Hall. She played with Carl Deis a piano concerto and part of a trio with Nicholas Garaguai, violin, and William Durieux, 'cello. There were solo songs for Irene Williams, Harriet McConnell, Ruth Bender, George Reimherr, and Luigi Montesanto.

Mrs. Sawyer Lectures on Da Vinci.

Mrs. Bannell Sawyer, a lecturer on art, delivered the third of her series of interpretive lectures at the Hotel Plaza yesterday afternoon, her subject "Leonardo Da Vinci." Slides of masterpieces by the great Renaissance painter were shown and the master's work commented upon by Mrs. Sawyer, who also dwelt upon the life-story of Da Vinci as it reacted upon his art and was influenced by it. She emphasized the robustness of his work and the remarkable poise shown in the faces of Da Vinci's women. The closing lecture of the series, on Michael Angelo, will be held at the Plaza on April 8.

TO SING FOR VACATIONISTS.

Geraldine Farrar Will Appear at Metropolitan Concert.

A concert for the benefit of the Vacation Association will be held at the Metropolitan Opera House next Tuesday evening, when Geraldine Farrar will sing two groups of songs, the first from French composers and the second Russian and Norwegian. Serge Rachmaninoff will play his own concerto in C minor for pianoforte and orchestra. The Philadelphia Orchestra, conducted by Leopold Stokowski, will give Rachmaninoff's air for a choir of solo violins, Rimsky-Korsakoff's overture, "Russian Easter," and "Scheherazade," and Tschaikovsky's symphony "Pathétique."

Miss Anne Morgan is Treasurer of the association and Henry W. Taft is Chairman of the Advisory Board. The special object of the concert will be to pay off the war loan of the Vacation Association. Many prominent persons will occupy boxes and the program sellers will be recent society débutantes. The seats are on sale at the Vacation Association, 38 West Thirty-ninth Street, as well as at the Metropolitan Opera House and the leading ticket agents, and are war tax exempt.

Verdi's Requiem Mass Sunday Night

The Metropolitan opera season's closing fortnight is announced, and is to include a special performance of Verdi's Requiem Mass next Sunday evening, with a quartet of stars, Ponselle, Matzenauer, Hackett, Mardones, and Giulio Setti conducting the chorus. For the twenty-second week the operas are "L'Amore dei Tre Re" next Monday, with Muzio and Martinelli; Wednesday, "Le Prophete," Caruso and Matzenauer; Thursday, "Faust," Farrar and Martinelli; Friday, "L'Elisir d'Amore," Caruso and Barrientos; Saturday matinée, "Tosca," Farrar and Scotti, with Hackett as hero for the first time here, and Saturday evening "Oberon," with Ponselle, Martinelli, and others, for the last time this season.

FRIENDS AND ENEMIES.

Nobody wants a League of Nations that will collapse in a year, or ten years, or twenty years. The strength of the movement lies in the desire for some sort of organization that will hold together so long as humanly possible, that will operate toward the adjustment of international disputes, that will contribute toward keeping the peace, and peace with justice.

What kind of a league will do this? It is a little hazardous to predict just what would be the consequence of incorporating a Bolshevist State into a League of Nations more or less democratic, but we are not dealing with theoretical Bolshevism just now. We have to consider how to handle practical Bolshevism, used as a war measure by Hungary, and perhaps by Germany. Bolshevism in Russia will continue to be a missionary creed so long as it is in power, whether Bolshevist Russia is nominally in the League or not; but that is a very different thing from Bolshevism deliberately adopted by Hungary or by Germany to prevent the establishment of the safeguards which the rest of the world deems essential to a just and enduring peace.

By giving in to the Russians, the Magyars, the Germans we might make a nominal peace with them, we might get them to give lip-service to the League of Nations. But what would they be worth? They would be the same Magyars, the same Germans, just as oppressive toward Poles and Danes and Serbs and Rumanians and Slovaks as they are today. It would be a contract which they would not hesitate to break when it served their purpose.

Concessions to them must mean the downfall, immediate or eventual, of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Jugoslavia. In those four States are nearly seventy million people, bound to us for the most part by kindred ideals, and all by identity of interest. They are a real, a weighty, and a lasting reinforcement to a league of peace. Shall we sacrifice them to buy off their enemies and ours for a term of years?

If we do, we shall presently find that the League of Nations is reduced at most to America, England, France, Italy, Belgium, and Brazil; for Japan is far away, the neutrals are likely to return to neutrality if they see a new antithesis between two great alliances, the minor Latin-American States which sided with us could not give any great help. This is a powerful combination of the Atlantic nations, but it would have to face a coalition — within or without the League in name, but against us in any event—of Germany and Russia and the old territory of the Dual Monarchy, and doubtless Bulgaria, too; the German alliance of last year, with Russia added. Do we want to fight this war again some time before 1950? Shall we help our friends in Eastern Europe while there is time, or shall we yield to the threats of our enemies?

RELENTING DRYS.

It is painful to the good to see weakening knees among the Drys. There was a bill before the New Hampshire Legislature authorizing the search of private houses for hidden stores of the forbidden juice. Surely the enemy ought to be tracked to his remotest nook and corner. No premises should be allowed to shelter moral dynamite. Yet the New Hampshire Legislature was not equal to its great duty. The Search bill failed, although the majority against it was small. At Albany also the captains of righteousness have lost something of their old boldness. The State Anti-Saloon League scarcely contains even 3 per cent. of real spirit, of austere resolution. In behalf of the league, Senator Thompson has introduced an amendment to its Desert-Dry Prohibition Enforcement bill, providing that "private dwellings" shall not be subject to domiciliary visit and search by the functionary humorously styled the State Welfare Commissioner and his deputies.

Let us turn sorrowfully from these backslidings and ponder a more characteristic and orthodox amendment. This "makes it a crime for any one "to have in his possession fermented "cider that has not been dealcoholized. Under the clause any one permitting cider to ferment must attach a label to the container giving "the date on which the cider was "made." This is a brave amendment, worthy of the master mind of the league, our ruler. What punishment, however "lingering and humorous," can be adequate for such a crime? The children of darkness may pretend that it may be a little difficult for the possessor of a bottle of cider to know its chronology, and the farmers may resent this inquisition into the disposition of the daughter of the apple; but the good will rejoice. Married to whisky, hard cider, a partner in "stone fence," is one of the most pugnacious, malignant, and devilish of drinks. The Drys at Albany, while manufacturing a new "crime," don't go far enough. Apple trees should be prohibited. Even that prohibition does not go far enough on the road to perfect prohibition. This accursed process of fermentation is the root of all the evil of drink. Fermentation should be prohibited by constitutional amendment, an amendment to be as adequately and successfully enforced as its latest predecessor.

THE SPIRIT OF THE SOLDIERS.

General O'Ryan ought to be accepted as a competent witness to the state of mind prevailing in our citizen armies. His address before the Members' Council of the Merchants' Association yesterday may be reassuring to many who have been contemplating the rapid spread of Bolshevism among peoples politically undeveloped. The Americans of foreign birth in our armies, said the General, had found in this war a comprehension of the true American spirit which many of them had missed before as much through our shortcomings as through their own. Now they know what America is and they are willing to fight for it. The men who in military service have tasted the thrill of victory over a powerful foe, and victory gained by cooperation and willing obedience to law, will not easily be misled by the advocates of lawlessness and terrorism. They have seen how armies go to pieces when they are disorganized and their morale is broken, and they are gaining a realization that nations may go the same way. The spirit of the men who fought in this war is one of the most effectual guarantees that America will not go the way of nations torn from their moorings and thrust into a stage of political life for which their past history has poorly prepared them.

Equally encouraging was his report of the relations between our troops and the British. In these days when so many observers are inclined to magnify trivial and inevitable national differences it is good to hear one man who knows what he is talking about bear witness that the mass of American troops and the mass of British troops felt not only respect but liking for each other. If one believes alarmists, high and low, our armies are no longer willing to fight to complete the victory they partly won last Summer, and our people no longer know who is our enemy and who are our friends. The man who led the 27th in its brilliant victories knows more about our soldiers than the civilian pessimists.

A BAD TRUST ENDED IN A BAD WAY.

The agreement between the Attorney General and the Corn Products Trust enables the trust to escape the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission. Also it deprives the Supreme Court of its opportunity to review the case on appeal, and thus to clarify the anti-trust law under conditions favorable to the law and its administrators. The agreement between prosecutor and defendant is severe enough to do substantial justice, but it cannot receive the same approval as the same sentence in the orderly administration of law. The present Attorney General is a lawyer of high repute and with his official record still to make. He is following in the footsteps of his predecessor, who did not promote good understanding between business and the law by preventing the decision of the Supreme Court when defendant trusts, confident of their position before the law, pressed for the certification of their character under official aspersion. Now the new Attorney General altogether averts the decision of the Supreme Court in a case so bad that the defendants abandon their appeal. If the case stood alone, it might be dismissed with rejoicing that justice is done substantially. But it is not possible to agree that the opinion of any lawyer should be substituted for the decision of the Supreme Court.

Particularly is this true when the effect is to establish the practice of business under license of the Department of Justice. The theory of our laws is that everything is lawful which is not forbidden by law. It is a step toward autocracy and bureaucracy to substitute for that freedom under the law submission either to the opinion of the Attorney General or the Federal Trade Commission. It is difficult to comply with statutes and the law of reason. Compliance with rules made in accordance with what officials in the exercise of discretion may regard as unfair competition and unfair restraint of trade is possible only by mind reading. No procedure is welcome which puts business in that dilemma, no, even if the statutes do confer particular duties on officials. The Department of Justice's duty is as much to take the opinions of the courts when the trusts appeal to them as when the department prosecutes the trusts. But the Attorneys General have eased the law for the bad trusts and made it difficult for the good trusts.

The resemblance in the cases of the Harvester and Corn Products Trusts is generally remarked. The differences are more striking. The Harvester Trust was a certified good trust, and it sacrificed its chance of getting a certificate of character from the court for the sake of freedom from persecution. The Corn Products Trust is a certified bad trust. The court punished it for its conduct, not for its conspiracy in restraint of trade. The conspiracy was a failure, an "impossibility," in the word of the court, from the nature of the business done. There can be no monopoly in products of corn. But the restraint of trade was heinous. The conspiracy to restrain competition was proved by the trust's records, exchanged between its officers in type without signatures, for reasons not necessary to suggest. Judge Hand said:

> Permeating the whole of their conduct * * * there runs the intent which I have mentioned—an intent the execution of which it is the precise purpose of the Anti-Trust act to foil.

He declared that the proof left in his mind no doubt of the "continuous "and deliberate purpose to dominate" the industry which could not be monopolized by every means which ingenuity could suggest. Capital punishment was the sentence, and the trust has since lived under appeal and injunction. By confession after conviction and the grace of the Attorney General it escapes. We have learned that it is as much the duty of the regulators of railways and utilities to protect as to punish those under jurisdiction. Is it not time to appreciate that the same is equally true of business in general?

The trust has thrived more since its conviction than before, and its shares rose upon the Attorney General's settlement of its affairs. Good trusts suffer more than bad from such administration of the law, which rather confuses than clarifies. It is time for decisions which decide for the good of good trusts rather than for compromises which benefit bad trusts and hinder decisions. The entire body of trade is to be considered rather than any fraction, however large.

BESSARABIA.

While Hungarians, Ukrainians, Bolsheviki, are attacking Rumania, and the Bulgarians threatening to attack it, two alleged delegates, one of whom bears the interesting name of Schmidt, are in Paris, pretending to have a "direct mandate" from "the Bessarabian people" to protest against the Rumanian occupation, to play on the thinning string of "self-determination," to ask for a plebiscite. The delegates say "the Bessarabians are "Russians, and will never accept Ru-"manian rule." Two very ingenious gentlemen. What are the facts in the case? From the fourteenth century to the nineteenth, Bessarabia belonged to the Rumanian Principalities. Before the fourteenth century the house of the Bessarabs ruled on both sides of the Danube to the sea. At the beginning of the nineteenth century Bessarabia, the district of some seventeen thousand square miles along the Black Sea, the Dniester and the Pruth, was still Moldavian. In 1812 Russia, which had been beating the Turks, decided to make all Moldavia hers. Napoleon, then getting ready his fatal Russian expedition, stirred up the Turks to oppose peace on the Russian terms. Through the treachery of a Turkish official, the Russians found out Napoleon's game. They made peace at once, snapping up Bessarabia as their spoils.

There began the separation of the Rumanians of Bessarabia from those of Moldavia and Wallachia. In 1856, after the Crimean War, certain districts in the south of Bessarabia were given back to Rumania. In the Turko-Russian War the Rumanians fought on the Russian side, saved the Russians from defeat at Plevna. Andrassy and Bismarck were determined that Russia and Rumania should not be friends. Therefore, at the Berlin Congress, they had Bessarabia given to Russia. The scum of many nationalities, divers sects of those queer religious cranks that pullulate in Russia, various political nomads, went into Bessarabia. The Russian bureaucracy and the Russian Church did their best to Russianize the Rumanians, the "Moldavians" as they term themselves. These efforts were mostly fruitless. Most of the Rumanians continued faithful to their language and their nationality. A few of the nobles were won over. One of them was the great landholding family of Krupenski. One of the "delegates" at Paris is said to be "a large Bessarabian landholder" named "Kronpensky." Possibly it is a misprint for "Krupenski."

With the highly imaginative statistics manufactured and presented by these two "delegates," showing that 58 per cent. of the population is non-Rumanian and opposed to annexation, it is scarcely necessary seriously to deal. In 1812 Bessarabia contained about 851,000 Rumanians and 80,000 persons of other nationality. In 1862, according to an official report by a member of the Russian General Staff, three-fourths of the population was Rumanian. In 1890 and 1900 Russian official reports showed practically the same figures. The ethnographical map of the French historian, Mr. Rambaud, makes the Rumanians a clear majority of the population. According to Mr. "Kronpensky" and Mr. Schmidt, if "the Moldavian element," which they graciously reckon at 47 per cent., had the privilege of self-determination it would vote "overwhelmingly in favor of Russian sovereignty." What is "Russian sovereignty"? The tender sway of Bolshevism? The Russian revolutionists let Bessarabia have the right of self-determination. The Bessarabians elected a National Assembly. By a vote of 86 to 3 the National Assembly voted for union, or rather reunion, with Rumania. That appears to be a sufficient act of self-determination. Of course, when Germany, forcing a cruel peace upon Rumania, gave her Bessarabia, truly Rumanian, however received or withheld, Germany hoped to make trouble for Rumania in the end. The "delegates" from Bessarabia at Paris seem to be playing the German-Bolshevist game.

COMING INTO LINE.

We need not worry about the Republican Party. It is very much excited now, but when the time comes it will step into line and support the League of Nations. Not only that, but it will support the League of Nations which President Wilson and the Versailles Conference are organising. The latest evidence of that is contained in the remarks of Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, who says:

> I believe Kansas is overwhelmingly for a League of Nations. I am emphatically for it, because I believe it to be a great step toward an enduring peace, which is the hope of the world and which the world must and will have. The people now are demanding that for which they gave freely all that humanity has to give and for which our boys died in France. It is unthinkable they will be content with less. The principle and the idea are right. Our isolation is no longer possible. Real progress in the movement to prevent war and to stop military rivalry is America's demand.

Senator Borah is a great deal less belligerent than he was; he, too, can see the advantage of a League of Nations. As for Mr. Lodge, he has always been open to reason. Senator Kenyon has seen the light. Soon Mr. Poindexter will find himself alone. The Root amendments seem to find favor in Paris. In other words, the country is getting together. Mr. Capper, perhaps with a desire to save his face, says he will vote against any league proposed by the President, but adds that "it should be "understood the people will show "scant mercy to the mere political "obstructions."

Senator Capper, we may assume, will forget his Chauvinism and come into camp when the recruiting sergeant calls his name. All things considered, it begins to look like a nearly unanimous vote. If James A. Reed stands out—which he didn't do on the Food Conservation bill—he will give unexpected proof of firmness. It is not even past hope that Miles Poindexter will change his mind before that time comes. A League of Nations acceptable to the great mass of the people and to the ablest leaders would be a thing pretty hard to hold out against.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

All Danger Has Not Yet Passed.

It is easy enough to agree with the general tenor of the reasoning on which the new Attorney General bases his refusal to accept from private organizations help in hunting down offenders against the law and in securing the conviction of seditious agitators. As he says, our theory of government is strongly antagonistic to any system of espionage and denunciation carried on by others than the Government's own regularly authorized agents.

On the other hand, however, Mr. Palmer might have been a little more cordial than he was in recognizing that the organizations to which he referred were founded with the best of motives, and that during the war their members in many instances brought to justice public enemies who otherwise almost certainly would have escaped discovery and arrest. The conflict then was with the friends of Germany, and some of them were of a kind who could work much harm to national interests before they attracted the attention either of municipal police or of detectives in the service of the Department of Justice. Timely disclosure of their wicked activities was possible only when made by their neighbors, and this was done in innumerable instances, greatly to the country's benefit.

Conditions are changed now, but it is a change in the object of the evildoers rather than in their numbers or their methods. Bad as was the German spy, he was not worse nor more dangerous than is the would-be destroyer of all civilized government, and the Attorney General has perhaps been a little hasty in telling the patriotic and defensive societies that their help in guarding the Republic is neither needed nor welcome.

A Double Success Achieved.

There hardly could be more trustworthy evidence that Admiral Sims has displayed judgment, tact, and high professional ability in the performance of a task in not a few ways difficult and delicate than the cordiality displayed by the numerous friends who assembled on Monday in London to bid him farewell when he started for home. They included, apparently, as many British as Americans, as many army men as navy men, and civilians of every rank were also present in even greater numbers.

As commander of the American fleet sent to British waters to assist in keeping the seas free for the movement of allied troops and in protecting the commerce that served the Allies, the American Admiral was required to do more than ordinary war service against an ingenious and ruthless enemy. He was obliged to co-operate with another navy, to fall in with plans and methods already in great part determined. Opportunities for the display of jealousy, for refusal to change established habits in the meeting of new conditions, and for the meticulous preservation of independent authority while in a position of temporary subordination—all these were abundant, but Admiral Sims, so far as ever has been reported or even whispered, did not utilize one of them.

Instead, he maintained the best of relations, not only with his own officers and men, but with those of the associated navies, and the result has been enthusiastic recognition and proclamation that the work of the American ships and the American sailors was invariably efficient in promotion of the common cause. If there have been any little misunderstandings and petty bickerings—and probably there have been, for navy men are human, not a little "temperamental," and have the defects of their qualities—such troubles have been kept out of sight and hearing, where they belonged.

So, not only has Admiral Sims given in full measure his country's help on the sea in winning the war, but he has also won other victories, perhaps as important in the way of smoothing out ancient animosities and in strengthening international friendships.

Revolution Without One Tremor.

When one remembers the number of activities, great and small, that were affected by setting forward the watches and clocks of the nation Sunday morning, the apparent disproportion between the means employed and the results accomplished is nothing less than astounding. Something over 100,000,000 people changed by an hour their time of getting up in the morning and of going to bed at night—and of everything they do between those two important episodes in daily life. And after a single day nobody notices that anything has happened!

That last assertion exaggerates a little, perhaps, but even the few who as yet do notice a difference in their day will adjust themselves to it without any real difficulty or inconvenience, and if they do not forget their grievance within a week it will be because they like to have one.

Europe, with its longer experience of daylight saving, now accepts it with as much composure as do people everywhere the seasonal mutations in the time of sunrise and sunset. Having been absurdly slow to follow the fashion, we have not come yet quite to that point, but in all probability we shall do so in another year, and after that there will be no more pleas for relief from a procedure that confers more benefits at less expense than any other known to man.

Opposition to the change is about as sensible as that which has for so long prevented the Russians from harmonizing their calendar with the one used by most other nations advanced enough to have a calendar. To do it, the Russian peasants said, would deprive thousands of them of one of their birthdays and so rob them of a year of life! Of course there is no reasoning with folk of that sort—no more than with those who see "blasphemy" in having the hands of a clock point to the figure 1 when the sun is at the zenith—or thereabout.

Young Officers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest the letter of your correspondent, William H. A. Hall, and I expect that his candidate, Major Hackett, (University of Vermont, 1917,) wins for the place of the youngest Major in the army, as he will not be 23 years old until next June. However, Mr. Hall's letter tempts me to remind your readers that Major Murray Taylor (Harvard, 1918) of our own 106th United States Infantry, was 23 years old only last December. The Lieutenant Colonel of the 106th has been transferred by the War Department, I understand, to other duties, and Major Taylor is Acting Lieutenant Colonel of the regiment. So I will stretch a little and set up the claim that he is the youngest Lieutenant Colonel in the army.

"A THING OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER."

—A poem in The Times.

In days of strife, when e'en men's thoughts are bloody,
And rampant bards bid letters bleed afresh,
We yearn for times when lifeblood, warm and ruddy,
Enlivened minds that still the world enmesh.
To these we give allegiance deep and hearty,
And, as the sigh escapes, "O Lord, how long!"
Turn gladly from the Bolshevists of party
And Bolshevists of song.

We who have bowed to Helen's soulful beauty,
Or yielded to Nausicaa's maiden grace,
Beheld Antigone's filial sense of duty,
Or seen Alcestis deathward turn her fade;
We who with Pindar oft have watched the moonshine
Bathe with its light Olympia's olive trees,
Or with Theocritus have seen the noonshine
Glint from Sicilian seas;

We who have thrilled at Dido's deathless passion,
And with Aeneas witnessed men unborn,
Heard Delia's sweetheart plead in knightly fashion,
And Ovid grieve while exiled and forlorn;
We who upon philosophy have pondered,
While genial Horace lightened half life's load,
As hand in hand we dreamily have wandered
Along the Tibur road—

We know that days when poesy was youthful
Gave stateliest utterance to men's high dreams,
That types of grandeur, radiant still and truthful,
Shine and will shine with ever brightening beams;
That men all ancient loveliness will cherish
While centuries come, live on, and then pass by;
That symmetry and music cannot perish,
That beauty cannot die.

WARREN H. CUDWORTH.

THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY.

Ludendorff's Revolution and the Schemes of the Junkers for a Restoration.

By Dr. FRANK BOHN.

THIRD ARTICLE.

There has been no real revolution in Germany. The present Government of Germany bears no semblance to democracy, as democracy is understood in France, England, or America. To gain a clear view of this we must begin by relating the true history of the November "revolution." The exact facts of this remarkable affair I have already cabled from Europe. Let me state them again.

In October and November of last year the Imperial German Government constantly increased and varied the camouflage by which it hoped to impress President Wilson and the American people that it was "democratic." Finally Ebert and Scheidemann were taken into the Government. Still no return of the peace bird and no armistice. Meanwhile at the end of October, Austria had crumbled, the German armies were being driven back in confusion from the western front. On Nov. 1 the Ludendorff Government, through the German Legation in Switzerland, asked help of the German democratic exiles. The question was put point blank: "What conditions would be demanded absolutely by the Allies as regards the democratizing of Germany? Would not Die Freie Zeitung undertake to state what those conditions must be?" But that paper and its supporters refused point blank to have any relationship whatever with the representatives of the German Government. "Previously," they said, "something of this sort might have been done. Now it is too late."

The next movement of the Berlin Government was to proclaim a Socialist revolution through its propaganda department. For this purpose, Herr Réné Schickele was ordered to proceed from Berne to Berlin. Schickele was an agent of the Kultur Propaganda section. The chief of this section was Count Kessler, who himself proceeded to Berlin to superintend the job. The organization used was "Das Bund des Neuen Vaterland." This organization was one of Ludendorff's "democratic" and "revolutionary" lightning-rods. Many honest but dull-witted democrats in Berlin belonged to it, but the Executive Committee was entirely directed by the Ludendorff agents. On Friday, Nov. 8, the committee met at the home of Herr Paul Cassierer. This Cassierer had very recently been a German secret service agent in Switzerland. At this meeting Réné Schickele wrote the proclamation of revolution. The Government printing presses turned out enormous numbers of these for distribution that night. At daybreak this manifesto, closing with the stirring words: "Long live the Democratic-Socialist Republic of Germany!" appeared on every billboard and lamp-post of Berlin. On the evening of the 9th the "revolution" was duly consummated. Immediately thereafter the Crown Prince himself reported to Ebert and asked for instructions.

Every true German democrat, either in Germany or in exile in Switzerland, understands the German Government of today and is speaking his mind against it. In every issue Die Freie Zeitung in Berne warns the democratic world against this Government, and urges the facts upon the Governments of the Allies and upon the Peace Conference at Paris. The Government of Germany today is a government of weaklings and crooks, held in place by the mailed fists of the Junker class. Its military protection and the entire disposition of its military force is under control of the old military chiefs. The military régime functions exactly as it did during the war. Recently, Ludendorff made a certain demand upon the Congress of Weimar. The Congress hesitated. Ludendorff sent his messenger by airplane, giving Scheidemann and Ebert a time limit to comply with his demand or take the consequences of his displeasure. That Junker machine organization is intact, and I believe that its chances of success are excellent.

Let us examine a little more closely the conditions of this class of German military aristocrats. I have been trying to say to all who would listen during these four and a half years: "Do not believe the stories of the political incompetence that are so often told about the Junkers." Their defeat in the war was due to a whole series of unlucky accidents.

As the exiled Professor Robert Michels of the University of Basle, himself born a Junker and having served as a cavalry officer, said to me recently, "The German Junker possesses an efficiency of a peculiar sort. He combines physical strength, patient thought, and vigorous action to a degree that the world has never yet fully realized." This Junker class has lost during the war, compared to the other German classes, almost nothing. German infantry and artillery tactics were most carefully evolved to the end of saving the life of the commissioned officer. The German Government has never dared publish the statistics of officer casualties. The agricultural lands and equipment of the Junkers are intact. Prices for its products are so high that its internal banking power has enormously increased. This class knows from its study of history that every revolution is naturally followed by a counter-revolution. The Stuarts came back and the Bourbons, so why not the Hohenzollerns? Prince Eitel Friedrich will be chosen for "Der Tag" when they again come into their own. Let no one judge this class according to ordinary business or professional standards. To them their social and political status is infinitely more precious than life itself. They will plan with careful discernment and fight with the bitterness of despair against any forces that may be brought against them. They are favored by friendly influences in certain of the allied countries—influences which it would amaze the world to have exposed to public view.

What is the attitude of the Ludendorff machine and the class which it represents toward Bolshevism? My answer is that it is exactly the same as it was toward political democracy. During the war it would hound the democracy to the jail and to the shadow of the gallows one day, and coddle and use it the next. The Junkers have Rosa Luxemburg beaten to death with clubs and her body thrown into the canal, while they use her followers as agents in Russia. Wherever the Russian Bolshevist goes to start a revolution in a neutral country or against an allied democratic government, he is helped by German advice and German money. A representative of the Russian Bolshevist "Red Cross" recently appeared in France with a bank credit of 5,000,000 rubles in his pocket. There is only one place in the world where a Bolshevist can secure that credit for Western Europe, and that place is Germany.

Meanwhile, in Germany itself, there is not the slightest danger of real Bolshevism. When Bolshevism is proclaimed in Berlin and Leipsic, its sole purpose will be to escape the indemnities. If they can put over the propaganda work they expect to accomplish in Italy and France they will pay not a penny. Russian Bolshevism cannot possibly be established in a country which has developed the machine process. This offspring of war, starvation, and barefoot illiteracy cannot be applied to the industrial processes of modern civilization. The German workers, accustomed to the use of machinery and to function in large industrial organizations, will never accept Bolshevism unless the idea is propagated for temporary political purpose from above. The evolution of industrial democracy in Germany, as in Britain, must proceed by industrial organization, not by the formation of chattering soviets on a local and provincial basis. This is the fundamental argument of democratic Socialism against Bolshevism. And it is a conclusive argument to any logical and informed mind outside of Russia. Lenine and Trotzky are both sterile, old-fashioned socialist theorists who have not the slightest understanding of the social implications and democratic tendencies of modern industrialized countries like Britain or America. Their field of operations is a nation nine-tenths of which are still living in the fourteenth century. But Russian Bolshevism in Berlin, O. K.'d at the German headquarters itself by Ludendorff, will probably fool Paris and the American Peace Commissioners at Paris just as the German "Socialist Republic" fooled them. For the Junkers, the straight road back into direct power by counter-revolution lies through Bolshevism. To all doubting Thomases I say, "Just wait until the bill of indemnities is presented."

German Bolshevism will have the sanction of the majority of the French Socialist Party and the active sympathy of some of the leading politicians of the British Labor Party. Under these conditions the scene presented at Paris partakes of the ludicrous. A number of elderly and most sedately respectable gentlemen gathered about a table at the Quai d'Orsay debate the size of the indemnity. Shall it be twenty billions of dollars, or forty billions, or eighty billions of dollars? Of the actual force at work from the Rhine to the Volga they have about as clear a conception as a fish in the sea has of the hook and line with which it is caught.

THE LEAGUE COVENANT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The opponents of the proposed League of Nations seem to have chosen George Washington as their patron, yet show no evidences of having read further in his writings than one sentence in the Farewell Address. These words from a letter written in 1785 to Patrick Henry, that fiery patriot who opposed the adoption of the Constitution by the infant States, have a strangely familiar ring today:

"I wish the Constitution which is offered had been more; but it is the best that could be obtained at this time, and a door is opened for amendments hereafter. The political concerns of the country [substitute world] are suspended by a thread. The convention has been looked up to by the reflecting part of the community with a solicitude hardly to be conceived, and if nothing had been agreed on by that body anarchy would soon have ensued, the seeds being deeply sown in every soil."

Also anent same topic, letter to Carter:

"All the opposition to it that I have seen is addressed more to passion than to reason. What will be the consequences of a fruitless attempt to amend the one which is offered before it is tried or of the delay of the attempt does not in my judgment need the gift of prophecy to predict."

Anent the loud cry that Washington would never have considered an international spirit:

"I never expect to draw my sword again. I can scarcely conceive the cause that would induce me to do it. My first wish is to see the whole world at peace, and its inhabitants one band of brothers striving who should contribute most to the happiness of mankind. As a citizen of the great republic of humanity I indulge the idea that the period is not remote when the benefits of free commerce [heavens!] will succeed the devastations and horrors of war."

Dr. Charles Colhoun of Rutherford has called my attention to the rich mine of suggestive material given in Bancroft's history which those who reverence the fathers should peruse thoughtfully today.

A Soldier's Protest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a discharged wounded soldier of the 27th Division, and prior to the parade on March 25 I wrote the Mayor's Committee asking for tickets for the parade, but received no reply. I had made application to the commanding officer of my organization, who referred me to the Mayor's Committee in the Hall of Records.

On Friday, March 21, I presented myself with discharge paper at the office of the above mentioned committee, pressing myself through a crowd of civilians, politicians, and other ticket seekers, who were there in great number. There were some soldiers, also of the 27th Division, seeking tickets. We were then referred to Divisional Headquarters, located on the same floor in Hall of Records. There our names were taken and we were told that the list of names would be turned over to the Mayor's Committee, who would have the tickets mailed to us.

On Monday, not having received the tickets by mail, as promised, I went to the Hall of Records again. In company with other soldiers, wounded and discharged men, demanded the tickets, that, in accordance with the publicity given, boasting of the committee's efforts in distributing tickets to the soldiers, we were entitled to. There we were told, after protesting vigorously, that all the tickets were given out, this although we formed part of the so-called 35,000 men of the division.

Picture the indignation we felt at this situation, on learning that there had not been ample provision made, or, if there had, we had been so inexcusably neglected. This is entirely due to the poor management of the so-called Mayor's Welcome Committee.

A Stenographer Present.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would it be impertinent for me politely to offer a quibbling correction on last paragraph of League of Nations article on front page of Friday's Times? The article states: "There were no stenographers present." This is not exactly precise. Our President was present, and hasn't he been an expert stenographer for some years? C. N. H.

SAYS SOLDIERS ARE BOLSHEVIKI'S FOES

Maj. Gen. O'Ryan Declares That Former Fighters Are Bulwarks of Law and Order.

CALLS THEM DEPENDABLE

Martin Littleton Also Declares That American Soldiers Stand for the Constitution.

Men of New York's divisions, as they return to civil life, will form a great bulwark of law and order, according to a declaration by former Major Gen. O'Ryan at the Merchants Association luncheon yesterday in the Hotel Astor.

"Many people are asking what is to become of this division," said General O'Ryan.

"That will very largely rest, temporarily at least, with the authorities of this State," he went on, "and I hope ultimately with the authorities of the United States. So far as the officers and men of the division are concerned, it is their wish, because they feel it an obligation to stay with this division long enough to re-establish it, to rehabilitate it in some status having a relation to a proper military policy in the future. In that connection we hear talk about the possibilities of Bolshevism, and people of good judgment seem to think that danger exists, that perhaps problems of that character confront our people. Let me tell you something. We have left in our division now—and many other men who were transferred from us to other divisions as noncommissioned officers and as officers, are coming back to us—in this division are left pretty nearly, or, rather, more than 20,000 men who are better Americans today than they ever hoped they would be before this war began.

"They are not excitable, they are not emotional, they are not enthusiastic, but they are tremendously dependable. They are men who know and appreciate certain fundamental things which educated men know, and which they know partly by education and partly by observation and experience, and these things are the necessity for law and order. They know that when men work together in a common enterprise for the common good they are entitled, each man, to have his own point of view; but that when action commences all the points of view must be co-ordinated for the common good under authorized leadership.

Standard the Same for All.

"These men have followed up a retreating army, and these men have observed parts of that army disorganized, where every man was a law unto himself, and they know what that means. Nobody can fool those men on that subject. You will find these men a tremendous potential force in their reorganized condition, a tremendous force for law and order, each and every one of them.

"You will find that what I have said in relation to the standard of Americanism of the men of this division will have equal application to the men of the 77th and of the Rainbow, and all the other divisions that are to return either to New York State or to the other States through the Port of New York."

Following this statement by General O'Ryan regarding the attitude of the returning American soldier to Bolshevism and unrest, Martin Littleton voiced the plea that the 4,000,000 Americans who took part in the war, disregarding the courses of other countries and even any favorable action on the part of the Peace Conference itself, should stand together against permitting Bolshevism to get any foothold in this country. Coming just after Major Gen. O'Ryan's declaration, Mr. Littleton's address gave opportunity for the largest gathering ever assembled at one of these functions to express its approval of the theme of the speakers. Mr. Littleton started by stating his belief that the country today confronts not a war between the people and the privileged classes, but between the absolutism of the mob and the constitutional government of a free people, and continued:

Four Million Men the Answer.

"If there have been in this country, and there has been to some extent, those who would translate our concrete nationalism into a sort of a fluid humanitarism, that would flow out over the world and mean nothing and achieve nothing; if there are those who would translate that into a sort of dissolution of powers; if there are those here, the answer to them will be given by the 4,000,000 men who, in one service or another, went to sustain this contest on Europe's battlefields.

"And if we at home have been lulled into some sort of security that seek to preach pacifism and socialism and communism, that seek to compromise with it, the 4,000,000 boys that are returning to this country will help give the answer, because they have seen with their eyes, they have felt in their sensations, they have experienced in the terror and the fear and the agony of war and have known the anguish and suffering.

"I claim we do not drink fully enough at the fountains of constitutional government established on this continent. I claim that no man in this nation should ever be allowed to lift up his hand and swear to support the Constitution in taking public office who is pledged by his creed to destroy the Government which that Constitution sustains.

"I saw the first Socialist sworn into the American Congress, saw him standing at the rail, and I called the Speaker's attention to the fact that he was taking an oath to support and defend the Constitution of his country when by every pledge that he had ever subscribed, by every utterance that he had ever made, and by every vow that he had ever taken, he was dedicated to the destruction of the very Government which now took him into its bosom."

General O'Ryan said after the luncheon that he would make a statement as to his future plans today.

Men in Service Find New Enlistment Conditions Desirable.

Colonel Julius T. Conrad, in command of recruiting for New York, 461 Eighth Avenue, received a telegram from Washington yesterday saying:

"It is desired to enlist immediately 50,000 men for service in American Expeditionary Forces. Until further orders you are authorized to accept for enlistment for this service under the following special conditions: (1) White men only will be accepted; (2) enlistment will be for a period of three years; (3) acceptances will be limited to infantry, cavalry, field artillery, Corps of Engineers, and Medical Department; (4) men eligible for discharge and re-enlistment under existing instructions may also be re-enlisted under this authority. Such men may be retained after enlistment on their present duty until they can be spared or replaced."

Explaining the orders Colonel Conrad said: "Previous instructions not only permit men about to be discharged to get a leave of absence with full pay for thirty days, a travel allowance of 3 cents a mile to and from their homes, the $60 bonus allowed all soldiers on discharge from service, but assures them 20 per cent. additional to their monthly pay for foreign service as well.

"Many soldiers who have been anxious to sever all connection with the service are inquiring about the conditions with the idea of re-entering."

JAPANESE INQUIRY AS TO LAND DEAL

JAPAN IS NOT INVOLVED

Interest of the United States Limited to National Self-Defense in Colonization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Japanese Embassy in Washington today cabled to the Japanese Legation in Mexico City requesting that it inform the Embassy upon the reported negotiations between Japanese companies or subjects and the Mexican Government concerning the purchase or lease of Mexican lands for agricultural purposes.

So far as officials here have been able to ascertain, and this appears to be borne out by informal statements made in Japanese quarters today, the Japanese Government itself is not interested in any actual or contemplated efforts by Japanese individuals to obtain lands in Mexico. Nothing has been disclosed to show that the Japanese Government has any desire at this time to test the Lodge resolution or countenance any movement that might run counter to the doctrine laid down in that resolution.

It was pointed out today that the United States had no interest other than its national self-defense in respect of the acquisition by foreigners of territory in Mexico, and its interference in any commercial or agricultural undertaking in Mexico by foreigners could only be justified if such an enterprise seemed to afford a base for military or naval operations against this country.

The possibility was suggested today that the Mexican Government itself engaged in a bit of international as well as domestic politics by inspiring the statement made by Under Secretary Aguirre of the Ministry of Development and Agriculture.

In some Japanese quarters here it is doubted if Aguirre told the facts, and it is believed that it was to dispel any doubt upon this point that the embassy cabled to the legation at Mexico City for information.

CALEXICO, Cal., April 1.—Esteban Cantu, Governor of Lower California, today issued a statement that he had no knowledge of the alleged pending sale of Lower California land by the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company to a Japanese syndicate, except what he had gained from press reports.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Apr' 1.—Supplementing his denial last night that the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company, which owns and operates a tract of 830,000 acres in Lower California, contemplated any leases or other arrangements with Japanese that were not first approved by the State Department at Washington, Harry Chandler, President of the company, said today that his company had submitted a bill of $513,000 for loss of cattle, horses and other supplies in the Madero revolution, which was still in process of adjustment with the Mexican Government.

MOVE TO RESTRICT JAPANESE

Bill to Forbid Them from Leasing Land Offered at Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—A bill which would amend the California anti-alien land law to prohibit Japanese from leasing land in this State was offered in the State Senate today by Senator Inman.

He also introduced a joint resolution urging the American delegates to the Peace Conference to provide in the League of Nations covenant "that the several nations, for themselves, shall control the subject of immigration and exercise such discrimination as they see fit to preserve their population."

The resolution called attention to a proposal of Japanese delegates to the conference for "free immigration," and declared that "the free coming of non-assimilable Orientals would destroy or eliminate the white population of California and the Pacific Coast."

ACE DESCRIBES AIR FIGHTS.

Capt. Rickenbacker Tells of Thrilling Experiences in the War.

Captain Edward Rickenbacker, America's leading ace, recounted his own experiences and those of some of his fellow-aviators to a large audience last night in the Metropolitan Opera House. The lecture was given under the auspices of the American Fund for French Wounded. Dr. Henry van Dyke, who presided, lauded the work of Captain Rickenbacker and his comrades in the air service, and said they typified the true spirit of the American youth.

Captain Rickenbacker told how on one occasion he and a Hun flier circled about each other at a rate of 150 miles an hour, until he managed to get the advantage of his adversary, and sent the Hun plane crashing below. A short time after that, Captain Rickenbacker said, he was in another engagement in which a third of his propeller was shot away, and he landed in a tail spin none the worse for his experience.

Following the lecture motion pictures showing Captain Rickenbacker in actual combat with a German plane were shown.

Lieut. Commander Lovett is a son of Robert S. Lovett, who has for many years been a prominent figure in railroad development, and who is now Director of the Division of Additions and Betterments under the United States Railroad Administration. Graduating from Yale in 1918, Lieut. Commander Lovett enlisted in the Naval Aviation Service and was abroad for more than a year, returning only recently from overseas, and received his honorable discharge.

WAR WEDDING DELAYED.

British Nurse Barred from Sailing to Wed New York Soldier.

When Roy L. Archer, son of William C. Archer of Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., was wounded at the front he was sent to an American hospital at Tottenham, a suburb of London. Miss Emma Hannibal, whose father and two brothers were in the British Army, was one of the nurses at the hospital, and before Mr. Archer was invalided to this side she had become engaged to him.

She remained behind to greet her father and brothers and then made preparations to sail for New York. But she was confronted with the English law that prohibits women from leaving England for the purpose of marriage. So she cabled to her fiancé, who has told his troubles to the State Department at Washington.

If Miss Hannibal is not allowed to sail, young Archer declares that he will book passage as soon as possible, and bring his English bride to Cold Spring Harbor

EMERSON GIVES VOSHELL BATTLE IN LONG SET OF INDOOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

VOSHELL PRESSED TO BEAT EMERSON

Champion Meets Real Tartar in Young Rival in Indoor Tennis Tourney.

OTHER STARS WIN EASILY

Tilden Disposes of Beeckman and Richards Defeats Wagner in Third-Round Contests.

Long sets and upsets featured the third round of the National Indoor Tennis Championship at the 7th Regiment Armory yesterday, two likely contenders falling by the wayside, while two others had their hands full in stemming opposition of the Tartar variety. The outstanding stars, Voshell, Tilden, and Richards, came through safely, although the champion required thirty games to win his opening session against young Gerald Emerson, G. Carlton Shafer bowed unexpectedly to Lieutenant Peter Ball in straight sets, and Walter Toussaint slipped over a three-set victory on Ingo Harman in their privately played match. Frank Anderson was carried into another long set of twenty-two games before he won from George Groesbeck. Fred Anderson, Jr., and L. B. Dailey completed the octet to reach the fourth round.

The Tilden-Beeckman match, which had created some discussion and threats of a default, passed off peacefully enough in the morning hours, with the Princetonian always on the short end, what with lack of practice and the consistent brilliancy of his opponent. Tilden won at 6—2, 6—3, without ever hoisting signals of distress, and is primed for challenging the champion today. This match, which should be one of the best in the tournament, is scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning.

Voshell found the going hard yesterday, when the stocky, red-haired Emerson boy went right after him with all the speed at his command. A lucky net-cord trickler saved the opening set for the title holder, but it was a long, hard fight, full of dangerous moments before he landed on the winning end of a 16-14 score. This was a heart-breaker for the schoolboy, who faded away in the second set, Voshell running it out without the loss of a game. But even then Emerson was far from outclassed.

Vincent Richards took his own time in turning up for his match with G. A. Wagner, scheduled for 1 P. M. But once on the court, he went about the business of winning without unnecessary delay. The melancholy youngster used his baffling volleys when he needed the points, and toward the close of the second set he uncovered a speedy forehand drive which brought quicker results than his customary chop. The sets went at 6—4 and 6—3.

Frank Anderson's speed carried him to a 6—3 win in his opening set against George Groesbeck, but the veteran's court craft began to count in the second session, and the Brooklyn junior had his own troubles before he was able to claim the match at 12—10. Anderson plays Dailey for the semi-finals bracket this afternoon.

The real surprise of the day came in the defeat of Shafer by Lieutenant Ball, particularly as the match required only two sets, 6—4, 6—3. The winner's game was far more effective than it looked, his service being especially hard to handle. At the net he was awkward but steady, and his quick stabs cut off many a drive that was headed down the side lines. It was a well deserved win.

The doubles event, with twenty-two teams entered, was given a good start, both the indoor and the outdoor champions coming through their opening matches without difficulty. Voshell and Biddle, Alexander and Rosenbaum, the Anderson brothers, Allen Behr and Steinkampf, and Cragin and Campbell were other contenders to register in the winning column.

The summaries:

SCHMANDT IS IMPROVING

But Brooklyn Player Will Be Out Three Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 1.—Dr. Baumgardner made an examination of Raymond Schmandt's injured foot here today and announced that owing to the player's perfect physical condition, as the result of service in the army, the player will be able to don a uniform in about three weeks. However, it will not be until the National League season is a week old that the player will be in condition to take his post at second base. Until he gets back in the game Manager Robbie of the Dodgers will use Malone, one of his rookies, at the position.

Jimmy Hickman reported here this afternoon and will get his first workout tomorrow. During the off season the outfielder was working in a New York commercial house. He looks to be in fine shape. The only members of the club who have not yet shown up at the camp are Captain Zack Wheat and Larry Kopf. The National League's champion hitter is expected here within a few days, but it is not likely that Kopf will be seen in a Brooklyn uniform this Summer.

When Zack Wheat reports Robbie will probably shift Jimmy Johnston from left field to first base. Young Warren Adams, who has been covering the bag, has proved to be a good fielder, but is a very weak hitter.

REST TODAY IN FED. SUIT.

Organized Baseball Will Seek Directed Verdict in Its Favor.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Early adjournment of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, which is hearing evidence in the $900,000 damage suit of the Baltimore Federal League Club, to allow witnesses to return to Baltimore to vote in a city primary, prevented conclusion today of the plaintiff's case. Counsel for the club said tonight that little additional evidence would be offered by them, and upon resting of plaintiff's case tomorrow it is expected that attorneys for organized baseball will submit a motion asking for a directed verdict of the jury in its favor from the court.

Considerable documentary evidence designed to prove organized baseball a monopoly within the meaning of the Sherman Anti-Trust law was introduced today by the plaintiffs. Contracts of the National League with the Western Union Telegraph Company and with a baseball supply company, which the Baltimore Club alleged showed that the National League enjoyed special privileges, were inserted in the court records. The annual reports of the National Baseball Commission for 1916 and 1917 were also read into the record.

Robert C. Morrow, a public accountant of Baltimore, testified as to the expenses incurred by the Baltimore Federals in the course of the club's organization and general equipment. Lieut. Col. Janney, former Director of the club, told the jury of negotiations involving the future of the Baltimore Club entered into prior to the signing of the "peace pact" by the Federal League and the two other leagues.

YANKEE PITCHERS BLANK BROOKLYN

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 1.—The Spring series between the Yankees and Dodgers was evened up this afternoon when the American Leaguers took their rivals into camp by the score of 4 to 0. The National League representatives played a better game in the field, but were next to helpless with the stick, the ninth being the only inning in which Uncle Robbie's men got more than one single.

High-class pitching on both sides and the all-around work of George Halas, the Yankee recruit, were the features of the combat. Halas made the longest hit of the game in the fifth inning, driving the ball to deep left field for three bases. He also stole two bases and carried over two of the four runs scored by the Yankees. Kane and Malone, also of the rookie division, did some sparkling work in the field.

Mogridge, Thormahlen, and Russell divided up the pitching work for the Yankees, each of the trio working three innings. Mogridge set the National Leaguers down without hit or run, only nine Dodgers coming to the plate in the first three innings. Maloney drew a pass in the third, but was picked off first base a minute later. Thormahlen allowed two widely separated singles, Hi Myers getting both. Russell was reached for three hits, Myers getting one in the eighth, and in the final inning Olson and O'Mara hit safely.

The Brooklyn slabmen were Cheney, Marquard, and Mamaux, in the order named. Marquard was the most effective in keeping down the hits and runs, allowing two hits and no runs. Cheney was reached for four hits and Mamaux for three. The former Pittsburgh star did some spectacular pitching in the eighth inning, after Kane and Pipp had opened with singles. Pratt sacrificed the pair along, and Mamaux proceeded to strike out both Lewis and Bodie, two of Huggins's heavy hitters.

Peckinpaugh was unable to play, owing to an injured leg, and Ward was in his place, with Bodie on third base and Kane in Ping's position in centre field. Halas pulled up with a charley horse after breaking from the plate on an infield roller in the seventh inning, and he gave way to Sam Vick in the eighth inning. Huggins expects to have both Peck and Halas in the third game of the Brooklyn series, which is to be played Thursday.

The Yankees began their scoring in the opening frame, and Duffy Lewis, playing his first complete game in a Yankee uniform, had the distinction of chasing over enough runs to win. Halas worked Cheney for a pass, Kane got an infield hit off Cheney's hand, and Pipp sent the pair along with a sacrifice. After Pratt had dropped to Adams for the second out, Lewis lined a single to centre, on which both Halas and Kane came home.

Halas brought over another run in the third. He was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. He took a long lead off the bag, drew a throw to Malone, and then dusted along to third for another steal. He counted on Pipp's long fly to Myers, after Cheney had fanned Kane.

Huggins's men had two chances to score on Marquard, but the big southpaw put on the brakes, and retired after three innings with a clean slate. The last New York run was scored in the seventh while Mamaux was on the mound. Ruel hit along the left-field line for two bases, and made the other half of the circuit when a wild pitch got away from Krueger, the ball rolling all the way to the stand. Ruel had started for third on the pitch, and scored easily.

GIANT YOUNGSTERS PREY OF REGULARS

Yannigans Are Humbled Again by 10 to 1 Score—Doyle Has Big Day at Bat.

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., April 1.—The Giant Yannigans are going from bad to worse, and today they must have tried to play an April fool joke on McGraw. The regulars snowed them under by a score of 10 to 1.

However, the colts' infield is shot all to pieces, as Eddie Sicking joined Al Baird today in the casualty list. Sicking has a sore foot and Baird a mashed finger. They made up an infield by playing Jim Thorpe at second base and Rommell, a kid pitcher, at short. Doc Bull, a New York lad down here on his vacation, patroled right field for the kids.

Larry Doyle had no mercy on the misfit Yannigans. Larry got a parcel of hits today. In four times up he lit on Bob Steele and Bull Ryan for a triple and three singles. Larry scored four runs himself and knocked in three, accounting for seven of the ten runs. Fletcher followed close on Larry's heels. He had a double and two singles when he missed fire on his fourth attempt.

Pep Young, however, performed as though he belonged to the Yannigans. In four times up Bob Steele twice struck him out, and batting against Ryan he failed to get the ball out of the infield. Hal Chase also failed three times to get on, but in the sixth Ted Miller muffed Hal's pop fly.

McGraw continued to bring his regulars into the game today, and Jesse Barnes and Red Causey did nicely for the regulars. Between them the youngsters made only three hits. One of the blows off Barnes was a home run by Jim Thorpe. It was far over Kauff's head, and this time they couldn't take it from him, as he touched all the bases.

Bob Steele, the left hander, and Ryan, a kid collegian, took a lambasting for the youngsters. Steele held up pretty well for three innings, but was hit hard in the fourth, when the first four men up, Kauff, Doyle, Zimmerman, and Fletcher, leaned on the ball for telling swats.

Ryan went in to pitch in the fifth, and immediately the Yannigans began to pull some of the April fool stuff on him. With two out, they lumped together four successive errors. Doyle got his first hit when he beat a bounder to Miller. Larry tried to steal, and Polan's throw had him easily, but Thorpe muffed it and Doyle was safe. Polan then threw wild trying to pick Larry off second base, and he went to third. When the ball eluded Old Bill Holden, Lawrence kept right on running and scored.

McGraw had pretty near enough of the Yannigans today, and tomorrow will try something new. He will split up the teams, dividing the good players evenly between two squads, and then fill up with substitutes. He probably will give one team the regular infield and the other the regular outfield, and split the battery strength between them.

Richbourg, the University of Florida third baseman, has been invited by McGraw to report to the Giants for a tryout at the end of his college career if he cares to have a fling at professional ball. He resembles Eddie Collins in appearance and action, and is the star of the local college team.

The lineup:

Regulars—Burns, lf.; Young, rf.; Chase, 1b.; Kauff, cf.; Doyle, 2b.; Zimmerman, 3b.; Fletcher, ss.; McCarty and E. Smith, catchers; Barnes and Causey, pitchers; Sicking, pinch hitter for Barnes.

Yannigan—Gillespie, 2b.; Pitt, lf.; Rommel, ss.; Thorpe, 2b.; Bull, rf.; Holden, cf.; Miller, 1b.; O'Neill and Polan, catchers; Steele and Ryan, pitchers.

French Committee Would Allow Time to Organize Teams.

PARIS, Monday, March 3.—The French Olympic Committee has voted unanimously to abide by the resolution passed by that organization on Nov. 22, 1918, in which it and its affiliated bodies decided they would not participate in any Olympiad in which citizens of enemy nations would compete.

The committee suggests that the Olympic games should not be held before 1921, saying that sufficient time must be allowed for the organization of track and field athletics by nations which have been engaged in the war.

Regatta Will Be Resumed Next Year, Mr. Mapes Announces.

The Poughkeepsie regatta, which was dropped when this country entered the war, will be resumed in 1920. This announcement was made last night by Charles Halstead Mapes, Director of Athletics at Columbia, at a dinner given to the Columbia 'Varsity and freshmen crews at the Columbia University Club.

Mr. Mapes said that all the colleges were prepared to resume the regatta next year and that the present year would provide an opportunity to develop crews. He also spoke encouragingly of the Columbia crew and stated positively that rowing will be maintained at Columbia as a major sport. Other speakers were Francis Bangs and Fred Plaisted.

PRESS DISPUTES DECISION.

Some London Critics Think Lynch Beat Wilde.

LONDON, April 1.—None of the sporting reporters on London morning papers frankly indorses the decision by which "Jimmie" Wilde, the British flyweight champion, defeated Joe Lynch, an American boxer, on points last night. While some are content to say that the bout was very closely contested, others do not disguise their surprise, and mention sympathetically the astonishment with which the decision was received by a large part of the spectators.

LONDON, April 1.—Jimmie Wilde, the British flyweight champion, who last night defeated Joe Lynch on points, today signed a contract with C. B. Cochran, the British theatrical manager, to box Pal Moore or Pete Herman of the United States for the bantamweight championship of the world and a purse of $25,000. Wilde will issue a challenge to Moore and Herman under these conditions.

TRUMPET SOUNDS AT BOWIE TRACK

Eastern Racing Season Is Ushered In in Maryland with Good Card.

BOWIE, Md., April 1.—The Eastern racing season was formally opened here today with the Spring meeting of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association at Prince George's course. Though there was a chill in the air, the weather was clear and the track was fast, and some good racing resulted for a big crowd of the lovers of the sport which turned out.

The feature event on the card of seven races, as usual, was the Bowie Inaugural Purse, at five and a half furlongs, in which one of the two or three upsets of the day was registered. Startling, thoroughly fit, took the lead at the start and was never seriously threatened. Doyle had his mount in hand all the way. Roi Craig attempted to challenge in the stretch, but could not get up, and Charlie Leydecker tired before the finish.

The League Handicap, for three-year-olds, went to Mrs. Francis's Bolster. Jockey Mooney carried Jos. P. Murphy into the lead at the start and set a fast pace, but wore out at half the distance and was fortunate to get second place. Bolster saved ground on the turn and galloped home easing up. Dan Bright, which finished third, ran a good race, but could not stand the early pace.

The opening event on the card, a race for maiden two-year-olds, went to Amaze, which received a good ride from Robinson. The colt went to the front with the raising of the barrier and never was headed. C. S. Grayson held close to his heels for a time, but was beaten in the last sixteenth.

Margery came home at a good price in the second race, paying $13 in the mutual machines.

ROPER SEES OFFSET TO LIQUOR TAX LOSS

Launches Program to Develop Industrial Alcohol Into Source of Revenue.

MUST REPLACE $500,000,000

Deputy Keith Confers with Manufacturers Here on Meeting Prohibition Deficit.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel C. Roper, through his deputy, E. C. Keith, made public in New York yesterday a plan whereby the development of the use of industrial alcohol may be combined, he hopes, with revenue collection in such manner as to offset to a large extent the half billion loss in revenue which appears inevitable because of wartime prohibition. It was explained that, since the Treasury Department looks to the Revenue Bureau for the collection of taxes and at the same time for the national enforcement of prohibition, it is the belief of Mr. Roper that enforcement, on the one hand, and encouragement of legitimate nonbeverage production and industrial uses, on the other, can be united to the profit of the country and create a source of taxes.

Mr. Keith came here from Washington a few days ago with his assistant, H. M. Gaylord, it was announced yesterday, and has been in conference with some of the largest users of ethyl alcohol, such as soap manufacturers, perfumers, and drug and chemical houses. Before his return to Washington he will visit certain hat plants in Philadelphia and explosives factories in New Jersey. Within a few days Mr. Gaylord will begin an exhaustive survey of the industrial alcohol situation throughout the Central and Middle West in order to determine the volume of business which reasonably may be expected after July 1 next.

The total amounts of revenue for the year ended June 30, 1918, from various sources, according to Mr. Keith's statistics, are as follows:

Beverage alcohol, at $1.10 per gal.	53,268,866
Non-beverage taxable alcohol, at $2.20 per gallon	11,696,257
Fermented liquors, (beer and ale,) at $1.50 per barrel	26,259,632
Fermented liquors, (beer and ale,) at $3 per barrel	98,005,121

Extent of Industry.

Mr. Keith gave the following data on the alcohol and whisky industry which show its extent and part of which must be replaced, if it is not transformed, to become revenue producing:

ALCOHOL PLANTS.

Approximate number of alcohol plants in the United States, (1918)	64
Total daily capacity, approximately, (wine gallons)	700,000

BEVERAGE PLANTS.
(Whisky and Brandy.)

Approximate number of beverage alcohol plants in the U. S., 1917.	443
Do, 1918	172
Daily capacity, (estimated,) 1918, proof gallons	75,000
Could not be converted to alcohol plants without substantial increase in investments for new equipment.

BREWERIES.

Do, 1918	1,092
Daily capacity, 1917, (barrels)	60,817,379
Do, 1918	50,287,121
Investment, 25th	Undetermined

The total amount of alcohol, denatured, for 1918 was 55,679,597 wine gallons.

"The Commissioner," said Mr. Keith, "does not share the fears that some have expressed regarding the detrimental effect prohibition may have on the country's finances. It is true that more than $1,000,000,000 investment is represented in the beer, wine, and whisky business, and that during the year 1917-1918 $450,000,000 in revenue was obtained. During the fiscal year closing June 30, 1919, it is expected that the revenue will exceed $500,000,000. After July 1, of course, this particular source of revenue will be lost.

Studies Situation Here.

"It is a serious problem to replace this amount of money. Investigation, however, convinced the Commissioner that it should be possible to encourage the industrial use of grain alcohol, and the primary purpose of my visit here is to look into the situation in New York. Few people realize that grain alcohol—as distinct from wood alcohol—is used in a multitude of industries; it is used in the manufacture of paints and bronzes, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, perfumes, soaps, essential oils, such as oil of lemon, and all flavoring extracts; it is necessary in the production of silk, fine hats, artificial leather, dyes, explosives, rubber, all solvents, and it enters extensively into the many processes necessary to the automobile and automobile accessory business. Finally, there is its function as a fuel.

"It is safe to say that the businesses thus involved represent an investment more than double that of the liquor industry. The consumption of grain alcohol for industrial purposes last year amounted to more than 100,000,000 gallons, which, at a tax of $2.20, (present tax,) would mean a revenue of $200,000,000. Of course, under prohibition, this will remain.

"It is our task to see that prohibition is enforced. But it is also our duty to see that as much of the business as can be legitimately turned to industrial purposes is saved. By so doing we will be enabled to keep a close check on violations and will be building up a new source of revenue. The revenue bureau learns that breweries and distilleries are going into new lines. Many of them are ready to manufacture nonalcoholic beverages, on which a tax of 15 per cent. of the sale price is placed. The grain alcohol extracted from these drinks will be available for industrial use and will continue to bear a tax of $2.20 a gallon. It is safe to predict, therefore, that probably three-fourths of the present liquor and beer investment will continue and a large amount of the old revenue will be made good from new and productive sources.

Sees Uses of Breweries.

"The possibility of conversion of breweries to nonbeverage industries lies principally in the establishment of yeast and vinegar factories, cold storage plants, and the utilization of the buildings, after the removal and junking of the equipment, for various unrelated manufacturing operations requiring floor space.

"The question as to the investment in industries using industrial alcohol cannot be answered with any degree of accuracy. It must, however, be several times the total amount of money invested in alcohol plants.

"In Germany, where the alcohol industry has not only been encouraged by favorable legislation, but has been practically subsidized by the Government because of its economic importance in the development of chemical industry, the production is approximately 200,000,000 gallons per year. In the United States, with almost double the population, the production has barely reached a maximum during the war demands of 90,000,000 gallons per year. Prior to the war this production was somewhat in excess of 35,000,000 gallons per year.

"It is fair to assume that, with the impetus given to the chemical industries in the United States and with sympathetic treatment of laws covering the alcohol industry, the United States production would equal, if not exceed, that of Germany.

"It should also be noted that the economic considerations for a great alcohol industry in America are far more advantageous that those of Germany. This applies not alone in the matter of manufacture for domestic needs, but also in the production of alcohol for export."

Education Notes.

The teachers of the art departments in the high schools will tender a testimonial luncheon to Art Director James P. Haney upon the completion of ten years' service as Director. The luncheon will be held at the Hotel McAlpin on May 3.

The High School Teachers' Association says that an increase of at least 30 per cent. in the salary schedules of high school teachers, with a minimum of not less than $1,500, is needed to obtain the best kind of teachers and to keep the schools from becoming hotbeds of anarchy.

The industrial continuation class at the power plant of the Richmond Light & Railroad Company, Livingston, S. I., will be reopened.

An annex of Evening Elementary School 70, Manhattan, will be organized in the Beth-El site, 328 and 331 East Sixty-second Street, Manhattan.

The Board of Education has disapproved the recommendation of the Board of Superintendents that when, in the opinion of the Division Superintendent, it is impossible to obtain substitutes for absent teachers, the Principal of P. S. 109, Brooklyn, be authorized to employ regular teachers overtime, not to exceed two hours a day, with pay of $1.50 an hour for actual service in addition to their regular salaries.

Copper Stocks Stand in Front of Firm Price Trend—Railroad Issues Gain.

Speculative groups turned their attention to one industrial stock after another yesterday and were able to bid prices upward in fairly easy fashion. The course of prices showed, however, that after advances extending from large fractions to more than 2 points had been brought about many of the more buoyant issues became dull. The real feature of business was the strength of copper shares, coincident with information that the larger producers had raised their offering price for the metal to 15¼ cents. Whether or not this was altogether the result of competition for copper was not disclosed, but the movement was not surprising in view of the sharp decline which had occurred since the armistice was signed. The costs sheets of even the largest companies for the last six months have indicated that little if any profit could be made on 15-cent copper and it would not be unnatural for the sellers to quote higher figures if any appreciable demand at all developed. The remainder of the industrial stock list was without particular developments to affect it, and for the most part the stocks which advanced were issues which had been most favored by traders previously. Railroad stocks were a little more active and firmer than for some days past, attention being drawn to them by the War Finance Corporation's decision to sell $200,000,000 of one-year notes. The Finance Corporation has other undertakings to provide for besides the needs of the carriers, the discounting of bills originating in the export trade being one, but it was assumed that the railroads would benefit chiefly by the sale. Toward the end of the stock market day prices became somewhat irregular with a firm tone ruling until the close.

In investment quarters the forthcoming offering by the War Finance Corporation received considerable study and efforts were made to read into the 5 per cent. interest rate some degree of prophesy in respect to the Victory Liberty Loan. The ground for this, however, was not altogether of stable quality, for while the new paper is essentially of Government origin the maturity and details in respect to tax exemptions make it considerably different from the proposed Victory Liberty notes. A 5 per cent.'s rate should insure a quick distribution of the one-year notes, aided by the exemption privilege in respect to the normal income tax, and dispatch in raising funds is essential for the purposes of the War Finance Corporation inasmuch as the great Government loan is coming on shortly. The money market continues favorable to the flotation of necessary securities, the call rate going to 5 per cent. yesterday. The shading of the rate downward from 6 per cent. on Monday again emphasized the irregular character of the cost of demand loans that has been seen for several weeks.

Both sterling and francs eased downward slightly, the former recovering at the end of the day. Rates on some of the neutral countries continue to mark the declining tendency which has been in evidence ever since the rates on London and Paris were set free of support. Now that the artificial character of the exchange market at New York has been converted into a normal status, especially as regards sterling, the true effect of the adverse trade balances of certain of the neutral countries is beginning to show in their exchanges. Scandinavian rates may be mentioned as ones which have not only lost the substantial premium they once enjoyed but have gone to a sizable discount at New York.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 1.—Trading was active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 62 francs 55 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 89 centimes. Five per cent. loan 89 francs 20 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 6 francs 5 centimes to 6 francs 10 centimes.

SAYS U. S. SANCTIONS RUSSIA'S RAIL SALE

Only Materials Not Available for Siberia Sent to China, According to A. I. Lipetz.

MONEY IN EMBASSY FUND

Fear of Bolshevist Domination Not a Factor—Supplies Had Been Lent to War Department.

A statement outlining reasons for the sale for use in China of part of the railway supplies bought here for Russia before the Russian revolution was given out yesterday by A. I. Lipetz, chief of the Russian Mission of Ways of Communication, also called the Russian Railway Mission. He said it was the intention of his mission, operating under the Russian Embassy of the old régime, to use the greater part of the supplies for their original purpose of rehabilitating the Russian and Siberian railroads under the supervision of the Stevens commission. His statement follows:

"Upon consideration of the amount of rails stored in Vladivostok and the available space in steamers from this country to Russia, we have promised to the War Department, in order to help the common allied cause, to sell all rails and accessories in excess to the amount needed to be shipped to Russia, and have allotted to the War Department a considerable quantity of rails and accessories.

"After the armistice was declared the War Department began to return to us unused rails, and has returned up to this time 13,100 tons of rails and accessories; we have, therefore, found it possible to dispose of about 6,500 tons of rails and accessories, which is only a part of the rails returned to us by the War Department."

Discussing his statement, Mr. Lipetz said it was the intention to sell only the rails returned by the War Department and that the mission would retain all other supplies in this country in anticipation of successful rehabilitation of the railways in Russia and Siberia. He said that about 20,000 tons of rails remained in storage in Seattle and Vancouver awaiting transportation to Siberia.

Other property in this country includes about eighty-eight locomotives of an original consignment of 100; about 4,000 freight cars and accessories, making a total weight of more than 60,000 tons and a value of more than $6,000,000. Mr. Lipetz said that all these stores would be retained and shipped to Siberia as soon as ships were available. He asserted that the United States Shipping Board had agreed to furnish ships for the transportation of these railroad materials to Siberia, as they were needed there, and three vessels had sailed from Seattle since Jan. 1 with locomotives and accessories.

By agreement with the United States Government after the Russian revolution, Mr. Lipetz said, about 150,000 tons of rails and materials and 200 locomotives were turned over to the Allies for military use here and abroad. He added that the rails now being returned by the War Department were included in this agreement and that they were being sold now with the consent of the American Government.

It was the belief of the Russian Railway Mission, Mr. Lipetz said, that when all the rails had been returned there would be a surplus, because shipping would be available in the next few months only for transportation of about 20,000 tons. If the work in Russia progressed so that more would be needed, he said, the rails could be bought in a few months at lower price. He asserted that the sale of the 6,500 tons of rails had been negotiated at a profit, the price being about $10 more than the present price delivered at Seattle.

The money paid for the rails under the terms of the agreement, Mr. Lipetz said, would be put into the fund of the Russian Embassy in this country. It is estimated that the amount will be nearly half a million dollars.

Discussing the reasons for the sale, Mr. Lipetz denied that it was carried out because of any fear that the Bolshevist Government would be recognized or that any other political change was impending. If another Russian Government were recognized, he declared, the money on deposit for the Russian Government in this country, as well as supplies, would revert to it immediately, so that sale of materials now would withhold nothing from the Soviet régime because the money arising from the sale was to be included in the Embassy fund here.

K. J. Joyce, who has an office with the Empire State Underwriters at 32 Nassau Street, and who acted as agent in the purchase of the rails for use in China, refused yesterday to discuss the details of the sale. He said that possession of the rails already had been obtained and the United States Government had given permission for transportation to China. He said it was his information that the Russian rails had not been sold to agents representing Japanese interests a year ago because the United States Government had refused permission for the negotiation.

ALLIES ARCHANGEL'S HOPE.

Martiushin Says Bolshevist Excesses Would Follow Withdrawal.

G. A. Martiushin, former Finance Minister of the Northern Government of Russia, of which Archangel is the capital, and who is now in this country as the representative of the Co-operative Unions of the Northern Region of Russia, said yesterday that in his opinion withdrawal of the allied troops from the Archangel region would mean the destruction of the loyal Russians in that part of the country. Mr. Martiushin left Russia early last December, and is in constant communication with the anti-Bolshevist Government at Archangel. Ambassador Francis, when on the stand before the Senate Committee that investigated Bolshevism, referred to Mr. Martiushin as one of the best-informed Russians in this country and as a man of the highest standing and integrity.

"Should the allied troops leave Archangel," said Mr. Martiushin, "the Bolsheviki will swarm in, and what happened in Moscow and Petrograd will take place in Archangel. There is no question as to that. In other words, it will mean starvation and massacre at the hands of the Lenine-Trotsky combination."

"Do you know anything about Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, who is announced as the Bolshevist 'Ambassador' to this country and who yesterday made public the names of the members of his staff?" he was asked.

"No, I am not acquainted with that gentleman. All that I know about him is what I have read in the newspapers. I never heard his name mentioned in Russia."

"Ludwig Martens said the other day that all the factories in the Moscow district were running at full capacity, day and night. Do you agree with him?"

"I do not. Mr. Francis, who only left Russia a few weeks ago, said exactly the opposite. I prefer to take the word of the American Ambassador."

It is understood that the new "Bolshevist Embassy," now temporarily domiciled at 299 Broadway, will move to its permanent headquarters within the next few days. The local Bolsheviki still maintain that they believed the Government will extend commercial recognition to the Lenine-Trotsky Government, but this view is not shared by officials of the Federal Government in this city.

The Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation has been investigating for some time the new Bolshevist Embassy as well as the Bureau of Information of the Soviet Republic of Russia, of which latter branch of the propaganda Santera Nuorteva is the head. It is the general understanding that the Department of Justice investigation has failed to disclose any illegal acts by Bolshevist representatives.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER.

Old Style Contracts Up 19 to 55 Points, New Style 5 to 67 Points.

For a short time after the opening yesterday, the cottom market looked as if it might be in for a reaction. There were some advances on the first call, but Wall Street selling and some scattered liquidation by small trade accounts sent the level down 5 to 10 points under Monday's closing figures. Then, on buying from spot and large trade interests the market turned upward and on a good volume of business continued to advance for some time. The Wall Street selling, which was never very large nor very aggressive, was easily absorbed by the spot buying and during virtually all the rest of the session the bulls had control of the market.

All the news favored the bulls. The Liverpool market, which many had expected to see come in lower, because of the very bearish reports of accumulated stocks abroad and curtailed operations at the mills, was quite up to what it should have been, showing an initial gain of 19 to 30 English points, and apparently persons abroad paid no attention to the bearish reports which had agitated America. News of the Peace Conference while vague, was generally interpreted as favorable, and other foreign advices were anything but unfavorable.

News of domestic origin also worked in favor of those who expect higher prices. Cold weather was generally reported over the belt and in many places freezing weather was said to prevail. However, probably the most important factor of all in the market was the patent accumulation of near months by trade and spot houses which usually swing large lines. This, more than anything else, aided in sending prices up. At the close the advance in old-style contracts ranged from 15 to 55 points for active months, and in the new-style contracts the gains were up to 67 points, and as small as 5 points in the far months. In both new and old style contracts the market showed greater strength for near months than for the more distant options.

SEES TAXES FIXING FORM OF BUSINESS

Dr. Klein Says Liability Determines Whether Ventures Shall Be Corporations.

ENUMERATES NEW FACTORS

Shows How Change to Partnership Increased One Firm's Taxes by $829,350.

Dr. Joseph J. Klein, who has appeared in an advisory capacity before Congressional finance committees framing revenue bills, discussed last night the importance which the ratio of taxes to net profits has assumed, and pointed out how the tax factor has come to be one of the prime considerations in determining whether a new business venture shall be launched as a copartnership or a corporation. In analyzing the relative advantages of the two forms, Dr. Klein cited a case where a concern probably would lose more than $800,000 in 1919, because, acting under mistaken advice, it changed its organization from that of a corporation to a copartnership. He cited the following factors which now are taken into consideration in advising which form a new business shall take:

"The amount of admissible capital which is available for the enterprise; the estimated earnings of the proposed organization; the number of persons who are to share in these profits, the ratio of such sharings, and the additional or outside income of the shares; the need for keeping invested in the business earnings as they accrue so as to avoid the necessity of dividend distributions, and questions of expediency which concern themselves with: Relative potential credit-obtaining possibilities of a partnership versus a corporation; the legal difficulties involved in the holding of real property by partnerships, and of their transfer; and limitations, duties, responsibilities and advantages of one form of organization as contrasted with the other.

"The foregoing factors have long been determinants in connection with the question of the form or mode of organization," he said. "The controlling factor now is the tax liability. Illogical and ill-informed advisers offhandedly state that it is cheaper to do business as a corporation, or that it is cheaper to do business as a partnership. Both answers may be incorrect. Existing organizations, both firms and corporations, frequently confer regarding the advisability of changing their form of organizations.

"I wish to cite a case which came to my attention. This corporation had a capital and surplus as of last Dec. 31 amounting to $1,000,000. It was estimated that its 1919 earnings would be about $600,000, in addition to fair salary allowances. The stock was closely held by five individuals. The ratio of holdings was approximately 25, 25, 18, and 10 per cent. One of the owners who had studied law and felt that in order to avoid what he considered to be unfair corporate taxes, dissolved the company early last January, and the business is now conducted as a partnership. The owners have just discovered that, as a result of the dissolution, the combined cost to the five owners for 1919 alone is $829,350. In addition, provided the law remains unchanged, $84,000 in unnecessary annual taxes will have to be paid.

"The five stockholders had acquired their stock at par. The total stock capitalization was $500,000, the earned surplus retained in the business $1,100,000. Under the new regulations (Article 1547) the five stockholders are liable to income taxes on the difference between the surplus and capital distributed ($1,600,000) and their total original investment or cost, ($500,000,) that is, on the entire surplus distributed upon dissolution ($1,100,000.). Had the rulings promulgated in 1918 remained unchanged, no normal tax would have been assessed, on the theory that the distribution of $1,100,000 represented income upon which the corporation had already paid normal tax. The additional tax on this one item alone is at least $88,000. Had the amateur adviser proceeded with greater wisdom, the corporation would first have declared a dividend and thus saved the stockholders from a tax of $88,000. Now, assuming that the stockholders had no other 1919 income than that received by them as a result of the dissolution of their company, the total tax assessed against the five individuals would be approximately $540,000.

"If the estimated earnings for 1919 are realized, the five partners will be subject to a tax on their share of $600,000, in addition to the tax on the salaries allowed them. Had this total of $720,000 ($600,000 net profits plus $120,000 salaries) constituted their only income, their aggregate tax would have been $202,850, but when this 1919 income is superimposed on the income resulting from the corporation's dissolution, the additional tax is $204,200, or a total of $407,050.

"Had this corporation remained in existence, its 1919 tax on earnings of $600,000 would have been $194,620, (exclusive of State taxes and of capital stock tax.) The stockholders and officers would have been subject merely to a tax on the salaries received by them, an aggregate of $13,630. Accordingly, the total tax, had the corporation not dissolved, would have been $208,250. Upon dissolution, the aggregate net income of the five owners was represented by $1,820,000, ($1,100,000 surplus profits distributed, $120,000 of salaries and $600,000 of estimated firm earnings.) The aggregate tax on this combined income is $1,037,600. The penalty, as previously stated, is thus found to be $829,350.

"Under the 1919 rates, effective for subsequent years as well, the aggregate income of $720,000, representing salaries and firm profits, would be subject to a tax of $292,850. Had the corporation remained in existence, the aggregate tax on the corporation and individuals (exclusive of capital stock and State taxes) would have been approximately $194,620. Under the new form of organization, therefore, an added annual penalty of $84,800 is incurred, and this added penalty continues indefinitely."

GROWTH IN UNEMPLOYMENT

Slight Increase Reported in Sixty Cities—Surplus in Thirty-six.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A slight increase in unemployment throughout the country is shown by reports for the last week received by the Federal Employment Service from sixty cities. A surplus of labor was reported by thirty-six cities (a shortage by seven, and an equality of supply and demand by seventeen. The number of unemployed in the cities reporting increased by 2,000 during the week.

New Hampshire and Vermont showed an equality of supply and demand, Massachusetts a surplus, Maine an increasing surplus, and Connecticut a surplus in most cities. Practically all of New York State reported a surplus. Chicago showed an equality, while several other Illinois cities reported a surplus, as did Indiana. Southern States reported the best conditions.

DROPBLOCKADEBARS IN MEDITERRANEAN

STATEMENT IN WASHINGTON

Poland and Esthonia Also Included In the Relief Measures Just Decided On.

PARIS, April 1.—It has been decided to raise the blockade of Poland, Esthonia, German Austria, Turkey, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, and the territories occupied by Rumania and Serbia.

With respect to German Austria prohibition is maintained against trade in a few articles, chiefly of a military nature.

The International Trade Commission, sitting at Vienna, will exercise supervision to prevent re-exportation to Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—In accordance with the plans of the Supreme War Council, already announced, partial relaxation, under rigid control, of the allied blockade of German Austria will become effective tomorrow.

Official notice of the fact was made by the War Trade Board tonight in a statement issued over the signature of its Chairman, Vance McCormick, now in Europe. The statement reads:

"Acting concurrently with the competent authorities of the other associated Governments, the War Trade Board announce that all persons in the United States are authorized, on and after April 2, 1919, subject to the rules and regulations of the War Trade Board, to trade and communicate freely with persons residing in German Austria.

"In accordance with this authorization applications will now be considered for licenses to export or import all commodities to consignees or from consignors in German Austria, except that, for military reasons, the importation into German Austria of the following commodities will be restricted and export licenses for the same will be granted only in exceptional cases:

"Aircraft of all kinds, including airplanes, airships, balloons, and their component parts, together with accessories and articles suitable for use in connection with aircraft.

"Apparatus which can be used for the storage or projection of compressed or liquefied gases, flame acids, or other destructive agents capable of use in warlike operations and their component parts.

"Armor plates.

"Armored motor cars.

"Arms of all kinds, including arms for sporting purposes and their component parts.

"Barbed wire and implements for fixing and cutting same.

"Harness or horse equipment of a military character.

"Implements and apparatus designed exclusively for the manufacture of munitions of war, or for the manufacture or repair of arms or of war material for use on land or sea.

"Mines, submarines, and their component parts.

"Range finders and their component parts.

"Searchlights and their component parts.

"Submarine sound signaling apparatus and materials for wireless telegraphs.

"Torpedoes.

"Warships, including boats and their component parts of such a nature that they can only be used on a vessel of war.

"It is to be understood that the exportation of the following articles, viz., barbed wire and implements for fixing and cutting the same, articles of camp equipment and their component parts, clothing and equipment of a distinctly military character, electrical appliances for use in war and their component parts, military wagons of all descriptions and harness or horse equipment of a military character, is only forbidden on account of the military use to which such articles can be put. If exporters have information showing that the articles are destined for civil purposes, the same should be submitted with the application for export licenses.

"American exporters are advised that merchandise is permitted to be exported to German Austria only upon the understanding that it is intended to supply the internal domestic needs of that country; and that, without the consent of the Interallied Trade Committee at Vienna, the re-exportation of such merchandise from German Austria to countries commercial relations with which are not authorized is forbidden; and further, that such re-exportation constitutes a violation of the Trading With the Enemy act.

"For the exportation of commodities to German Austria, the applications should be filed on Form X-A. No supplemental information sheet will be required unless the commodity is a manufacture of gold, in which case supplemental information sheet X-29 should be attached.

"For importations into the United States from German Austria, individual import licenses will be required, in accordance with the regulations applicable to importations from the neutral countries of Europe.

"The following are the suggested routes for postal and cable communications and remittances and merchandise shipments:

"Postal communications should be addressed via France or Italy or Switzerland, and sent either on French or Italian licensed liners carrying mail.

"Cablegrams and cable remittances should be made via French cable lines.

"Merchandise should be shipped on vessels proceeding directly to Adriatic ports, preferably Trieste."

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The War Trade Board announced today the resumption of trade with Poland and with Esthonia, one of the four Baltic provinces in northwest Russia. Shipment of commodities to Poland should be routed via Danzig, the announcement by the War Trade Board said. The Allies are now believed to have the situation relative to Danzig so well in hand that shipments through the port may be made with safety.

Transfers of funds by dealers to persons not enemies or allies of enemies, resident in Esthonia, Lettland, Lithuania, and Poland will be permitted under a regulation announced by the Federal Reserve Board, effective today.

Tests of Value to You

Reliability and value of the service a Bank or Trust Company can give depends, in the last analysis, on the ability of the men who manage its affairs.

One aid to judging this factor in the case of the Brooklyn Trust Company is examination of the business standing and individual record in the community of this Company's Trustees.

Another, is the result of their management as seen in the history of the Company.

The Brooklyn Trust Company, chartered in 1866, has grown steadily through more than half a century in Banking and Trust business, in resources and facilities for service.

Romanones Expected to Resign When Quiet is Fully Restored.

MADRID, April 1.—With the industrial situation improving, it is understood that as soon as quiet is restored Premier Romanones will hand his resignation to the King. It is believed probable that the King will ask the Premier to remain in office in view of the success with which he settled the strikes throughout the country without serious disorders.

A state of siege has been proclaimed in Alicante. The strike of mail carriers in Madrid has ended, and several factories in Barcelona reopened yesterday. Workmen are also returning in other provinces.

Bankers Think Part of Finance Corporation Loan Is for Carriers.

Bankers were of the opinion yesterday that the $200,000,000 issue of one-year, 5 per cent. War Finance Corporation bonds, which are being offered for sale beginning today at all of the Federal Reserve Banks, will be well taken by the public. The bonds are not Government bonds, and are not expected to compete either with the forthcoming Victory Loan or with whatever issues of Treasury certificates of indebtedness Secretary of the Treasury Glass may offer in the future, and are expected to appeal to wealthy individuals and possibly to some corporations. The bonds are exempt as to the normal income tax, and in principal to $5,000 are exempt to all taxes other than estate taxes.

That because these War Finance Corporation bonds are to bear 5 per cent. interest a corresponding rate would be paid on the Victory Loan does not follow, according to bankers. The Finance Corporation obligations, while issued for a war purpose, are not Government bonds. As a matter of fact, they are merely the security of a private institution. At the same time, however, it is felt that no Congress would ever permit the bonds to be defaulted, even should the Finance Corporation collapse, and this fact is accepted as giving a very strong sentimental strength to the new issue. The Finance Corporation, though, is tremendously strong financially, and with its bond-issuing power offsetting its lending power, its capital of $500,000,000 virtually becomes additional security.

The bonds will be offered through the several Federal Reserve Banks, in much the same manner in which Treasury certificates of indebtedness are disposed of. The price to the public will be par, but designated dealers and incorporated banks and trust companies will be allowed a commission of ⅛ of 1 per cent. on such subscriptions as they secure.

The belief that the proceeds of this flotation are to be used for financing foreign trade was said yesterday to be somewhat incorrect. Bankers in New York feel that the financing of foreign trade by use of Finance Corporation bonds and advances will not be extensively done until after the peace treaty is signed. Meanwhile, the Corporation will probably be called upon to make advances to many of the railroads, and it is considered likely that much of the $200,000,000 will be used for this purpose.

U. S. Smelting Earns $3,072,885.

The United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company in the year ended Dec. 31 last earned, after preferred dividends, but before taxes, $3,072,885, equal to $8.75 a share on the common, as against $1,755,575, equal to $5.13 a share, similarly earned in 1917. The company suffered a decreased production of copper and lead in 1918, as compared with 1917, the copper production being 20,359,378 pounds, as against 29,043,249 pounds produced in 1917, while lead production fell to 96,567,482 pounds from 167,519,570 pounds. The greatest curtailment, however, was in zinc, which fell to 13,476,191 pounds in 1918, after having reached a total of 53,500,446 pounds in 1917.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was little material change in values at the close of an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Advances made in the general list were cut substantially by the profit-taking movement in the last half hour and final quotations, as a rule, registered but fractional improvement. Not a few securities were unchanged. The market movement, as a whole, was irregular and spotty in character. Specialties were active.

FLOOR COVERINGS OFFERED FOR FALL

MANY BIDDERS AT SALE

About $700,000 Worth Disposed Of There—Openings Show Lower Prices for Goods.

Generally lower prices supplied the keynote of the opening of Fall lines by leading manufacturers and selling agencies here yesterday. While buying was only fairly active during the morning, the afternoon found the salesrooms of the leading concerns well filled. Everywhere there was a belief apparent that the jobbing and retail trades had been on short rations so long that their present buying hunger will be sufficient to absorb easily the merchandise offered at auction and a great deal besides.

Buyers appeared satisfied with the new prices for the most part, though here and there a disposition was seen to complain that they were not low enough. Sellers, however, asserted that they had been cut to the bone, and it was intimated that in some instances the cost of production was hardly covered. The idea of the wholesalers appeared to be to cut prices to the lowest possible level, relying on quantity business to produce the profits. The new figures were said to be based less on a downward revision of production costs than on the greatly increased output that will result from the mills being freed from their wartime tasks.

Prices High at Auction.

In the best attended sale in its history, the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company, through its auctioneers, Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, yesterday disposed of 10,700 bales for $700,000. There are 40,000 bales of carpetings and rugs in the offering, which is about one-third the amount usually placed at auction by the concern.

Those goods, known to the trade as cut-pile fabrics, which include Axminster and Brussels, brought the best prices, present market values being maintained. Tapestries lagged behind somewhat, and fetched less than what they have been selling for. The explanation offered for this was that the cut-pil goods are more highly regarded by the trade at the present time than is the case with tapestry goods.

The shortage of rugs and carpets throughout the country was given as the principal reason for the maintenance of price levels. What buying has been going on for the last eighteen months has been on a hand-to-mouth basis, and dealers were looking for a slump in quotations. At the same time that retail stocks were being let run down the manufacturers were operating in only a small way. One of the executives of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company stated that his concern had been down to barely 10 per cent. production. The factory was devoting the majority of its looms to Government business. He added that it would take at least a year to get back to normal conditions and have the loomage restored to a condition where it could be used for the civilian trade again.

These circumstances seemed to have been taken into account by the buyers who were present at yesterday's sale. According to the count taken in the temporary lunchroom which is placed at the convenience of buyers during the sale, there were 1,200 persons served. The salesroom was crowded right up to the conclusion of the day's session.

While the bidding was brisk practically throughout the sale, there were times when the space above the audience was just white with the cards shoved up by the bidders to signify their acceptance of the auctioneer's offer. Staple patterns and novelties seemed to go equally well.

Among the buyers the sentiment prevailed that the prices being paid were high, considering every factor but that of supply. On all sides the scarcity of stocks was admitted, and in view of this it was thought that the prices realized were justified. It did not seem to bother buyers that, in the market outside the sale, lower prices were prevalent.

At the rate the auction was going and the speed it is expected to pick up with its progress, the sale is expected to be closed by tomorrow night. Lot No. 280 was reached when the auction closed yesterday, a little after 5 o'clock.

Following is a list of the offerings sold during the day with the size, description, and high and low quotation for each item:

Lower Quotations at Openings.

The prices quoted for the new season by the wholesale department of W. & J. Sloane, selling agents for McCleary, Wallin & Crouse, the Shuttleworth Brothers Company, and C. H. Masland & Sons, showed an average decline of 20 per cent. from the quotations made on Spring goods last October. Those of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Company showed an average drop of 10 per cent. In both cases prices were guaranteed against decline to Oct. 1.

The new prices of the Roxbury Carpet Company show declines from Spring levels that run from 10 to 15 per cent. At the office of the Firth Carpet Company it was said yesterday that the new season's prices would be made today. In practically all places where prices have been announced orders will be accepted only subject to the mills' ability to fill before Oct. 1, and the quotations are subject to withdrawal or change without notice.

The M. J. Whittall Associates named the following prices on the standard size, 9 by 12: Anglo-Persian, $1.17; Anglo-Indian, $99; Royal Worcester, $88; Teprac, $71; Durham, $106, and Peerless Brussels, $54.

The following prices on the 9-by-12 size were put out by Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc.: Beauvais Axminster, $36.50; Fervak Axminster, $31; Cashmere Wilton velvet, fringed, $39.50; Luzerne velvet, $30; Brookline tapestry, $22.50; Clermont tapestry, $19.50, and Mayfield tapestry, $16.50.

Linoleum prices for Fall were also made during the day, and where generally lower than those named on Spring goods. Declines from original Spring levels, ranging from 35 to 40 per cent., are shown in the price list of the Nairn Linoleum Company, the products of which are sold through the wholesale department of W. & J. Sloane. It was reported that the list of one well-known firm was withdrawn for revision.

LUXURY TAX FOR FRANCE.

Government Persuades Deputies to Let Provision Remain in Budget.

PARIS, March 31.—By a vote of 140 to 80, the Senate tonight indorsed the Government's demand for the retention of the luxuries tax by eliminating from the Budget bill an article inserted by the Chamber of Deputies abolishing it. Louis L. Klotz, Minister of Finance, who was present and who urged that the article be stricken out of the bill, moved to the Chamber later and asked that branch of Parliament to reverse its action on the tax.

There were violent protests in the Chamber against the Senate's action, Deputies who advocated the suppression of the luxuries tax arguing that it was wanted by merchants and workmen. The Chamber, however, finally acquiesced in the Senate's restoration of the tax. It modified the bill otherwise, however, necessitating its return to the Senate, which ultimately gave its acquiescence to the measure.

Senator Dehierre earlier in the night moved a reduction of 10,000,000f. in the appropriation for the Ministry of War as a "sign" to the Government. Parliament, he said, had a right to be better informed as to the Government's program for Eastern Europe. Senator Plaisieres supported this motion. He said he desired accurate information regarding the Russian expedition, certain Ministers having made contradictory statements. Notwithstanding Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine, pointed out that Foreign Minister Pichon was absent, being detained by his Ministerial duties, the Senate voted the reduction.

TO WARN OF BOND FRAUDS.

Meetings to Safeguard Aliens Against Liberty Loan Swindles.

The State Industrial Commission, Bureau of Immigration, has organized a campaign to tour the State of New York and hold meetings in alien colonies to warn foreign speaking owners of Liberty Bonds against exchanging bonds for bogus securities. This campaign will be under the supervision of Mrs. Marian K. Clark, Chief Investigator, and men from the State Industrial Commission will address these meetings in eighteen languages. The campaign will be launched either the end of this week or the beginning of next week and will probably hold its first meeting in Buffalo.

The attention of the State Industrial Commission has been directed to the fact that immigrants throughout New York State and the country are being defrauded in the sale of Liberty Loan bonds by persons who are either purchasing these bonds for a fraction of their value or exchanging them for utterly worthless securities.

There are 3,000,000 aliens in New York State and 680,000 are unable to understand the English language, and of these 239,333 were drafted into the army, naturalized and own Liberty bonds. Complaints on file in the office of the State Industrial Commission show that Liberty bonds have been exchanged for worthless stock and that fifty-dollar bonds are being bought up for $20. The bond swindler often gets the bonds by telling men they cannot obtain any cash on the bond before maturity.

GLOBE PRESSMEN STILL OUT

Circulation Not Affected, However, Business Manager Says.

The pressmen on The Globe who went on strike on Monday morning were still out yesterday. Arthur B. Chivers, business manager of the newspaper, however, said that the circulation was normal and that the papers had come out on time.

David Simon, President of the Web Pressmen's Local, No. 25, of the International Pressmen's Union, said that the strike had started over the refusal of Mr. Chivers to reinstate two discharged men. Mr. Simon said that two men had been discharged on March 8 by Foreman Peter Breen for failing to return from lunch at the proper time. When Mr. Chivers was asked, according to Mr. Simon, to reinstate the men, he referred the matter to the Joint Conference Board of the Publishers' Association, which settles disputes between employers and employes. After two meetings this committee, consisting of Hugh O'Donnell, Don C. Seitz, and R. M. Gunnison, drew up a decision on March 27 ordering The Globe to reinstate the men with the pay that they had lost.

Mr. Chivers, according to Mr. Simon, saw the decision which the Publishers' Association had drawn up, and said that he was willing to pay off the men, but would not take them back. Mr. Simon said he then told Mr. Chivers that this was violating the decision of the Conference Board, but, according to Mr. Simon, Mr. Chivers said that he did not care.

When, on Monday morning, the men were not reinstated, twenty-seven pressmen and seven boys who worked in the pressroom of The Globe left their presses. Yesterday Mr. Simon declared that the strike would go on until all of the men were reinstated.

Mr. Chivers said last night: "The Globe does not wish at this moment to make any statement in answer to anything that Mr. Simon may charge. We will issue a statement substantiated by the proper documents in due time."

BOWMAN ANSWERS CRAIG.

Says That Park on Grand Union Site Means More Taxes to City.

John McE. Bowman, President of the Hotels Commodore, Belmont and Murray Hill, took exception yesterday to Controller Charles L. Craig's charge that private interests were behind the plan to have the city use the old Grand Union Hotel site at Park Avenue and Forty-second Street as a public park or plaza in memory of the American troops who fought in France.

The Controller said the Commodore, Belmont and Murray Hill Hotels would be specially benefited; that "a sacred purpose of this character should not be prostituted or perverted for the private gain of special interests," and that "any attempt to raise $1,000,000 or any other sum by private subscriptions to provide a tribute to General Pershing and the city's heroes should not be tainted."

Mr. Bowman asserted that if this site, which has been designated as 'Pershing Square' by the Board of Aldermen, were used for a memorial, it would not only serve "a great civic, patriotic, artistic and historical purpose but effect a great utilitarian end as well. The space that is needed to assist in relieving the congestion about the Grand Central Terminal, in and out of which come 100,000 people every day, would be at hand. Five years hence the city may otherwise face the necessity of purchasing big buildings and land and demolishing the former in order to provide the additional space that will be necessary. In five years the cost of such property will be multiplied."

"An office building or another hotel, if erected upon the vacant plot, would increase his business, said Mr. Bowman, whereas if it were made into a plaza, the valuation of his property would be increased, his taxes would be increased, and all to the benefit of the city Treasury. "I shall, however, still wonder," he said, "why disinterested officials do not realize that by leaving the square vacant they are giving the city opportunity for two office buildings or two hotels with a double increase in annual taxation of the city and in an amount which would speedily amortize the value of the Grand Union site if left unproductive. This is exclusively from the point of view of revenue in the city's hands and apart from any patriotic or utilitarian purpose whatsoever."

MACKAY ASSAILS HIGHER WIRE RATES

Would Give Service at Old Tolls if Government Would End Control of Lines.

ACCUSES BURLESON AGAIN

Says He Agreed to Pay Western Union Too Much and Had to Raise Charges to Help Out.

The establishment of Postmaster General Burleson's new telegraph rates yesterday, adding, it is asserted, $16,000,000 a year to the cost of the service to the public, drew another statement from Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Mackay Companies, operating the Postal Telegraph-Commercial Cable Company. Mr. Mackay declared that the new rates were unwarranted, and, putting the issue squarely up to the Postmaster General, offered the Postal service at the old rates, providing Government control was ended.

"The total telegraph business of the country is approximately $80,000,000," said Mr. Mackay, "and this 20 per cent. increase ordered by Mr. Burleson means an increase of $16,000,000 to the telegraph users. That it is absolutely unnecessary to increase telegraph rates is shown by the fact that the representatives of the Postmaster General now find that we have been able to hold up our earnings and profits to expectations, and those earnings and profits for the year commencing July 31, 1918, (the date when the Government claims to have taken control,) will be more than twice the compensation which Mr. Burleson has given our company. During the six months ending Jan. 31 we have earned more than the compensation awarded to us by Postmaster General Burleson for a whole year.

"If we had been allowed to keep our property and operate it we would not have thought of increasing the rates, and there would not have been the slightest occasion for raising the rates. The real fact is that Mr. Burleson has agreed to pay the Western Union more than he should have agreed to, and in order to realize that amount he has to raise the rates. A second reason is that the Western Union Telegraph Company is not administered carefully and economically. Even now, when the Government is supposed to be in control of both companies, the Western Union has a horde of solicitors running around trying to get business away from the Postal.

"These solicitors do not create any telegraph business, and they are as useless as would be solicitors for a street railway. The receipts and expenditures of the Postal system, as administered by our own staff ever since the Government assumed to take control on Aug. 1, 1918, show there has been no material change to require or even to justify an increase in rates. The receipts and expenditures of the Western Union, however, as we gather from their reports, tell a different story, and that is why I say I believe the trouble is due first to the fact that Mr. Burleson agreed to pay them too much compensation, and, second, to the fact that the Western Union is not administered carefully and economically.

"What Mr. Burleson intends to do with the profits which he is taking away from us we do not know. We do know that if we had been left alone there would have been no increase in rates and no loss of profit to us. As it is now, the Western Union is ahead of the game, but the public loses $16 000 000 a year and we lost about $2,000,000 under Mr. Burleson's award to us. Our profits from Aug. 1, 1918, to Aug. 1, 1919, will apparently be at least $3,680,000, without any of the increased rates, and yet Mr. Burleson proposes to allow us only $1,-680 000 of this amount. In other words, Mr. Burleson gives us $1,680,000 and he keeps $2 000 000 of our profits, and also keeps all of these increased rates which our property may earn. This is what I call a 'raw deal.'

"If Mr. Burleson will return our lines to us at once we will carry on the telegraph business at the old rates at once. This certainly is a fair proposition, and should appeal to the American public, who are paying the increased telegraph rates."

I. W. W. CASE GOES OVER.

Argument on Habeas Corpus Postponed to Correct the Record.

Argument on the writ of habeas corpus obtained in the interest of the nineteen members of the I. W. W. now detained on Ellis Island was postponed yesterday by Federal Judge A. N. Hand for a week. It was contended by counsel for the nineteen that the record of one of the men, Louis Mische of Seattle, was incorrect, and that instead of being an alien he was a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and that time was needed to correct the record.

A. Warner Parker, Chief of the Law Division of the Bureau of Immigration, told the court that all of the records had been carefully inquired into before the men were taken into custody. He accused them of many lawless things, such as attempting to set up a Soviet Government in the Northwest, of fomenting a strike that nearly verged upon rebellion, and of seeking to turn the minds of newly arrived immigrants fotward Bolshevism. Since they have been on Ellis Island, he said, they have proved that they were unrepentant by constantly singing radical songs and preaching the doctrine of Bolshevism to all who would listen.

Counsel for the men said his clients had incurred the hatred of the big lumbermen in the Northwest by their alleged interference with labor and that this was one of the reasons why they were sent here by the Government, with the threat of deportation.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

To meet the increasing demands of its business R. H. Macy & Co. has purchased for immediate improvement, 152 West Thirty-fourth Street, running through the block to 152 West Thirty-fifth Street.

The property, which was sold by the Gilles estate and Frederick Hussey, consists of two five-story altered buildings, with frontages of 25 feet. It adjoins the four parcels purchased about a year ago, at 149 and 151 West Thirty-fourth Street and 148 and 150 West Thirty-fifth Street, forming a plot of 50 feet running through the block. On the combined plot of 75 feet on each street, which adjoins the ten-story department store of R. H. Macy & Co., a tall building similar to the main structure will be erected. Plans are being prepared for the new structure by Robert D. Kohn, and the construction work will be done by Mark Eidlitz. Plans were filed about a year ago for a seventeen-story tower annex on the original 50-foot plot, but this was finally found inadequate to meet the demands of the improvements contemplated and work was suspended until additional ground could be secured. John N. Golding as broker assembled the various properties and negotiated the sales.

The Broadway-John Street Corporation sold the five-story building, 40 by 47, held at $75,000, at the southwest corner of Water and Pine Streets, to Elias Bach & Son, tobacco merchants, for their own occupancy. SALESMEN, absorb this! A year ago I resigned as sales manager of the largest automobile distributer in the country. Mine was a responsible and lucrative position, but I wanted to increase my earning capacity. I had reached the top of the ladder. I looked over the business field with a fine comb and rejected innumerable propositions. At last I hit on the greatest business in the world, LIFE INSURANCE, which had been presented to me many times before, but never until I tried the business did I realize the following:
A delightful business, calling on the highest type of business and professional men, offering them a commodity of the most unquestionable character. Every day doing some good for my fellow-men, and at the same time building and enjoying an income far beyond my fondest hope. Your compensation, based upon commission, will be limited only by your own intelligent application. You ambitious salesmen, come in and let's have a talk, and let me thoroughly prove my statements to you. If you are in the 30s or 40s, have demonstrated your ability in your present position; if you are making $3,500 or upward and you are eager to double, yes, treble your present income, will you hold yourself open and permit me to prove that I have the very opportunity you have been waiting for? Call and see my sales manager, Mr. Taylor, between 2-5:30 P. M. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, 802, 516 Fifth Av.

SALESMEN.

M. to 1 P. M. only, Room 1613, 220 West 42d St.

SALESMEN.—I am now engaged in expanding my sales organization, which deals in high-grade securities; I am looking for a number of clean men who can measure up to the highest standards as to character, honesty, and probity; here is an opportunity for a few such men to affiliate themselves with a proposition that should give them high-class associates and satisfactory commissions; all answers will be treated in strictest confidence, and no investigations will be made until I have talked to you face to face. M'CLURE LOSES SUIT; WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Jury Finds Husband Instead of Her Guilty, and Clears Co-respondent He Named.

WEEPS ON HEARING VERDICT

Plaintiff's Motion to Set the Finding Aside Is Denied by the Court.

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night the jury which has been considering the evidence in the suit for divorce brought by Henry H. McClure, General Manager of the Associated Newspapers at 170 Broadway, against Mrs. Frances C. McClure, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, and also awarded a decree of divorce to her.

By its finding the jury declared its belief in the innocence of Mrs. McClure, accused by her husband, who named Neil R. White, proprietor of Whyte's restaurant, as co-respondent, at the same time declaring that Mr. McClure had been guilty of misconduct, as was alleged in her countersuit.

Mrs. McClure was seated beside her mother, Mrs. Stewart, as the jury filed in, trying to read the verdict in their faces. When she learned that it was in her favor, both she and her mother burst into tears. Mr. White, the co-respondent named by McClure, went over to her and shook hands with both women.

Mr. Marshall, for the plaintiff, made the usual motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that it was against the weight of evidence. After the motion was denied, he and Mr. McClure left the court room.

The verdict means, unless the court decides not to be bound by it, that Mrs. McClure will receive a divorce decree, and the court will be called upon to determine whether the $60 a week alimony which she is said to have demanded when her husband wished to enter into a separation agreement with her is excessive or not.

EXAMINE WILKINS'S KNIVES.

Prosecutor Hints That They Were Stained Silencing Doctor's Dogs.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 1.—District Attorney Weeks announced tonight that he had obtained three knives in the town house of Dr. Walter K. Wilkins, 164 West Sixty-fifth Street, New York, and would tomorrow have them examined to determine the origin of stains on the blades. Two of them are pocket knives, but the third is a keen-edged dagger blade, with horn handle.

Mr. Weeks, recalling that two of the doctor's dogs were found injured shortly after the discovery of the murder of the physician's wife, intimated that detectives were trying to connect the stained knives with the silencing of the animals. Another point in the doctor's story was attacked today by the District Attorney. He said that if it was true that burglars were in the Wilkins home at Long Beach just before they attacked the doctor and his wife, and had drunk wine from glasses on the sideboard, as related by Dr. Wilkins, he failed to understand why they had overlooked a substantial purse which had been lying in one of the glasses.

Bristol Accident Cost Four Lives.

BRISTOL, April 1.—Apparently the accident yesterday at the launching at Harriman of the cargo carrier Waukau resulted in the death of only four workmen. The Coroner today absolved the shipbuilding company from blame. He said the men were on the collapsing platform in violation of rules.

TELLS WEST SIDE NEEDS.

In Danger of Losing Industries to Jersey, Engineer Writes Hylan.

H. E. Skougar, an engineer, has written to Mayor Hylan asserting that the west side of Manhattan is greatly in need of being developed and that this waits upon the affirmative action by the authorities in the development of the port. He denies a recent statement by the Mayor to the effect that every boy knew that New Jersey was only too anxious to enter into the New York and New Jersey Port treaty, and says New Jersey holds the whip hand over this city so far as the future growth of our industries is concerned.

Mr. Skougar says that ten years ago Twenty-third Street, between Fourth and Sixth Avenue, and Sixth Avenue, between Fourteenth and Thirtieth Streets, was the busiest shopping district in the city. His letter continues:

"The merchants there moved elsewhere when they realized that it would be unprofitable to remain in the old neighborhood. This deserted neighborhood decreased to but a fraction of its previous value. So with the shores of Manhattan and its industries. New Jersey will shortly, in accordance with a statement recently made by Governor Edge, proceed independently to develop her harbor unless mutual arrangements can be made, not necessarily the Hudson shores of New Jersey, but Newark Bay, the development of which, aided by the service of some fifteen railroads with connections direct to the continent, and with the tremendous areas available for industries, will make it in the very near future unprofitable for the shippers and manufacturers to remain along the Manhattan shores or on Manhattan Island.

"For this reason I recently advocated in a paper read before the Society of Terminal Engineers that a comprehensive plan of a united port be adopted by the two States, or that all of the territory affected by the proposed improvement be made part of one State. I advocated that a free zone be located in Raritan Bay, and that the development of Brooklyn, Queens, and Staten Island be clearly defined."

What the Doctor Says about Twin Beds

IT is no new thought with you, of course—the idea of a separate bed for each member of the family.

This has been the custom with thousands of families for years—a rapidly spreading custom ever since Twin Beds put the separate bed at the service of households where space is limited.

o o o

IT is a thing, too, that doctors have long been urging. Not only for the warding off of infections, such as coughs, "sore throat" or grippe, but for the sake of perfect relaxation and sound sleep.

The restlessness of one sleeper does not disturb the other. And there isn't any loss of vitality—as there is when children sleep with old people, or invalids with the healthy.

But even in a separate bed you will never sleep sound unless your bed invites perfect relaxation.

There is not a person anywhere but will sleep better for doing away with the creaky wooden bed or loose-jointed noisy metal bed and getting a Simmons Metal Bed instead—with Slumber King Spring.

The Simmons Bed is noiseless. It locks firm at the corners. The corner locks are made of pressed steel—have much longer bearing surfaces than the average—fit true and snug—not a creak, rattle, or feeling of unsteadiness.

It is perfectly rigid—feels and moves like one solid piece.

The Simmons Pressed Steel Corner Locks are protected by basic patents. They are the most fundamental inventions of modern bed manufacturing—exclusive with Simmons, not to be duplicated or imitated.

And these patented corner locks have made possible the Three-piece Bed—the new Simmons idea—the spring forming a single unit with the side rails.

o o o

THE Slumber King Spring really does what you have always wanted a spring to do.

It is a new and advanced idea. It is a system of elastic steel strips with spirals of high test spring wire—so combined that the spring action is equal in all directions.

The Slumber King Spring yields to the weight of the body, but supports it. It fits square on the bed. It does not sag, hump—or lose its resiliency. It is always a firm, elastic foundation for the mattress. It invites sound, health-giving sleep.

The Slumber King Spring is finished in oxidized silver. It is rust-proof. It has no loose ends or rough corners—cannot wear or tear the ticking.

o o o

THOUSANDS, who for years have been "light sleepers"—waking at every sound—relax completely and sleep all night on a Simmons Metal Bed.

If you've been thinking of separate beds you may be glad to know that Simmons Company are specialists in Twin Beds.

You'll find Simmons Metal Beds and Slumber King Springs at your leading dealer's.

An unusual assortment in brass, colored enamel and natural wood effects—to harmonize with the interior decorations of the day.

Four years' concentration of effort on one design has enabled Oakland engineers to eliminate every unnecessary part, thereby reducing repair bills to a minimum.
